

FARM BUREAU IS C. OF COMMERCE RURAL DISTRICTS

There are a great many people in the towns especially who are asking the question, what is the Farm Bureau we are hearing so much of, and what are the purposes of its organization?

In order to answer it so the average town person may understand, the Farm Bureau is to the farmers what the Chamber of Commerce is to the business man in town, its purposes are educational. It functions in order to solve the many problems which the business farmer has to meet, it is fostered by the departments of agriculture and agricultural colleges and its membership is composed of farmers all over the United States. There is nothing revolutionary about it. It seeks to go about its mission in a quiet orderly manner, not trespassing on the rights or privileges of any class of society, on the contrary it seeks to work in harmony with all people, with the business man, to sit at his council table, to invite him to sit at the bureau's councils. The Farm Bureau recognizes the good work being done by the chambers of commerce throughout the country, and especially commends the good work being done by our chambers of commerce in both Medford and Ashland. And it is the desire of the Jackson County Farm Bureau to work in complete harmony and understanding with them.

Business men, town people and farmers are invited to attend the big rally meeting to be held at the Natatorium, Monday evening, January 31st.

RICKARD MAY STAGE FIGHT IN CANADA

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The proposal to hold the Dempsey-Carpenter world heavyweight championship bout in Montreal was discussed here today between Tex Rickard and two Canadian promoters, C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed, members of a dominion syndicate.

Rickard said he had been requested to consider the mission confidential and had not decided whether he would divulge the developments.

William A. Brady, who with Charles B. Cochran, recently withdrew from the bout, said today he was prepared, whenever requested, to assign his interest and that of Cochran, to Rickard.

PHILADELPHIA QUAKE ONLY SAND SETTLING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Earth tremors in the Philadelphia region last night probably were due to settling of the sands and not to a seismic disturbance in the opinion of Father Francis A. Tondorf, in charge of the seismic laboratory at Georgetown university here. The region was not in a seismic belt, he said today, adding that he saw no cause for alarm in the reported tremors. Similar movements had been felt previously due to settling of the sands, he said.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Oils were the prominent features of the intermediate session, domestic issues showing a firmer tone on the further advance of Royal Dutch. Shippings and sugars also were one to two points higher with secondary rails.

There were no material changes in the later dealings further than the improved strength in oils and Pacific rails, the closing was firm.

Trading in the stock market today was dull and narrow, interest centering mainly in foreign exchange and new railroad financing. Sales approximated 475,000 shares.

In its essential features the market followed its dull and uncertain course of recent days. After a further advance in the European oils as well as more pool buying of General Asphalt, American Can, General Electric and International Paper, the list began to fall off. Mexican petroleum was among the first to weaken. Among the specialties, Sears-Roebuck lost three points and other miscellaneous shares fell one to two points. The money market was unchanged with call loans at seven per cent, but the British rate of exchange made a further gain to 33.86 1/2.

Running in Car Tracks

It's Sometimes Justifiable As An Alternative To "Fierce" Pavement

HERE IS NO DOUBT WHATEVER that extensive driving in car tracks is injurious to the treads of tires, as it tends to groove the rubber and ultimately to wear it through and even to injure the fabric. Since the car weight is concentrated upon a very small area the destructive effect is rather rapid even when the rails are in a well preserved condition, while splintered rails may cut tires deeply and practically ruin them in a short time. However, there is something to be said in favor of "taking to the track," which is almost always resorted to because the roadway itself is in a very rough condition. When the pavement itself is in such bad condition as to subject the car to very severe jolts, and to violent vibration, such as is likely to loosen the fastenings of running-gear and other parts and to stress the whole construction destructively as well as to discomfort the passengers extremely and the rails are in good condition, it may be good judgment to use the rails as the less objectionable "horn of the dilemma." Furthermore, there is undoubtedly some saving in gasoline in running on the smooth iron rather than on the rough pavement. Tiremakers unanimously advise against the use of car tracks and they are perfectly correct from their standpoint, but there may be circumstances under which comfort and consideration for the car as a whole, are worth more than the resulting tire damage. The wisest course is to avoid, as far as possible, badly paved streets, with car tracks and thus escape the necessity of making a "choice between two evils."

should be equally spaced, a cylinder should fire each one-sixth of the cycle. One-sixth of 720° is 120° and thus the ignition is so timed that some one cylinder fires each 120° of rotation. The order of firing is arranged so that the vibrations may be minimized. (2) The smaller the space into which a given quantity of charge is compressed, the less cold cylinder-wall surface it will be in contact with and the less loss of heat will occur, when combustion takes place. (3) Horsepower equals the bore, in inches, squared, times the stroke in inches, times revolutions per minute, times the number of cylinders (four-cylinder), when this product is divided by 18,000.

CEMENT CLOGS RADIATOR

Il. P. writes: Since I put anti-leak cement into my radiator, the water circulation is nearly stopped up and the radiator gets hot. I have tried to clean it out with lye and with soda, without avail. Do you know anything that I can use more satisfactorily?

Answer: We do not know the composition of the cement that you used and cannot tell you what to use to remove it. You might as well take your radiator to a radiator specialist and see what he can do. These repairers have acid baths, means for applying pressure and other facilities for dealing with these cases.

ENGINE THEORY QUESTIONS

B. L. R. writes: (1) Please give reasons for the firing arrangement of six cylinder engines. (2) Why does increased compression pressure increase the efficiency of an engine? (3) State Robert's formula for calculating car-engine horsepower.

Answer: A four-stroke cycle engine is arranged to fire once in each two revolutions, that is, once in each 720° of rotation. With six cylinders acting on the same crankshaft, in order that each cylinder should fire once during each such period and that the power strokes

AIKEN—Word was received in Medford today of the death at the Zion hospital, San Francisco, Monday, January 24th of Squire Stanfield Aiken, the well known pioneer of Prospect, aged 66 years. Mr. Aiken went to San Francisco for an operation for cataract of the eye. The operation was performed last week and was successful. Shock and other complications however induced heart trouble, and it was to this ailment the well known rancher succumbed.

Mr. Aiken came to Jacksonville nearly 40 years ago from New Hampshire, living there for five years, when it was the active metropolis of the Rogue River valley. About 1885 he moved to Prospect where he settled on a tract of land, and had made his home there ever since.

It's Good for Children

Mrs. C. E. Schwab, 1007 14th St., Canton, Ohio, writes: "We use Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs and find it one of the best remedies on the market, especially good for children's coughs, as it does not contain any drug that is harmful." Serious sickness often follows lingering colds. Hard coughing racks a child's body and disturbs strength-giving sleep, and the poisons weaken the system so that disease cannot be warded off. Take Foley's in time. Sold everywhere.
