

UNCLE SAM MAKES REAL MEN AND 'GOOD FELLOWS'

The U. S. Marine Corps Turns Out "Two-Fisted" Chaps Who Can Use Their Heads; Gives Plenty of Travel, Adventure and Excitement.

Corporal, what are your ribbons for?

Tell me what each of 'em means. One I got in the Spanish War, and one in the Philippines. One I got in the Boxer brush. For makin' the Chinks be good, and one for helpin' to block the Boche in bloody old Belleau Wood.

Corporal, if I should join your corps.

O what would it do for me? You'd learn 'o' range this wide world 'er.

By sky and by earth and sea— To be at home in lands that lie Where the East and West Worlds meet.

To front the best man, eye to eye, And stand on your own two feet.

Corporal, tell me, straight, what kind

Of a man the Marine Corps makes? The sort of chap you're glad to find

At your side when a rough house breaks— The sort of a chap who can crack a joke

And laugh when the sky looks black. The kind who'll share his last lone smoke

Or give you the shirt off his back.

Have you ever seen a Marine swinging by, and envied him his carefree air, the breadth of the shoulders and the depth of the chest under his well-fitting uniform? Is it any wonder the girls have a soft spot in their hearts for these "soldiers of the sea"?

That Marine didn't just happen to be the husky lad he is. He is merely a walking example of what the Marine Corps can do for the ordinarily healthy man. Maybe when he came into the service he was a little stoop shouldered, didn't have much "pep." Maybe he was working at a job he didn't care for, didn't have anybody to "pal around with."

The Marine Corps is a body of men, carefully trained to use both hands, both feet and their heads. They are the sort of men who can take Vera Cruz or form a guard of honor for the Prince of Wales, and do both jobs shipshape. They are blood brothers to the French Foreign Legion, the Pennsylvania State Constabulary, the Canadian Mounted Police and the Texas Rangers. They are princes of good fellows, and they're wildcats when they're riled.

No man does his best work unless he likes his job. And no man can do good work without plenty of recreation. It is upon these two principles that Marine Corps training is based.

The Marine must be something of a sailor and every thing of a soldier. So he is always learning something new and intensely interesting. In addition to taking on quite a bit of seamanship, he learns to hike like an infantryman, ride like a cavalryman and handle guns like an artilleryman. He knows something of wireless telegraphy and mechanics. In fact, when he comes out of the Marine Corps there are all sorts of big-paying civilian jobs that are waiting for a man who can do so many different kinds of things and do them well.

To keep a man fit there is nothing like athletic sports, and all Marines are encouraged to go in for boxing, football, baseball and swimming. Competent coaches and trainers are provided and every facility for a man to indulge in the form of sport that most appeals to him.

Good Fellowship of the Corps

A life of travel, adventure and outdoor work would naturally attract the man who has the makings of a "good fellow" in him. And nowhere do you find more "good fellows" than in the Marine Corps. If ever you have seen a bunch of Marines in their off hours in barracks, or out for a time in any of our large cities, or sightseeing in foreign ports, there is no need to tell you anything about that side of a Marine's existence.

And as for his chances of seeing the world—there is hardly a country on earth where Marines are not stationed at present. They are in Haiti and the Philippines. They are in London, Paris and in China. No big warship sets sail for foreign ports without a detachment of Marines aboard.

Any healthy young man who would like to learn a well-paying trade, and at the same time build himself up physically and see the world, should investigate the U. S. Marine Corps. Don't hesitate to call at the Marine Recruiting Office. You will not be urged to enlist, but you WILL be told THE TRUTH about the service. Send for booklet.

KEEN RIVALRY IS SHOWN BY TEAMS CHAMBER CONTEST

THE CIVIC DINNER

"Men and women of Medford desiring to attend the Civic Dinner at the Hotel Medford Monday night should make their reservations today, without fail, as the number is of necessity limited to 300 because of the dining room not being large enough to accommodate more than that number.

"The Civic Dinner is to be served on the eve of the four-day membership drive of the Chamber of Commerce, and an elaborate program has been prepared for the occasion. The principal speaker of the evening, Henry Gaines Hawn of New York City, will deliver his famous talk on "The Soul of Things," which is pronounced by those who have heard it, a masterpiece of logical oratory.

"Reservations will be made in the order they are received, and those who wait until the eleventh hour to make their reservations may be disappointed in finding all places have been sold when they do speak for them. The price will be $1.50 per plate. Make your reservation now. No reservations after 6 p. m. Saturday."

Harry L. Walthers, Chairman, executive committee.

Keen rivalry of a most friendly and commendable nature between divisions, team captains and members that are to take an active part in the enrollment of 400 new members for the Chamber of Commerce during the ensuing week has already sprung up, even before the opening guns of the campaign have been fired.

Ten teams of men and one team of women are now impatiently awaiting the "zero hour," when at the sound of the whistle the signal will be passed all the way along the line for the loyal and patriotic field army to go over the top in the four-day battle against civic drones and non-progressives.

Daily meetings are being held by captains with members of their teams and they are all bent on making the best showing possible in the big drive for members. Naturally, one team is to enjoy the distinction of being the banner team of the campaign, and each and every one of the lot is aspiring to that honor.

Some of the team captains have addressed personal communications to the members of their respective teams, and from the tenor of these letters it is very evident that energy, activity and the real old "pep" will feature conspicuously in the canvass that is to be made of the city for new members.

Following are copies of letters written by four of the different captains to their men, rallying them to the colors and preparing them for the big work that lies just ahead, and from which it is easily surmised there will be real competition:

Do you remember the old story they tell about the big battle with the Indians fought out on Table Rock?—Great story and some scrap wasn't it. Well, that battle compared with what is going to come off here next week won't resemble by comparison anything more than a school kids' shinnay game. We're going to wage war on the mossbacks and the non-progressives.

Let's see if we can't make the best showing of any of the teams when we hit the line next week. What do you say? Yours for a Greater Medford, FRANK FARRELL, Captain Team No. 1.

There are ten teams of loyal Medford citizens signed up for the Chamber of Commerce membership drive next week. You and I are on one of those teams. We are now in the trenches awaiting the zero hour. When the whistle sounds we'll enter the battle and do our part. So will all the other teams. But let's see if we can't make our team the banner organization of the entire bunch, and bring home the best results.

Yours for a Greater Medford, E. M. McKEANY, Captain Team No. 3.

I don't know what sort of a district our team is going to draw in the Chamber of Commerce membership drive next week, but regardless of where it may be located, let's jump in and see if we can't make it the best showing of the different teams.

The eyes of Medford are upon us, so let's do this job up good and brown. All together,—let's go! Yours for a Greater Medford, JOHN GOODRICH, Captain Team No. 6.

Our team in the Chamber of Commerce membership drive is going to bat as a pinch-hitter next week, and we must see to it that we deliver nothing short of a "homer."

With men like yourself, and the others on our team, there is no reason why we shouldn't be up with the top-notchers when the final reports of results are hung up.

Yours for a Greater Medford, RAWLES MOORE, Captain Team No. 10.

Who Makes the Tractor?

Before you buy any tractor you ought to know something about the organization behind the machine. The country is full of "orphan" tractors. For lack of capital or for some other reason the makers of these "orphan" tractors have quit the field and their owners are unable to get service and are left to shift as they may.

If you are wise you will buy a tractor made by some well-known and solidly established company that will stand back of your machine as long as it lasts.

We will be glad to have you investigate the standing, reliability and scope of the Cleveland Tractor Company, makers of the CLETRAC.

This Company is the largest manufacturer of tank-type tractors in the world.

It owns one of the most modern manufacturing plants in Cleveland, Ohio, located on 105 acres of its own land.

The CLETRAC was designed and the Cleveland Tractor Co., was organized by Rollin H. White who is one of America's best known automotive engineers. Mr. White is the President of the Company and with him are associated some of the most successful industrial leaders of Northern Ohio, and the Cletrac Manufacturing, Engineering and Marketing organization includes a group of picked men who are widely and favorably known in the farm machinery, automobile and truck field.
