The 1920 fishing season opened today in Oregon and many Medford anglers, skilled and amateur, left the city this morning for a day's sport along the river, Bear creek and various other streams of the county. Practically no changes have been made this year in the Oregon fish laws. The season is open from April 1st to Nov. 30 in all the streams of the state. Trout to be taken from a stream must be not less than six inches in length, and the bag limit is 50 fish in one day or 25 pounds in one day.

Medford merchants are much interested in the store closing hour controversy on in Eugene. The proposal of 75 per cent of the Eugene merchants to close at 5 o'clock and the refusal of one prominent firm to line up with others, is causing a fight between clerks and owners of stores. One of the largest dry goods stores is holding out for a 5.45 closing hour.
