KOLB AND DILL IN WET AND DRY AT PAGE TONIGHT

For those who love catchy, biting melodies of the kind which linger in one's memory long after hearing them, Kolb and Dill's latest north-provoking vehicle "Wet and Dry" styled a prohibition dramatic farce in a prologue and two acts, will find their craving satisfied to the fullest extent. "Wet and Dry" with the famous fun-makers in the chief roles and surrounded by a company of superior excellence comes to the Peace Theatre tonight.

Jean Hayez, famed as a writer of songs and musical productions, collaborated with Max Dill on the present production. Dill wrote the book and Hayez took care of the lyrics and music. Among the most appealing new offerings are: "Let's Pretend," song by Miss May Clay and Florence Gillette, "Beautiful Garden of Dreams" by Miss Lavinia Winn and Allen Walters, "I'm Glad I'm Irish" by Patsy Allen, one of the song-bird beauties of the show; "Everybody in the Town is Sober," a humorous song by Carl Bereh and last but not least, a specialty by the famous jazz orchestra entitled "It Rained Every Day Since the Country Went Dry."

The floral offerings were beautiful, considering the time of year.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett.

After I had written the Eaglets for The Medford Mail Tribune, Mr. Edgar White, one of Medford's jewelers, came in to spend the night and interest himself the next day hunting over our agate fields for agates. So Sunday morning, after eating a hearty breakfast and taking a lunch prepared by the hostess of the Sunnyside, he started in company of J. P. Goin, the agate king of this community, George West and William Jones, two of the forest rangers who are stopping at the Sunnyside while putting up a telephone line from trail to Medford, they started out to seek their fortunes, and when they returned, reported that they had had considerable success. Mr. Wicht makes a business of gathering agates, having them cut and polished and then mounting them. They succeeded in securing some fine stones.

Misses Ethel and Sadie Appleton of Medford came out in company of

Mr. A. J. Florey, Jr., and Glen Haley to attend the dance given in the dance hall here, and after the dance took rooms at the Sunnyside hotel, remaining until after dinner Sunday.

Professor A. L. Hasselton, who is teaching out about eight miles north-east of Botte Falls, came out Saturday evening, remaining until Tuesday with his family. He has a small school, two little girls and says that he is getting along nicely with them. The children and teacher, have to go down a quarter of a mile to the school house, where they find an up-to-date school with all modern conveniences including a fine modern heating furnace with plenty of wood.

D. P. Patrick who is working, carpentering on the Talent ditch came in Saturday evening on the Del Rio line and hurried on out to his home in the foothills, intending to reach there before dark.

Sunday morning we had our regular Sunday school on time, but our minister, Mr. Travato, did not show up and the consequence was we had no preaching. On inquiry I learned that he had gone to Medford and joined the United States cavalry, and when the Sunday Oregon Journal came out it contained quite a notice of him as being an expert equestrian and pistol shot. But he left us unceremoniously and the first that we knew of it came in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, with whom he had boarded while here, stating that he had joined the army and was on his way to Wyoming to a fort as his headquarters. He did not seem to succeed as a minister here, as he could not get the people interested enough to turn out and hear him. I am informed that he tried, during the late war, to enlist in the army, navy and marines, but was rejected on account of his height, as he was too short to fill the standard. We wish him success in his new undertaking.

Sunday was not as pleasant as could be wished, as it was rather chilly March weather, but we had quite a number of people here for dinner, beside our regular boarders, among whom were Nick Young and Miss Ruby Haley of Central Point, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nimen, daughter Virginia, and son, Craig, of Jacksonsville, Mildred, Thompson of Stanford university, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Satchart, Medford, Mr. G. M. Best, San Francisco, Bernard Tiekrow, of Medford.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Childreth, who have been stopping at the Sunnyside for some time past, have moved and come to housekeeping on the Willery orchard, Gordon going to work there for the summer.

Monday morning there was some stir on the street, as some of the dairy people came in early to bring their cream, and among them I noticed Mrs. Walter Meyers. She is making a specialty of the dairy and poultry business and when she asked the creamery man the price of eggs and he replied 28c a dozen, she replied that they better keep the eggs and eat them than sell at that price. With wheat at four and five cents a pound that it would not pay to sell.

Ed Cowdon was another who brought in his cream but the most of the dairymen are waiting until Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Neil of Derby was a passenger on the Medford-Eagle Point stage Monday and went on up home.

Mrs. Ida Lee Bush, representing Washington, D. C., was among the guests Monday at dinner. She is one of those affable characters that seem to make friends wherever she goes and soon has people interested in her work.

Mr. W. B. Butler, who is making his home with his son, W. E. Butler, about two miles above here, was also here for dinner Monday. The old gentleman is quite feeble, as he is nearing his 88th birthday.

Mr. Marshall and his two boys of Brownsboro, who bought the mills was here also Monday.

Mrs. Radcliffe was also a business caller Monday.

E. P. Hanby, one of our ex-soldier and Miss Violet Graham of Trail came in Tuesday, and remained until this Wednesday morning, when they went up home on the Eagle Point-Perist stage.

George McDonald, foreman on the Frank Rhodes farm, took dinner and went on to Medford, returning this morning.

Tuesday forenoon I was called to the phone by the sheriff's office and notified to be in Jacksonsville by 3 o'clock that afternoon to appear as a witness in a civil suit between Albert Clements and a Mr. Small over a collision between their two cars, so after enquiring around, I found that Frank and R. G. Brown and S. B. Holmes were to go also as witnesses in the same case, so managed to get a ride with them. Otherwise, I would have had to walk, as the jitney does not leave here until two o'clock and then I would have been landed in Medford and could not get there on time at any rate. (Suggestion: The next time any one is wanted, call a little earlier). But I went anyway and on the way I noticed that the grain that had been planted was looking better than I expected and the alfalfa was looking fine. I could not tell very much about the case, as there is such an echo in the court house that it is very hard for one to understand what it said, but we console ourselves that when Medford gets out of debt that we will have a new one, but how long that will be puzzles a prophet to tell.

George Loosley of Fort Klamath, and Fred Neil of Ashland came in after an absence of several days and resumed their places at the table in the Sunnyside. Mr. Loosley has been in here off and on for some time, buying an cattle for shipment to his ranch in Klamath county, and now has them turned out on the range north and northeast of here and he and Mr. Neil are looking after them until he gets ready to take them across the mountains to his ranch.

Another of our old landmarks has been removed. Mrs. Watkins, our nearest neighbor, has had her old barn that has been standing for years torn down and now the lot looks as though something had been lost.

Allison Allen of Spokane, a half-brother to John M. Allen of Derby, came out on the Medford-Eagle Point stage this Wednesday morning and went on up to visit his brother.

John L. Lane and wife of Derby came in and spent Tuesday night with us and Wednesday morning Mrs. Lane went on down to Ashland.

O. C. Walker, our deputy assessor, was a guest at the Sunnyside today for dinner and so was Mr. R. E. Martin of Medford, a representative of the Portland Flouring Mills and so was Carlie Norwick. He had recently returned from the Prospect country and reports a quantity of snow on the route of the Crater Lake highway between there and Union Creek.
