Wearing overalls to reduce the heat of it, and sleep in haystacks to eliminate the room rent. Ride in the best auto money can buy, and save shoes for dancing.

Suffering humanity owes a lot to the New York Jew who peddles a patent medicine, that in one bottle removes corns, and in another cures toothache.

What could illustrate the unconquerable spirit of man in a higher degree than the North Carolina citizen who is struggling to secure the republican nomination for the presidency.

"Never Has to Call a Doctor—Bathes Internally"

Mr. J. E. McNeil, P. O. Box 217, Globe, Ariz., writes to the Tyrrell Hygienic Institute:

"I have been using the 'J. B. L. Cascade' for the past twenty-five years and call it our cheap family physician for the reason that I have never had to call in a physician to treat one of the family. What a pity more of the human race are not acquainted with the virtues of the Cascade in a family."

The "J. B. L. Cascade" cleanses the lower intestine its entire length and keeps it always free of poisonous waste.

Thousands testify that Constipation, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Biliousness, Headaches and all the many serious troubles which they cause are absolutely relieved and prevented by this Nature Treatment.

West Side Pharmacy will be glad to show you the "J. B. L. Cascade", explain its simple operation and will give you, free on request, an interesting little book by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a noted specialist on Internal Bathing for 25 years in that City. Clip this out as a reminder to ask for the booklet at your first opportunity.

A CRISIS FOR LABOR.

AMERICAN LABOR could well take a leaf out of the note book of British labor. At a recent meeting of organized labor in England it was voted to abandon the strike, and depend upon political action for the attainment of needed reforms.

One of England's foremost labor leaders in commenting upon this action said: "We have built up our power upon the strike. Under the deplorable conditions of a decade ago the strike was essential. But today the strike is a double-edged weapon, dangerous alike to the public and to labor. For with the world in its present condition of confusion and unrest, the one great necessity is constant and increasing production. The strike paralyzes production. No country can afford that. Labor can afford it least of all. For in the last analysis the success of every movement depends upon the support of public opinion. The public will no more tolerate economic revolution from within than it will tolerate armed aggression from without. The strike is economic revolution. If persisted in it means armed revolution, which can only result in the final defeat of labor, and a return to the unbearable conditions of oppression, from which we have so recently emerged."

There is sound sense in that. A labor leadership similarly enlightened is badly needed in this country at the present time. Every strike called at this time, with the people suffering from restricted production and consequent high prices, drives a nail in the coffin of labor's legitimate aspirations.

The people are fed up on strikes. Their patience with labor agitation is strained to the breaking point. Unless there is a radical change in the attitude of organized labor soon, the former public sympathy for the laboring man, so conspicuous in this country, will disappear entirely. And then an era of anti-labor prejudice will be ushered in, from which the entire country will suffer seriously, but from which labor itself will suffer most of all.

Organized labor needs a leader who can show them their danger before it is too late. Napoleon said there is a time to attack and a time to call roll, and Napoleon was a pretty wise tactician. The time has arrived for labor to call the roll and by considering the public interest, discover that going slow on the strike at the present time, is to its own selfish interest.

SUFFERING GERMANY.

THE HUNS are shot to pieces, the telegrams declare; things are not slick as grease is—disorder's everywhere; the peasant and patrician are both in sad condition; they're eating ammunition, there is no grub to spare. No useful wheels are turning, the church bells do not ring; no smithy fires are burning, no workmen's hammers swing; but gloom is all-prevailing, and wrath and bitter wailing; men are so busy railing they do not smile and sing. I ought to view with sorrow the troubles of the Hun, and I say I hope tomorrow will see his anguish done; and yet I see him sweating without a great regretting; he earned what he is getting, earned trouble by the ton. Had he but shown repentance for any crimes of his, had he received his sentence with a remorseful pliz, I might compose a ditty of condolence and pity, more generous than twitty, but as things are—Gee whiz! The Hun has been so sassy, so nerry and so smart, he thinks himself so classy, and greater-than-thou-art, that it is hard to view him with sympathy, be-shrew him! So let his woes pursue him until his change of heart.

Time to Remove Tree Bands and Destroy Codling Moths

All orchardists, who last season, at the suggestion of the government entomologist, used the barlap bands for trapping the codling moth larvae, and who allowed the bands to remain on the trees over winter, should at once remove them and destroy all hibernating larvae and transformed pupae. Care should be taken to destroy not only those found upon the bands but also those hidden between the crevices of the bark beneath the bands. During the past two weeks about one-third of the overwintering larvae have transformed to the pupal or chrysalid stage, and these often drop out of the bands and are lost. Later these pupae, and those larvae and pupae not destroyed, will transform to the codling moth. By the first of May nearly all of the larvae will have changed to pupae, and the effectiveness of the work of killing them in that stage will be materially lessened owing to the fact that a large per cent of them are lost in removing the bands.

In order to utilize time and labor to the best advantage, the bands may be replaced after the larvae and pupae have been destroyed. This saves an extra operation about the 15th of June, when the bands should be replaced. After June 15th the bands should be examined and the larvae destroyed every seven or eight days.
