The Screen

Oh Boy! Some Stunts in This "Love Expert" Choosing a semi-blind man as the mate for an old maid, and a paralyzed woman with an ear-trumpet to be the bride of her elderly father, were among the achievements of Babs Hardcastle, played by Constance Talmadge in "The Love Expert," the Emerson-Louis screen comedy, which will be shown at the Rialto theatre, beginning tomorrow matinee.

Story by Famous Novelist "The Turning Point," is an adaptation from Robert W. Chambers' novel of the same title and Miss MacDonald, declared to be the most beautiful woman on the screen, gives a splendid interpretation to the role of Diana Tennant haunted by an untrue rumor of the past, in love with a society idler, and endeavoring to ward off the distasteful attentions of a wealthy man who would willingly bring an unjust disgrace upon her.

Katherine MacDonald was last seen here in "Passions' Playground" in her latest feature, the management of the Page theatre declares that the splendid chances for emotional acting and novel touches of comedy relief stamp "The Turning Point" which opens a three day run tomorrow matinee, as probably the most interesting story Miss MacDonald has yet appeared in.

Koeb & Dill Many new novelties and a complete new production on a most elaborate scale surround the two popular stars, Koeb & Dill, and with their own symphonic jazz orchestra, octette of solo singing girls and a play like "The High Cost of Loving," a business that will record breaking will no doubt greet the popular comedians on their visit at the Page theatre, Sunday, Feb. 20th. Seat sale next Friday 12 o'clock.

LINCOLN DISPLAY IN CHICAGO SHOWS MAN'S SIMPLICITY

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 12.—Abraham Lincoln is shown again as one of the plain people at the Chicago Historical society this week.

To its already fine Lincoln collection the society has added on this anniversary, for the first time, some remarkable bits of Lincoln's environment that give glimpses of his life.

Most illuminating perhaps among these is the new pew that Lincoln occupied, in the Presbyterian church at Springfield, before he left Illinois' capital to go to the White House. The rough bench looks as if it might have been made from the rails that he split in youth. No plainer, commoner, more substantial bench could be built for a church.

The pew probably was never painted. At any rate it shows no sign of paint today, but stands like a product of the carpenter that had gone straight to the church. It is a bench that without regard to looks, could be doing its duty for several more half centuries.

Nearby is a chair that Lincoln used while he was reading law. It is one of those bleak office chairs of long ago, sure enough companion piece to the pew, simple, worn and still good for a long term of hard service.

Close at hand stands a book case made abroad for Jefferson Davis, the president of the confederacy. Rather ornately carved, it seems quite unlike Lincoln's home bookcase, which also is on display here today. This is another of the plain pieces common in the day, and now sought after. But that there was comfort and elegance of a quiet nature in the Lincoln household may be attested by the handsome mahogany and haircloth couch from Springfield.

Robert T. Lincoln, the president's only living son, pays the Chicago Historical society a visit from time to time. He has pronounced the best likeness of his father a little known portrait that has recently come into possession of the society and is hanging here, this Lincoln's birthday, for the first time. The scene is a ship's cabin, where Lincoln is listening to General Sherman tell of his march to the sea. The painting is by C. P. A. Healy, one of the noted artists of the day. Robert T. Lincoln has had a copy of his father's figure made for his home in Washington.

The bed on which Lincoln breathed his last, together with hundreds of bits intimately associated with his life, have recently come into the hands of the society. These all are from the collection of the late Charles F. Gunther, the Chicago candy man.

For years and years Mr. Gunther worked with unflagging energy until he has gathered what Miss Caroline M. McLivaine, librarian of the Chicago Historical society, terms the most remarkable private collection in the country relating to American history.

Between Chicago and Springfield, Illinois has the fullest collection reminiscent of its greatest "favorite son."
