The city government has a man at work painting the warning "Do Not Park Here" in the ten-foot strip on each side of the fire hydrants on Main street and a block distant on each cross street from the Page theater to Washington school. From now on the ordinance prohibiting the parking of a car or other vehicle within ten feet of a fire hydrant will be strictly enforced. Similar signs are being painted in front of the theatre entrances and other places of amusement, and violation of this parking ordinance carries with it a $10 fine for the first offense.

Anderson was at once hurried to the Sacred Heart hospital, where it developed his hurts consisted of minor cuts and surface bruises, by Mr. Taylor and O. V. Myers who was riding with him. The Taylor car was going west on Main street just as a motor truck cut in onto Main street from South Front, and a third car was approaching from North Front street. Mr. Anderson was crossing on the sidewalk from the chamber of commerce to Brown & Brown's corner, and stopped suddenly, thinking the truck was coming straight ahead, and the Taylor car, which was compelled to cut the corner behind the truck, struck and knocked him down.
