

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmit (double strength), and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dripping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial. Adv.

A. G. CLARK SPEAKER FORUM TOMORROW

An opportunity will be given the members of the Medford Chamber of Commerce to hear what the Associated Industries association of Oregon has on its program for the development of the industries of the state, as their manager, A. G. Clark of Portland, will address the forum tomorrow noon.
To know of the activities of the Associated Industries will be exceedingly interesting and especially so to the merchants, who are requested to make every effort to be present.
The forum will be held at the Holland hotel at noon and the privilege of attending same is extended to the merchants of the smaller communities in Jackson county. No formal invitation is being extended to the merchants outside of Medford and therefore, this notice must be considered sufficient evidence of their being welcome.

SPRAYING EXHIBITION AUTO CAMP GROUNDS

The two days school in orchard culture and disease control conducted by Prof. Clayton Long, horticultural extensionist of the O. A. C., and County Agent Cate began at 10 a. m. today with a spraying demonstration at the city auto camp grounds, which continued all day, all the types of sprayers being exhibited and worked. Many orchardists, especially those contemplating purchasing sprayers, dropped in on the demonstration throughout the day.
The second session of the school, to begin tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock in the public library, will consist of discussing sprays, all kinds of phases of disease control problems, soil management and orchard culture, with talks by Prof. Long and Mr. Cate. All orchardists are urged to attend.

BIG FURNITURE SALE STARTED WITH A BANG

The big removal sale of furniture, stoves and house furnishings started off with a bang today. People were waiting when the doors were opened and the stores on South Fir street and West Main were crowded all day. The reductions of 20 to 50 per cent on all goods, mixed with the liberal use of printer's ink proved a drawing card, and the people responded. There are hundreds of bargains yet, the sale will continue but don't put off making your visit to the stores.

Johnson in Good Trim.
W. H. Johnson, former president of the defunct Bank of Jacksonville, made his first public appearance Monday afternoon, since his arrest last August, when the doors of the bank were closed, at the trial of Myrtle Blakeley, former county treasurer, charged with malfeasance. He appeared as a witness for the state, attracting much interest among the court spectators. Before being called to the stand, he sat with his attorney, Herbert K. Hanna, in the space reserved for lawyers, and seemed light-hearted as he talked with Sheriff Terrell and his counsel.

Johnson wore a blue serge suit, and though he has been confined for many weeks in the county jail, he wore a rosy, and his step brisk as he walked to the witness stand. He was in the pink of physical condition apparently.

On the witness stand he was serious and answered all questions freely and clearly, several times requesting that Prosecutor Rawlen Moore repeat them, so he could better understand them.
Johnson's testimony concerned the issuing of three drafts for $90,000 at the request of County Treasurer Blakeley in April, 1920 to cut down the county deposits in the Bank of Jacksonville. The drafts were all dishonored. Asked regarding the financial condition of the bank during the period mentioned in the indictment against Mrs. Blakeley, he replied without reticence that "he was unable to say."

Johnson's trial has been placed as the next to the last case on the present calendar.

W. H. Johnson, former president of the Bank of Jacksonville testified at the Monday afternoon session of the circuit court hearing the case of Mrs. Myrtle Blakeley, former county treasurer, charged with malfeasance in office in connection with the failure of the bank. He was called by the state to identify records and statements, the introduction of which brought forth a series of objections from the defense, with exceptions to the rulings of the court.

In response to queries Johnson said the bank "would have paid the amount of county deposits with difficulty," and that the treasurer reduced and increased the county deposits at various times.

On cross examination Johnson said that the deposits were increased by Mrs. Blakeley upon his solicitation and that he gave drafts for $90,000 on a New York bank to protect the treasurer, but the drafts were not honored. He also said that the defendant insisted on having the drafts. In soliciting the deposit of county funds the witness said he addressed notes to Mrs. Blakeley, and came to the court house to get the deposits.

Regarding the securities offered, Johnson said they amounted to $11,000 and "were good."

Bank Examiner Knew
Witness testified that Superintendent of Banks W. H. Bennett knew of the dishonoring of the drafts, and wrote a letter regarding it. Honoring of the drafts witness said, would have reduced the county fund on deposit to about $10,000. The draft transactions took place in May, 1920, and were issued in response to the defendant's plea for a reduction of county funds.
Johnson while on the stand spoke in a low tone, and was a subject of keen interest to the jury and a large crowd of spectators, mostly women.
At the opening of the afternoon session the state recalled E. M. Wilson for testimony relative to figures and statements in the treasurer's books submitted as evidence.

Mrs. Blakeley on Stand
Mrs. Blakeley took the stand in her own behalf, and told of transactions mentioned in the indictments. She denied any pecuniary remuneration and while testifying spoke hurriedly at times in her anxiety to get her viewpoint before the jury.
Mrs. Blakeley testified that before she resigned last April she asked Mr. Johnson to make arrangements for a reduction of county funds, as it was getting too large. On cross examination the witness said the drafts were "held up" for a few days. Johnson, she said, was making arrangements to go east to attend the Interchurch Movement conference. The witness said during her tenure of office she knew the exact condition of her office, but owing to the shortage of clerical help she was several months behind with her ledger posting. She testified that she filed regular reports with the county clerk showing cash on hand and where the money was deposited for the inspection of county court. Mrs. Blakeley was the last witness in the case.

Florey is Assailed

In his closing plea to the Jury Attorney Gus Newbury maintained that the material allegations of the indictment had not been proven "by a single syllable of evidence—not one"; also "that there was not a lot of evidence to show that Jackson county would lose a single dollar."

"Why did the county clerk on the witness stand volunteer testimony? It looks mighty peculiar. Is he trying to protect somebody? Are they trying to make this little woman the goat? Counsel also called attention that the assistant bank superintendent had been asked any questions regarding the assets and liabilities of the Bank of Jacksonville.
Prosecutor Moore devoted his plea to a review of the evidence, and emphasis of the duties of the treasurer and the maintenance of the claim that the defendant is responsible for the conduct of her office, and not other county officers.
The prosecutor said the fact that the defendant was a woman did not "lessen her responsibilities," and that he was "prosecuting in no spirit of vindictiveness."
