

MIRACULOUS CURE OF TALKING GIRL

The case of Miriam Rubin, the 8-year old "Talking Girl," was studied over the nation and was a mystery to the schools of medicine. Little Miriam's wild babbling has ceased and she has now become as other little girls.

"The 'Talking Girl,' for by this name the little Miriam Rubin became nationally known, was stricken without warning by a strange malady on Feb. 4. She was so affected that she talked without cessation—night and day—for ten days.

The family physician was called, and sedatives administered but to no avail. Another physician was called in consultation, but still the little child continued her talking and the wild tossing of her arms and legs.

Four eminent consultants from Chicago were called in turn; blood tests and other examinations were made, but to no purpose. The talking continued and the wild movements of her limbs did not cease.

The attention of the whole world was drawn to the fight being made to save the life of the babbling youngster and cures were suggested by the scores from all parts of the world.

Hour after hour they requisitioned the lore of the world of science, bending every effort toward stilling in sleep the voice of the small sufferer. But success in sleep was not attainable.

"Daily the child became weaker. The specialists in attendance admitted they were baffled and hope of saving the girl dwindled."

At this point Dr. Berger, a chiropractor, was called in for consultation on Saturday evening, Feb. 12. Upon examination he found the second cervical vertebra to the right. Dr. Neshitt, the family physician, upon having his fingers placed where Dr. Berger's were, readily detected the subluxation and agreed as to the diagnosis.

A chiropractic adjustment was made of the second and fifth cervical vertebrae, which was repeated at 9 o'clock that evening.

That night the little sufferer rested better than she had since the beginning of her "strange malady."

Dr. Berger repeated the adjustment the next morning, following which the child fell into a natural sound sleep of one hour's duration, the first rest from the ceaseless talking for nine days. That evening was passed in another restful sleep, and the babbling talk now rapidly abated and entirely ceased on the third day of chiropractic treatment, and the child now made a rapid recovery.

Papers have spoken of this case as "miraculous," physicians have referred to it as "remarkable," others have spoken of it as "wonderful."

"There is nothing 'miraculous' or 'wonderful' about it," says Dr. Hedges of this city, "to a scientific chiropractor or to one especially familiar with nerve distribution. It is more miraculous that the principles of chiropractic were ever discovered."

"Even greater cures are being accomplished every day," says Dr. Hedges; "for instance a case diagnosed as cancer by two prominent physicians and an operation advised, was brought to me. This case was completely cured by one adjustment of the fourth dorsal vertebra."

MISS M'SWINEY SISTER OF IRISH MAYOR IN CITY

"The good American citizens are in sympathy with the Irish republic," smilingly said Miss Mary MacSwiney to the crowd of about 200 people who had gathered about the rear platform of the last car of the Shasta train this forenoon to catch sight of the sister of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, Ireland, who is still wearing mourning in memory of his tragic death.

Miss MacSwiney, who is campaigning under the auspices of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic with her secretary, Miss Katherine Flannigan, is en route from San Francisco, where she addressed a crowd estimated at 15,000 in the civic auditorium on Thursday, to Portland where she will speak at the auditorium Sunday night.

The two ladies were met by Mayor C. E. Gates, representing the city of Medford, and a delegation of local sympathizers at Ashland when the train reached there this forenoon, and hurried into an auto and escorted to Medford, reaching here just a moment or two before the train arrived, which they at once boarded.

The reception here was entirely informal and there was no speech making, but many sympathizers with Ireland's cause shook hands with Miss MacSwiney and her secretary who carried a large bouquet, which had been presented to the former by the local reception committee.

Miss MacSwiney found time to express the keynote of her speeches to sympathizers on the auto trip here from Ashland, as follows: "We want the recognition of the United States, which today holds the leadership among nations, and if today the United States will set a good example, within one month every country in the world will follow."

In the reception delegation which escorted Miss MacSwiney from Ashland were Mrs. J. P. Reddy, Dr. R. J. Conroy, Father John Powers, Mrs. Pinnerhan and Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wolf of Ashland.

OBITUARY

DEAN—W. J. Dean was born in Bristol, Addison county, Vermont, in July 9th, 1843, the youngest of a family of six, three boys and three girls.

When fifteen years of age, accompanied by his oldest brother, he journeyed to Boston; shipped on a whaling vessel.

In the fall of 1860, set out for California via Isthmus of Panama, and arrived at San Francisco Jan. 3rd, 1861. In the spring of 1863 went to Victoria, B. C., to investigate the Caribou mines, and almost immediately returned to Portland, Ore., and thence via Dalles to the John Day mines. Through an acquaintance formed with H. W. Scott he entered Pacific university at Forest Grove, and spent three years, as pupil and teacher in the university, and as teacher in schools in the vicinity during vacations.

Ill health compelled a change of climate, and Mr. Dean then journeyed by horseback, 1100 miles, mostly along the coast, to southern California where he taught school two years. In 1869 he returned to his old home in Vermont, and engaged in the coal business with his brother, operating their own canal boats.

In the spring of 1870, the spirit of the middle west possessed him and he took up a homestead at Concordia, Kansas, but the love of the far west again gripped him, and in 1874, he settled in California, near Santa Cruz. Three years later found Mr. Dean about to enter Tralls Medical college in New Jersey. His ambition to graduate from this institution vanished when it closed its doors, and the student transferred to a medical school at Danville, N. Y. This interested him only a short time, and the following year again found him for the third time in southern California. A new business venture with an old Kansas friend took him to Astoria, and thence to a small island one hundred miles or more north of Seattle. This venture only held him for a short time, after which we find him teaching at Oak Grove, Oregon, for two years; then from 1880 to 1882, near Wallawa, Ore., thence to Seattle.

The next few years were taken up in lecturing on electricity and magnetism, and later with stereopticon. The field of labor covered from Seattle down through the Willamette valley, and this work was followed by lectures on science and free thought. This work taxed his health greatly, and he returned to his old profession of teaching in 1884 by accepting a school at Talent, Oregon, where he taught two terms.

In the summer of 1886, he was married to Mrs. Lula Robison, and since then he has engaged in farming. The event of his marriage stabilized his life. From then his life story can best be told in his own words. "This brought my roving to a check. Life here since then has been uneventful, but pleasant."

Funeral services will be held at the residence of L. O. Colver at Phoenix at 2 p. m. Sunday. Interment in Wagner Creek cemetery.

Cold Weather. WASHINGTON, Mar. 12—Weather predictions for the week beginning Monday are:

The Screen

Gowns De Luxe for Tiny Vamp
The gowns worn by Shannon Day, former Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic girl, in "The Man Who Had Everything," a picture starring Jack Pickford, which comes to the Page theatre for three days, commencing tomorrow, outclass anything she has seen in New York productions says Miss Day.

Shannon Day is perhaps the tiniest vamp on the screen—combining all the lithesome seductiveness of the taller woman with the dainty pettiness of her scarce five feet.

Wearing beautiful gowns is not new to Miss Day, because when she was but fifteen years old she displayed to advantage some of the loveliest creations ever made by modistes. "That was when I was a baby model—now I'm a baby vamp, and the gowns are really my own," she says.

Ten different costumes were especially designed for Miss Day in "The Man Who Had Everything," and as she plays the role of a very fastidious follower of pleasure, to whom everything comes in de luxe editions, the gowns are very gorgeous indeed.

Mix in New Tricks
"The Texan," a Tom Mix thriller to open at the Rialto theatre tomorrow for a run of three days, is said to be another clincher to the oft-repeated assertion that this daring star originates new stunts for every new picture.

It is not only a personal but a business directory, containing necessary statistical information of every description. The directory was printed by the Medford Printing company, and was considerably delayed by the installation of new machinery, which though unavoidable, is sincerely regretted by the proprietors, who take this occasion to relieve the Polk company of all responsibility for the delay.
