

MUSIC FEATURE OF MUSH-MILK BANQUET WED.

Everything is set for the Hoover Mush and Milk banquet which will be held at the Medford hotel at 8:30 tomorrow evening. This affair will be the opening gun for the European Relief campaign for funds for the starving children in central Europe.

The entertainment features are in charge of Mr. and Mrs. George Andrews. The high school girls quartet will render several numbers and the Premier Novelty orchestra is donating its services for the success of this banquet.

A ticket selling committee started out this afternoon and as every dollar paid toward the purchase price of a banquet ticket will go to the relief fund a very large sale is anticipated. The cost per plate will be one dollar and the novelty and entertainment furnished will be worth every cent of its cost.

The high school girls of the domestic science class are most enthusiastic over the opportunity offered them to serve this banquet and in that way assist Medford to secure its quota for the starving children. Emil Mohr is the largest single contributor to the success of this undertaking in that he has donated the use of his dining room and would not consider taking any money from the committee for the help he necessarily must retain after hours and for the washing of the dishes and table linen to be used.

An invitation is extended to the general public to attend this banquet and tickets may be secured at the Medford Hotel and at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters.

THE SHORT CHANGE METHOD EXPLAINED

The short change artist who flummoxed Leon B. Haakins, druggist, of 110 last Saturday afternoon, by rapid manipulation of bills, failed in similar attempts at the Optimo cafe and Meeker's, tried his game at Poley's drug store in Ashland late Saturday, according to Fred L. Colvig, but did not have any luck.

The method of the slicker was to make a small purchase, and produce a $20 bill in payment. When the clerk made the change, the slick person would casually remark that he thought he had paid with a one dollar bill, and did not care "to break a twenty," and suggest that the price be taken from the dollar bill. The storekeeper would agree to this, and the success of the plan depended on the bunciest getting the merchant befuddled, with a rapid fire comment on the weather, etc. In the manipulation the one dollar would be substituted for a ten dollar bill. The gent always chose a busy hour for his work, and as soon as he netted his profit departed.

MRS. HARDING SURRENDERS TO ARMY OF MOVIE MEN, REPORTERS AND MODISTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Warren G. Harding, wife of the president-elect, was simply attired in a black satin frock, trimmed with steel beads and black chenille as a battalion of newspaper folk, artists and writers for fashion magazine descended upon her sun-flooded hotel apartment today.

With visible reluctance she consented to pose for at least forty motion pictures and "bills" before the newspaper correspondents were allowed to pour out their volleys of questions.

"I can't understand why anybody should place his face before a camera," she observed after expressing concern that the pictures might not turn out well.

All efforts to ascertain when she would go shopping along Fifth avenue proved futile. She would only hint that arrangements had been made for showings by certain modistes in her apartment.

The groups of newspaper men, women writers and camera men, clustered about the lobby and on the sidewalk in front of the hotel, attracted such a crowd of curious persons that two policemen were summoned to keep the sidewalk traffic moving.

Later two modistes coming from Mrs. Harding's suite announced with triumph that she had purchased two chiffon tea gowns, one of blue and the other of an orchid shade, touched with Nile green and gold, with a girle of orchid brocade. Two milliners were admitted to the apartment as the modistes departed.

At the Rialto

As they entered the Kia Kia village the women folks, their naked bodies gashed and slashed and seared from head to foot with weird savage insignias of brutality, constricted with marks of adornment, raced off into the dense jungles.

The savage warriors, their talon-like teeth glittering in contrast to their blood red lips and purplish gums arose and assumed threatening attitudes.

They will ask the government to fix the status of those refugees who are disseminated through Europe but more especially in France.

In Judge Taylor's court this forenoon the preliminary hearing of Carl Dusenberry, the soft drink establishment proprietor of Gold Hill, was begun. George M. Roberts, former county prosecutor, attorney for Dusenberry, filed a demurrer to the effect that the complaint was legally faulty which was combated by Assistant County Prosecutor George Coddling. The case was continued by Justice Taylor in order to have the attorneys file written arguments.

In the meantime Dusenberry is at liberty on $100 bail. The charge against him is that of having intoxicating liquor in his place of business in the shape of some hard cider.

KNIGHTS PYTHIAS TO BUILD NEW MEDFORD HOME

The members of Talleman Lodge, Knights of Pythias assembled at the lodge room Monday evening at 6:30 to partake of an oyster supper, celebrating the recent drive for membership which has resulted in adding at least 75 new names to the roster. Discussion of building a Pythian home and other matters resulted in the omission of part of the program, which was quite a disappointment to many.

However, with a membership of 352 and 25 on the waiting list, it is absolutely imperative that steps be immediately taken toward securing a home. Pythian knights with their peculiar confidence know not the phrase "can't be done," hence he it known to the world in large type that the Pythian home will be built.

REPORT FROST SERVICE TO BE MAINTAINED

The Fruit Growers' league of Medford has been advised by Senator McNary that the Rogue River valley is to have a frost service, provided by the United States weather service, as of yore. The service has been discontinued, but fruit growers in the vicinity of Medford protested so strongly that the agricultural department at Washington has decided to yield to their wishes.—Portland Journal.
