LIBERTY TO ALL THEME OF COOLIDGE

Incoming Vice-President Lays Stress on Rights of Minor- ity in His Inaugural Address —Vice-Prest. Marshall De- livers Eloquent Tribute to His Country.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Following is the full text of the inaugural address of Vice President Coolidge:

"Five generations ago there was revealed to the people of this nation a new relationship between man and man, which they declared and proclaimed in the American constitution. Therein they recognized a legislature empowered to express the will of the people in law, a judiciary required to determine and state such law and an executive charged with securing obedience to the law, all holding their office not by reason of some superior force but through the duly determined conscience of their countrymen.

"To the house, close to the heart of the nation, renewing its whole membership by frequent elections, representing directly the people and reflecting their common purpose, has been granted a full measure of the power of legislation and exclusive authority to originate taxation.

Rights of Minority

"To the senate, renewing its membership by degrees, representing in part the sovereign states, has been granted not only a full measure of the power of legislation but, if possible, far more important functions. To it is entrusted the duty of review, that to negotiation there may be added ratification and to appointment approval. But its greatest function of all, too little mentioned and too little understood whether exercised in legislation or reviewing, is the preservation of liberty. Not merely the rights of the majority, they little need protection, but the rights of the minority, from whatever source they may be assailed. The great object for us to seek here, for the constitution identifies the presidency with the senate, is to continue to make this chamber, as it was intended by the fathers, the citadel of liberty. An enormous power is here conferred, capable of much good or ill, open it may be to abuse, but necessary, wholly and absolutely necessary, to secure the required result.

"Whatever its faults, whatever its human imperfections, there is no legislative body in all history that has used its powers with more wisdom and discretion, more uniformly for the execution of the public will, or more in harmony with the spirit of the authority of the people which has created it, than the United States senate. I take up the duties the people have assigned me under the constitution which we can neither enlarge nor diminish of presiding over the senate, agreeably to its rules and regulations, deeply conscious that it will continue to function and harmony with its higher traditions as a great deliberative body, without passion and without fear unmoved by clamor, but most sensitive to the right, the stronghold of government according to law, that the vision of past generations may be more and more the reality of generations yet to come."

Marshall's Farewell

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Following is the text of the address of Vice President Marshall on his retirement from office:

"Very shortly I shall have ended my official life as the constitutional presiding officer of this body. That moment, when it arrives, will not mark my demotion into the ranks of the average American citizen for I never arose above them.

"I sprang from the loins of men who helped to lay the foundations of the republic. At my birth my father placed upon my baby brow the coronal of a free born American citizen. In my youth I was taught that if I wore it worthily no prince or potentate nor electorate could add to or detract from the honor of that royal coronet.

"I may have faltered but I have tried to keep the faith. I have never doubted that, so far as the principles of civil government are concerned, the pillars of Hercules rest upon the declaration of independence and the constitution of the United States. To my mind there is no beyond. The forms under which the principles of the republic are administered may need changes to meet changing conditions but the underlying idea does not, for truth is unchanging and eternal. What was so when the morning stars sang together will be so when the Angel of the Apocalypse appears.

"I venture to express this much of that idea: A government dedicated to the inalienable rights of man to life, to liberty, and to the pursuit of happiness can find its perfect accomplishment only in republics brave and strong enough to rise above the ambitions, passions and prejudices of individuals and groups. Representative government was intended to guarantee this inalienable right of men thru the enactment and enforcement of laws calculated to preserve and promote equal and exact justice to all men. Religions die because priests mumble their creeds but have no faith in their gods. Governments go to wreck because their statesmen shout aloud their shibboleths but let a friendly enemy pass the word.

Change of Government

"I freely grant the right of this people to change our form of government and to adopt other basic principles but, if it is to be done, let it be done decently and directly so that all of us may know it. The old faith has already too many sleek and smiling Joabs asking of it, 'is it well with thee my brother?' While the old order endures let representatives represent the old ideas. Let it be understood that they are not mere bellhops, subject to calls for legislative cracked ice every time the victims of a debauch of greed, gambling or improvidence feel the fever of frenzied need.

"The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. It is of minor importance who holds the wealth of the nation if the hearts of all its people beat with true historic American throbs. The clothes may mark but the clothes cannot make the gentleman. The economic rehabilitation of America is of vast moment but the rehabilitation of the ancient faith which upheld the ragged continentals, emerged in pristine glory from the throes of civil war, and hurled its smiling and undaunted face against the representative of tyranny upon the fields of France, is a greater work.

What "My Country" Means

"It is enough, perhaps too much. Who am I to suggest, even with shame-faced timidity anything to you. For eight long years crowded with events which have forever changed the currents of the world's history I have been with you. I come to the end of them with a feeling of heartfelt gratitude to you all for those little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and charity which have marked your friendship and good will. You have been good to me. The ardor of your friendship will sweeten any air that I breathe. None can wish for a kinder fate than I would give you if I were omnipotent. I go but I remain, I leave with the same inarticulate cry in my soul with which I came to you: My country. It is no new unusual cry for the American but it has, I fear myriad concepts. To some it means broad acres and fertile fields, to some opportunity for personal preferment to a thoughtless few, the right to utter every vagrant word which finds lodgment in a mind diseased; to the half educated that democracy should be governed as soon by the infant's cry as by the prophets' warning. But to me it is but the composite voice of all the good and wise and self sacrificing souls who trod or tread its soil, calling for that liberty which is law-enforced, preaching that doctrine which seeks not its own but the common good and, above all, warning us by the memory of the dead and the hope of the unborn to close our ears to the mouthings of every peripatetic reformer who tells us that the way to sanctify the republic is to remove every landmark which has hitherto marked the boundaries of national and individual life.

The Lord of Justice

"It is no new religion we need. Our creed should be: One lord, one faith, one baptism—the lord of justice, who was with Washington at Valley Forge, Grant and Lee at Appomattox, Pershing on the fields of France the faith that under a republican form of government alone democracy permanently can endure; the baptism of that spirit which will not be content until no man is above the penalties and no man beyond the protection of our laws.

"Let him who goes and him who stays remember that he who saves his life at the loss of his country's honor, loses it and he who loses his life for the sake of his country's honor, saves it."

Jones' Saturday Specials and Free Delivery

Knocked in last week's paper. We know this was meant for us because we are the only store that sells as cheap as the "Trot around and help yourself stores," besides giving the people free delivery.

THE SHOE FIT,—SO WE PUT IT RIGHT ON

Here's what they said—"Those who bought Saturday paid the same as those who bought Friday. Those who bought this week are still paying the same." Right there is the whole trouble. They're asleep. Their prices remain the same all week, but not so at Jones, because prices are dropping on groceries every day, and Jones prices are too. No wonder they had time to count their customers—while Jones' phones were ringing continually and his store full of people, getting the benefit of his

LOW PRICES AND FREE DELIVERY

This is the way some people TRY to run a store: "If you want to trade with us, come in, run around and gather up your own groceries, get them home the best way you can, unless you want to pay us extra for delivering—for we intend to pocket every cent of profit we make. All we want is your money. We give no service in return." Not so with Jones—We give free delivery and service,—coupled with low prices. In fact, that ad reminded us of a mountain trout trying to fight a full-fledged salmon.

Why Our Welding Pays

First, because oxy-acetylene welding as we do it gives to a piece of metal the same or greater strength than it originally had. Second, because it is cheaper to mend the old than buy the new, if you can get the same service out of it. Is this not logical?
