

In Ye Olden Time

hoop skirts were worn by those who first asked the druggist for, and insisted on having the genuine Favorite Prescription put up by Doctor Pierce over fifty years ago. Dress has changed very much since then! But Dr. Pierce's medicines contain the same dependable ingredients. They're standard today just as they were fifty years ago and never contained alcohol.

Beauty depends upon health. Worry, sleepless nights, headaches, pains, disorders, irregularities and weakness of a distinctly feminine character in a short time bring the dull eye, the "crow's feet," the haggard look, drooping shoulders, and the faltering step.

To retain the appearance of youth you must retain health. Instead of lotions, powders and paints, ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

EAST OAKLAND, CAL.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at different times for over twenty-five years, and it has never failed me. One time I took it when troubled with inflammation and it soon helped me. At another time I took it for severe pains in my right side; the 'Favorite Prescription' again helped me out, and I was soon well and strong. I can always depend upon it."—MRS. A. E. LAWRENCE, 1241 Fifteenth Avenue.

KNIGHTS PYTHIAS GIVE BANQUET MONDAY NIGHT

At a regular meeting of the Tallman lodge, Knights of Pythias, Monday night forty-three candidates reached the summit of Pythian Knighthood, and were knighted by Chancellor Commander E. E. Gore. In speaking to this large class, Mr. Gore said in part: "That all good Pythians should sometimes employ introspection in order to ascertain how truly they live up to the obligations they assumed in becoming members of the order." He referred to the unretiring now filling the world, and reminded his auditors that now, as never before, was there need of brotherly love among men. Pythianism, he said should not be confined to the lodge room alone, but should be practiced in the daily life of each member in order that the world may know that the altruistic principles which the order inculcates, that the ideals for which it stands, are neither ethereal nor academic, but definite and practical and capable of being applied to everyday affairs. He concluded by calling Pythianism one of the greatest forces in the world.

On Monday evening, January the 23rd, at 6:30 p. m. the lodge will give a banquet in honor of the new knights and it is expected that there will be the largest attendance in the history of the local lodge. Captain Homer Reed is making great preparations to take care of hungry knights, and says that he will have a bountiful supply of Chesapeake oysters for the occasion.

At the Rialto
With several notable contributions to the screen already accredited to him, Lionel Barrymore has without a doubt made his finest performance for the silent drama in "The Devil's Garden," which opened at the Rialto theatre yesterday. That Lionel is the most versatile of the illustrious Barrymore-Drew family is demonstrated by his acting in this remarkable play, which is based on the well known work of W. B. Maxwell. He is ably supported in the leading feminine role by his wife, Doris Rankin, who has the part of Mavis, an upper servant in the household of Lord Barradine. The story is powerful in theme. It emphasizes the moral that unchecked temper and passion bring their own penalties.

At the Page
Charles Ray has registered another cinema triumph in his third picture from his own studio.

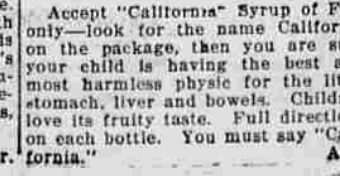

The production, "Nineteen and Phyllis," opened an engagement at the Page theatre yesterday matinee, providing a most wholesome and refreshing entertainment. It is a delightful story of youthful romance. Replete with humor and founded on the boyish romance of a nineteen-year-old youngster, it is a typical Charles Ray vehicle.

In "Nineteen and Phyllis" Ray makes something of a departure from his favorite role of a rube. He is seen as a town dandy, Andrew Jackson Cavanaugh, whose greatest aim in life is to dazzle with his gorgeous attire the eyes of the fair young miss whom he some day hopes to win.

Opposite Charles Ray in the leading feminine part is pretty little Clara Horton, who in the role of Phyllis gives a delightful characterization. Lincoln Stedman, the jovial fat boy of the films, has the role of Jimmy Long, Andrew's rival in love. The balance of the cast is made up of George Nichols, Cora Drew, Frank Norcross and DeWitte C. Jennings, who contribute their share.

The brush turkey of New South Wales is of especially delicate flavor and attempts are being made to domesticate it.

JACKSON COUNTY DELEGATION WORKING AS UNIT THIS YEAR

SALEM, Jan. 27.—(Special to the Mail Tribune.) By the very close vote of 39 ayes and 29 noes, the house Wednesday afternoon passed a resolution going on record as favoring some re-apportionment of legislative districts at the present session. This close vote indicates that this troublesome matter will prove one of the real bones of contention of the present session. The possibilities involved in such a question for political pulling and hauling, log-rolling and trading are almost unlimited, and it was on the ground of keeping this situation out of the present session that the opponents of the resolution made their fight. Both Representatives Carter and Sheldon voted against the resolution.

Drifting Match
The third week of the legislative session opens with a continuation of the drifting-match between house and senate. If the record of previous sessions is to be maintained, bills will have to come in faster during the next ten days than they have during the past two weeks. For the first time within the memory of old-timers, the number of bills introduced by the thirty senators exceeds the number introduced by the sixty house members.

There are two or three big fights looming ahead. One will be over the program for the development of the port of Portland, another over the re-apportionment of legislative districts and another over the tenure of office for Portland school teachers. For the first time in many sessions, highway and fish matters bid fair to be settled without serious controversy.

Carter is Busy
The Jackson county delegation is pursuing the even tenor of its way. Representative Carter is giving his time almost exclusively to the two important problems of the highway program and re-apportionment. There will be some changes in the highway laws, but it seems certain that the construction program will be maintained during the next biennium at about the same rate of progress as during the past biennium. What will come out of the re-apportionment scrap no one seems able to guess. Portland will certainly receive larger representation than at present, though probably not as much as her relative population would, strictly speaking, entitle her to. Mr. Sheldon has been looking after the Medford armory matter and two or three other questions of local interest. He has introduced a bill requiring county treasurers to report to their county courts monthly as to the banks in which county funds are deposited and the securities held against such deposits. He has also introduced a bill exempting highway bonds in the state from taxation, which, if it becomes a law, should make these bonds saleable at a somewhat higher price. He has also got through the house a memorial to the weather bureau asking that the frost-warning service during the critical spring season be maintained in this valley.

Free Text Books
One of the measures in which Senator Thomas was particularly interested—that of free text-books—was shot into the senate hopper by Senator Banks of Portland before Thomas got his measure whipped into shape. Senator Thomas is taking an active part in general state legislation and is waiting for the measures of local Jackson county interest to come over from the house when he will take care of them in the senate.

The compromise agreement respecting Rogue river fishing will probably pass both houses without contest. Senator Thomas and Representative Sheldon introduced identical bills covering this compromise and the Sheldon house bill has already passed.

OREGONIAN GIVES COMMENDATION C. OF COMMERCE

When a commercial organization does anything of which it is not particularly proud and newspapers comment upon such actions editorially that commercial organization should take its medicine just as any individual, but when something is done that will bring forth an editorial in one of the great daily newspapers of the state such as the action of the Medford Chamber of Commerce in being the foremost commercial organization in the formation of an association to protect the scenery along the highways, it makes the members feel proud of being connected with such a progressive body.

The following editorial comment appeared in the Oregonian of Jan. 26th: "The example cited by the governor, the Sausalito-Cannon Beach highway, is only one of a number which indicate conclusively that the time for action has come if an important heritage is to be preserved. Co-operation with the federal government seems to be assured, as is illustrated in connection with an order of the commissioner of Indian affairs, and there is plenty of evidence of local helpfulness. The Medford chamber of commerce, in forming an association to prevent further destruction of stately trees and natural shrubbery along the highways of Jackson county, has also set an example of pioneer community effort in this direction."

CHAMBER ENDORSES FARM B. DRIVE

Fred C. Hollbaugh of Talent, representing the Farm Bureau at the Medford Chamber of Commerce forum yesterday gave a very interesting talk as to the coming Farm Bureau membership campaign and asked for the cooperation of the business men of Medford to see that this be as successful as the drive which the Chamber of Commerce made in their own behalf last March. The members at the forum were unanimous in the endorsement of the efforts of the Farm Bureau to have Jackson county retained as having the largest and most progressive Farm Bureau in the state and to that end pledged their support.

BRITISH COURT MARTIAL A 15 YEAR OLD GIRL

CORK, Jan. 25.—Mary Bowles, a 15-year-old girl, was court martialled today, but sentence was deferred. The girl was arrested after she had been discovered crossing a field with arms in her possession, having dropped a Lewis gun in her flight from the police. She also was found to be wearing steel body armor, which was produced in court today, as were the arms. She remained silent at the trial and refused to plead.

MEDFORD LIBRARY SHOWS WONDERFUL GROWTH IN 1920

The most remarkable disclosures of the growth and importance of the Medford public library since the inception of county service were made by the librarian, Miss Clara Van Sant at the forum of the Medford Chamber of Commerce yesterday noon.

With the establishment of county units in the smaller incorporated towns and by furnishing books to the various school districts, the library has been the means of serving the residents of the county the same as residents of the city have enjoyed. Thru the county service the library board has found it possible to purchase 1700 new books during 1920 against some 200 new ones purchased in 1919 and every department has shown a remarkable percentage of increase in the service to the people.

An index of the various publications is on file and should any citizen desire to get information on any subject, the service of the librarian is solicited. Clayton L. Long of the Oregon Agricultural college who is in the valley conducting pruning demonstrations in cooperation with C. C. Cate responded to the call for a few remarks. C. C. Jiggs presided and Rev. D. E. Millard led the singing with Miss Vroman at the piano.

50 PEOPLE WANT TO GIVE DOG A HOME

Another splendid example of the Mail Tribune as an advertising medium, together with the unsuspected fact that there may be a scarcity of dogs in Medford and the valley is shown by the fact that about fifty Jackson county people want to adopt a Collier male dog, notwithstanding that the city and country seem to be full of all kinds of canine pets from the blooded variety to the lowly mongrels and scrabs—mostly the latter.

The following small advertisement, which was left by an unknown man in this office last Saturday evening appeared in the Mail Tribune on Monday and Tuesday: "Wanted—A good home for a fine large collier male dog, Box $1."

Hardly had the paper been off the press five minutes Monday when answers to the ad began to come in, and they have continued to come in ever since. That dog's owner when he appears to claim the answers will be surprised to find that he has so much reading matter to peruse, and undoubtedly from all the mass of applicants he will be able to choose a good home for his dog.

'LEND A HAND' IS REVIVED, GOOD SHOWING MADE

"Lend A Hand," the official publication of the inmates of the Oregon state penitentiary resumed publication after two months' suspension January 1, with "Prisoner No. 6435" editor. When the magazine suspended, a storm of protest arose, with the result that funds to finance were forthcoming.

In the leading editorial, under the title "Revived," the editor says, in part: "Of course, Lend A Hand does not expect full approbation from all the press, or from all the people, but when such newspapers as the Oregon Journal, with a broad-minded, full understanding of the trials, and tribulations, hopes, aims and purpose of the prison press, so highly compliment our past endeavors, (as it has on several occasions) we naturally feel that our efforts have not been entirely without avail, crude as they may seem to the critical mind.

"The reactionary press—the conservatives who condemn us as they condemn every man and every effort emanating from behind prison walls—oh, well; if the world were all alike, who would be left to stiffen the backbone of the other fellow? I am asking you. Who?"

In the editorial, which is well written, it is observed: "You can't get away from facts. We can't get away from anything here; the walls are high and the bars strong."

The magazine consists of 32 pages of well-edited material embracing all subjects from the governor's message to an extract from "Jim Janu Jems." The editor notes that there is a lack of "local news," but promises, as editors in and out, a full supply in the next issue.

WHAT THE AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION IS

The American Farm Bureau Federation is a league of the farm bureaus of the nation in which the common interests of all county organizations are united in the advancement of agriculture in the United States of America, economically, educationally and socially on a constructive basis. The American Farm Bureau Federation was organized March 4, 1920, at Chicago. Twenty-eight state Farm Bureau Federations were represented at this meeting.

The affairs of the American Farm Bureau Federation are directed and controlled by farmers through a board of directors consisting of one director and one additional representative from every state for each 20,000 members, or major portion thereof, and by an executive committee consisting of three members from each of the four regional districts of the United States, all of which officers and directors shall be actually engaged in farming.
