

CO. INTER CHURCH CONFERENCE TO BE COMMUNITY AFFAIR

"The county Inter-Church conference to be held at Medford on April 8 is in reality a community affair," said Rev. L. Myron Boozer, the county convener who is in charge of the meeting for this county. "It is going to be simply a get-together meeting of the Protestant churches, at which they will talk over their common problems and common aims. They will also examine the question of making the church, as a whole, a more vital medium in the various communities in this county."

"The task which the churches set before themselves is a public and a social task. The welfare and activity of the church is one of the most important of community undertakings, and the working together of the Protestant denominations, as exemplified in the Inter-Church World Movement, signifies the mobilization of Christian forces for a thorough-going and large scale treatment of these tasks. The addresses to be given at the county conferences will enable everyone to visualize more clearly and in concrete terms just what the churches' problems are, and thus enable us all to prepare for a direct and vigorous application of Christian principles to definite local issues."

"The financial campaign, the last week in April, is for the raising of a budget to meet needs which already have been examined and classified. The total inter-church budget represents the sum of the different denominational budgets. The county conference will bring home to the people of this county just what the inter-church movement means to do, as the Oregon conference at Portland brought home to the pastors of this territory, the purposes of this world project."

EASTER SERVICES IN TALENT CHURCH

The Easter services in the First Methodist Episcopal church at Talent were very much enjoyed by a large and appreciative congregation. All unite in saying it was the finest Easter service held in Talent for years. The church was handsomely decorated with wild flowers under the direction of Mrs. Morris, the wife of the pastor, assisted by Miss Madge Hacker. The choir rendered some very fine anthems and choruses. The Sunday school also took part in the service singing several songs. Mrs. Rechart favored the congregation with a solo. Mr. Bowman and son Ralph also played an offertory on the violin which was very much enjoyed.

Rev. C. G. Morris, the pastor, delivered a short but eloquent sermon and administered the sacrament of baptism, after which fifteen were received into membership in the church.

Strong Women

BY DR. VALENTINE MOTT.

Women and men too—are just as strong and healthy as their blood. Vigor and health come with good blood. Without good red blood a woman has a weak heart and poor nerves.

In the spring is the best time to take stock of one's condition. If the blood is thin and watery, face pale or pimply, if one is tired and listless, generally weak, a Spring Tonic should be taken. An old-fashioned herbal remedy that was used by nearly everybody 50 years ago is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made of roots and herbs and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If druggists do not keep it in tablet form, send 60 cents for a vial to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

OIL OPERATOR OF DENVER ENTHUSES OVER LOCAL FIELD

That the Vulcan Oil & Gas company's plan is the best development proposition ever offered investors is the opinion of Henry W. Clark, prominent oil operator and geologist of Denver and Tulsa, Okla., who stopped off here last Saturday, en route to his home from Portland, where he has been visiting relatives. Clark was taken over the various prospective oil fields of the valley and was enthusiastic over the outlook for bringing in commercial wells here.

"Your plan should prove attractive to Oregon investors," Clark told officers of the Vulcan company during his trip. "Your surface indications are good indeed; the fears expressed by some geologists that the oil may have been burned out are proven to be groundless by drilling already done; that I can state most positively. Of course, no man can say that your companies in the Rogue valley will succeed in bringing in a producer. Only actual drilling operations carried out in an intelligent business-like manner can determine that."

Clark was much interested in the development plan of the Vulcan company.

"Organized under your Blue Sky law which is very strict," he declared, "your company has gone ever farther than required of it to protect the interests of its stockholders. By placing the stock of the organizers in the hands of the corporation commissioner to guarantee the incorporators shall not profit until the investors have been paid back in full, you should have no difficulty in convincing the public of your good intentions. Then, too, by securing leases scattered about, all of the most favored spots in the valley, you give your share holders further protection."

Clark was interested too in the prospects for locating a supply of bituminous coal in the Sam's valley section.

"With coal outcroppings scattered over your entire valley," he said, "I can see no reason why a good grade of merchantable coal should not be uncovered at no great depth by a little intelligent prospecting."

The visitor was loud in his praise of the entire valley, its fertile fields, well-kept orchards and excellent climate.

When reminded that a blizzard was at the time raging throughout the middlewestern states, Clark said:

"If your companies succeed in bringing in a producer here, you will likely have to put up with me for good. Oil is my game. I am still too young to retire, but if it comes about that I can play the game here, you can count on me coming by the first train after the news reaches me."

Clark's tales of the excitement of the Burkburnett and Ranger "stampedes" following the bringing in of the first gushers there "listened" like fairy tales to some of his auditors who have never visited the oil fields.

"Ranger," he said, "was a sleepy, struggling, poverty-stricken village of 100 souls just 20 months ago. Today it is a city of more than 100,000. Such a transaction as $150,000 for a corner lot does not even create a ripple now. There are, it is said, more millionaires in Ranger now than there were inhabitants in July, 1918."

CARTOON COMEDY THURSDAY NIGHT

Strike up the band. Here comes "Father!" Don't know "Father"? Surely there must be something amiss in Denmark—we mean Arady—if one has not met, seen or heard about the most popular newspaper comic of modern times. Manager Gus Hill was or is rather the discoverer of this funniest of cartoon heroes, originated by George McManis and transplanted to the stage through the foresight and business genius of Mr. Hill. This season "Father" will be seen in an entirely new comedy concoction in three acts entitled "Bringing Up Father" with lyrics by Harold Wright and special music by Seymour Furth. Eighteen exclusive numbers have been provided along with plenty of specialties, features, situations, a distinct plot of continuity and action and a capable cast of thirty odd people, including a beauty chorus of sixteen young women who add both grace, talent and dignity to the occasion. This riot of laughter, song, melody, wit and charm will be the next attraction at Page theatre Thursday night, April 8.
