

WISCONSIN SORE, REFUSES TO PLAY OHIO STATE AGAIN

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 6.—The break in Big Ten football relations between Wisconsin and Ohio State universities became more acute today with a statement from Coach John Richards of Wisconsin, intimating that he would resign if Ohio State is ever again put on the Wisconsin football schedule.

Thinly veiled charges of unsportsmanlike tactics at the Wisconsin-Ohio State game last fall constitute the main reason for Richards' declaration that "no team I coach will ever play Ohio State."

"Football is only worth while as an inter-collegiate when mutual regard and sportsmanship prevail. There has often been discernible in the middle west a disposition on the part of institutions just arriving athletically, to consider athletics a standard of excellence in the whole gamut of university duties.

"They indulge in a species of self-adulation and lose sight of many things essential. Visiting coaches are treated to insulting remarks, visiting players are subjected to abuse from the students; the visiting team is hedged on the side lines by a crowd wearing side line badges while vacant seats exist in the stands; the officials are insulted and browbeaten; the local press likes to ridicule the members of visiting teams and wax facetious about their nationality—all of which is perhaps a phase, but most conference universities have long since passed it. Wisconsin saw all this at Ohio last fall.

"Football is a fine game, but it is only a game. Wisconsin so regards it and keeps it subordinate to required university work and will allow its team no foolish notions or national aspirations or coast jaunts—and we could have had the latter."

WANT AN AIRPLANE? HERE'S ONE CHEAP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—To encourage the development of commercial aerial transportation and the training of civilians as airplane pilots for use in time of war, the navy department has authorized the sale of 125 coast patrol flying boats at about one-third cost price. It was announced today. The machines are of the HS-2L type, equipped with the 400 horsepower Liberty motors and capable of seating six persons.

The announcement of the sale said the boats would "afford an ideal means of quick, comfortable and safe transit for the business man from his business to his country home."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—A book, 700 years old, valued at $100,000 was placed in the University of Pennsylvania today for translation by Dr. William R. Newbold. It is said to have been written by the English monk, Roger Bacon, some time between 1216 and 1262 and is an exposition of the laws governing life. The volume, which is written upon vellum, is the property of Dr. Wilfred M. De Voynah an exile from Poland, who recently became a British subject.

PLAN TO SPLIT KLAMATH INTO TWO COUNTIES

KLAMATH FALLS, Jan. 6.—Surveyors "all be running county boundary lines down Fourth street—the farthest east allowable, down Fifth—before long if rumored plans of the Hot Springs factionists in the courthouse controversy ever materialize.

It became known today that one of the leading counsel for the county court has abandoned his attack along judicial lines and will again seek the people for a mandate with a petition with which to split Klamath county in two along a north and south line, will remain Klamath and the county east of the line will be known as Worden. The capitol of the former would be in the Main street court house, while the official seat of Worden county would be the Hot Springs building.

The "master mind" has not yet completed the details, it is said, but in a general way the line runs as follows: Dividing the city along either Fourth or Fifth streets the boundary would zigzag southerly from the city limits to take in all Worden county adherents possible through the valley, passing around Malin and including that fertile section in Worden. Northerly the boundary would be extended in a straight line from the city limits to Upper Klamath lake and the easterly shore of the lake would be the county line.

While the matter of division is still in an uncertain stage, inside information has it that if the inner county finds it practical the petition will be circulated shortly.

The division would probably have the effect of nullifying the efforts of certain Bonanza residents to lop off a part of the eastern territory and create a new county of "Equity" which a metropolitan paper, misled by a telegrapher's error, recently referred to as the "county of Inequity."

"If I happened to pass a dark house," McWhorter confessed to the police, "it worried me so when I got home that I could not sleep. Often I would get out of bed and go back and rob it."

BARTLETT PEAR LEADS BOSC IN OREGON RETURNS

SALEM, Jan. 5.—Sales of pears this season by the Oregon Growers Co-operative association will run close to half a million dollars. To be exact, the figure is $495,590.47.

The Bartlett, of course, is the best pear crop of Oregon, runs about as heavy as all other pear crops combined, for out of the half million sold this season, Bartletts were disposed of by the association valued at $241,996.97.

The Bosc pear, which seems to be quite a favorite in the east this season, ranks second in sales with a total of $78,211.65, while the Anjou comes third with total sales of $56,871.52. Sales of the Winter Nellis run a little over $14,000.00.

In spite of the fact that the pear crop this season was the largest ever known in the United States, the Oregon Growers co-operatively association, through skillful handling, sold the crop of its members for the highest prices ever paid growers west of the Cascade mountains.

Sales were made by the association by keeping a close watch on market conditions in the east, by keeping pears in the east in cold storage and placing them on the auction market when conditions were favorable. Also in withholding sales when the market was depressed. The New York market price on pears was topped for the season when Bosc pears sold for as high as $7.38 a box with an average of $7.09 for a car lot sale. These pears were grown in the Medford district.

The Anjou pear sold on the Chicago market at $4.71 a box extra tops, with an average of $4.54 a box for fancy. This was on a car lot that topped the Chicago market for the season. At a special sale a car lot of Winter Nellis broke the London market at $7.10 a box.

Pear growers who are members of the Oregon Growers Co-operative association have passed through a most profitable season, notwithstanding the fact that the crop was unusually large in this country and that financial conditions were most unsatisfactory, and with a falling market on almost every product of the farm.

Ten new state banks and 4 national banks were chartered during the past year, whereas two state banks have gone out of existence in that time—the Scandinavian-American bank of Astoria, through absorption by the Astoria National bank, and the Bank of Jacksonville, through failure, the first bank failure in Oregon since 1915.

While total deposits show a decrease of 8.1 per cent during the year, time and savings deposits show an increase of 11.7, there being a total of $85,814,101.73 in time and savings accounts at the time of the last call, as compared to time and savings deposits of $75,911,923 a year ago.
