By one of those local weather freaks the light to heavy frost predicted for last night did not materialize altho conditions were threatening up to 9 o'clock when Frost Expert Young after carefully looking over the situation again gave forth the welcome word to the worried orchardists that they could go to bed as the minimum temperature would not fall below 34 degrees. The clouds that dispelled the frost did not clear away until about 6 o'clock this morning. But there is more worry for tonight as a heavy frost is predicted, and the barometer was still climbing this forenoon indicating coming clear and cold weather.
