USE WATER EARLY IS ADVICE STATE ENGINEER CUPPER

SALEM, Mar. 19.—Irrigationists are warned to prepare to face "the driest season of record" during the coming summer, in a statement issued today by Percy A. Cupper, state engineer.

"The supply of water for irrigation according to the present indications, will be far below normal," Cupper states. "The heavy snows of early December seem not to have reached to any marked degree the higher altitudes and most of the snow seems to have already disappeared. In some sections it fell on unfrozen ground and was almost entirely absorbed by the soil while in other sections the reverse was true and unusual floods followed the melting of the snow."

Reports from various sections of the state indicate a very light snowfall in the higher mountains upon which we must rely to maintain our irrigation streams and fill our reservoirs. It seems, therefore, not too early to check up on our available supply and to take such practical precautions as we may to avoid undue shortage for the irrigation crops. The use of water early in the season serves a double purpose. It saturates the soil, much of which remains to supply the plants, and also serves as a reservoir, the water gradually returning to the stream as seepage and maintaining its flow for the benefit of those below, which in turn enables the upper appropriator to longer divert water without inflicting upon prior rights.

Pointing out that only the irrigator in each particular locality can know the best time to begin irrigating his crops Cupper advises irrigationists, especially those with the later rights, to make the best possible use of all available water while it is yet to be had.

Ditches should be cleaned out and prepared for use as early as possible so that water may be applied as soon as conditions in the respective localities will permit of the beneficial use of water.

Calling attention to the fact that the distribution of water is left in the hands of the water masters who must act in accordance with the decree of the state water board, Cupper urges that any differences arising over these rights be referred to him as state engineer for settlement before carrying the dispute into court.

"Even though the water supply should be as short as present conditions indicate," he concludes, "much can be done to relieve the situation by foresight, precaution and cooperation."

THE VOICE OF THE WORLD AND VOICE OF GOD IS THEME

"There are two motives which must dominate human life—the one the pleasing of the world, the other, the approval of God," said Rev. J. Randolph Sasser last night in the evangelistic service at First Methodist church. Continuing he said, "The thing which has made some heads boom high above all others is that they refused to compromise with the lower motive of catering to the wishes of the world, but had the approval of God as the eternal star of righteousness guiding them on to immortal fame."

It is not an easy thing to follow that star always. The voices of the world are a constant din in our ears, while the voice of God is most often the "still small voice." Moreover the devil does not come to us in his proverbial hoofs and horns. He comes deceptively incarnate. In example, the black sin of adultery is repulsive to the mind of every red-blooded young man, but let the temptation come alluringly incarnate in feminine beauty and how many young men fall!

Agnes Nielsen Skarivold sang "More Love to Thee" with nice telling effect. The congregational singing under her leadership is proving a popular feature of these services.

Tonight is young people's night. Judging from the audience of the week it is expected that "standing room only" will be the order tonight and Sunday.

The Screen

BESSIE BARRISCALE OPENS TODAY AT THE LIBERTY

Admirers of Bessie Barriscale today on the screen of the Liberty theatre, will find her in a new feature, made in her own studio. This picture, which is remaining for an engagement of two days, is called "Beckoning Roads," and is based on "The Call of Life," Jeanne Judson's serial which appeared in the Red Book Magazine.

"Beckoning Roads" has wide diversity of action, ranging from the wheat lands of the Canadian Northwest to the floor of the stock exchange in New York City.

Eyes of Youth

Life's turning point is depicted at the moment when the girl or boy changes into the woman or the man, according to the picture, "Eyes of Youth," which is showing at the Rialto theater.

Clara Kimball Young is the star of "Eyes of Youth," and in it she finds the most pretentious role of her career. Her past experience in films has prepared her to take the role of universal appeal which she has in "Eyes of Youth," and make of it an exceptionally wonderful portrayal.

SERVICE MEN SHOULD KEEP INSURANCE SLIPS

Former service men, holders of Uncle Sam's War Risk Insurance, have received from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance an identification card bearing their name and insurance number, for ready reference, such as they carried while in the service, states Director R. G. Chomely-Jones of the bureau.

This card will enable the men to give their correct insurance number when communicating with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and also serves for identification in case of sickness or accident.

Many of these cards are being returned to the bureau by former service men instead of being retained. The director requests all former service men who received these identification cards to keep them.

ELKS HOLD OPEN HOUSE FOR THE ROVING MARINES

At 12:30 last night the Roving Marines gave three hearty cheers for the Medford Elks lodge, and the Elks immediately came back with three lusty cheers for the marines, whose band then played the Star-Spangled Banner, and the entertainment for the uniformed visitors and local men alike was ended. It was one of the most enjoyable occasions in the history of the lodge.

Because the B. P. O. E. order is a patriotic one it was peculiarly fitting that the local Elks entertain the large marine corps contingent visiting in the city, and hence by agreement after the Roving Marines show at the Page theater, the Elks and their guests at once hastened to the Elks building, where a feast awaited the marines, after which hosts and guests went to the big lodge room and the entertainment features were begun including clever, bewildering magic performed by Jay Gore, and equally clever vocal imitations by "Chick" Weiss. The Medford boy was a complete and welcome surprise with his sleight of hand or look-alike feats his confident and easy stage presence and accompanying lingo lending much zest to his mystery tricks. Mr. Weiss gave laughable imitations ranging from a pig snort in a fence to a grand opera prima donna.

But the marines in turn furnished enjoyable artistic entertainment consisting of a number of selections by the band, the vocal quartet and the saxophone quartet. Sergeant Billy Bunch of the Salt Lake City lodge of Elks told a humorous story and Sergeant J. Howard Hanson of the Milwaukee lodge of Elks and Captain C. T. Rhodes, who is in command of the Roving Marines, made short addresses thanking the Elks for their hospitality.

"We have been pleasantly entertained in many places during our travels," said the captain, "but nowhere have we encountered such whole-hearted hospitality as the Elks have extended. We need not tell you anything about the marines. They speak for themselves (waving his hand to the large contingent)."

The Elks had extended the privileges of their club house to the marines during the latter's sojourn here which were taken advantage of and much appreciated.

COUNTY SCHOOL FIELD MEET TALENT IN MAY

The annual county field meet has been arranged to take place on the Talent school grounds the first Friday in May. The contests are to be arranged as follows:

In order to give more time to tennis and baseball the association decided to have those events at Central Point May 15. The size of the baseball should be 11 1/2 inches outside of seams. The distance between the diamonds to be thirty-eight feet. The teams are to consist of ten players, and to play three innings to each game.

Rough Roads for Wheels Are Smooth Roads for Passengers

WATCH Overland 4 on rough cobbles or unpaved roads. The wheels follow surface inequalities, but the new Triplex Springs give car and passengers remarkable riding steadiness. They give 130-inch Spring-base to a car of 100-inch wheelbase. This makes for the gently buoyant road action of a large, heavy car with the economy in upkeep, fuel and tires, and convenience of handling of a scientifically designed light car. Auto-Lite starting and lighting, door-opening curtains and dash light give but a hint of the completeness and quality which characterize everything about Overland 4.
