Members of the Elks lodge from the far country sections of the county began to arrive in the city this forenoon to attend tonight's session of the lodge when past exalted rulers might well be observed with the past exalted rulers filling all the chairs. There will be initiation, and the fact that the lodge will discuss and vote on a vital matter of interest to every member will also tend to bring out an unusually large attendance. Each member will want to vote for or against the proposition that will be submitted.

Ed Hanley who is visiting here was in a kidding mood while in Portland the other day, an witness the following item in the Portland Journal: "E. B. Hanley, Alaska Sourlough, is at the Imperial for a few days. He owns three large salmon canneries in Alaska. He has traveled pretty well all over Alaska. "Yes," said Mr. Hanley, "during the past decade of years, while traveling over Alaska, I have seen thousands of moose, caribou and bear, but I am no hunter. I never shoot them. I attend to my business and let them attend to theirs. No, I do not even fish, though the streams are full of trout and salmon. I generally aim to go where I have started for, and haven't time to stop and fool with other matters. What about politics? What I would very much like to see is the men who have helped develop the country appointed to the offices up there. They understand the conditions and there are plenty of good men to fill all the offices in Alaska, without putting in broken down politicians from outside."

LARGE SHEEP DEAL IS CONSUMMATED

One of the largest sheep deals consummated in many months in this section was the purchase last week by the Santa Clara Valley Meat company of San Francisco of 1000 head of mutton from Wm. Lewis, the Rogue River valley sheep man, the price ranging from seven to seven and one-half cents, with immediate shipment. The sheep were fed for market and depletes the Lewis flock to approximately 4000. The same company is dickering with stockmen of the valley for heavy shipments of beef cattle. The coming of the California firm is a trade invasion of this field, heretofore largely held by Portland concern.
