Drilling of its first oil well by the Trigon Oil and Gas company was not begun yesterday as was planned because of the non-arrival of a quantity of 18-inch casing from San Francisco. Work has been received by the company that this casing was shipped to Medford today, and hence the work of drilling can not be started until its arrival and delivery on the ground, probably the last of the week. This is the only thing that is holding back the start, all other necessary preparations having been made.
