

BREAKING BIG IRISH ESTATES UP FOR FARMERS

DUBLIN, Mar.—The Dail Eireann's department of agriculture is dealing with what is regarded as the most important work of the Irish republican government—the alienation of land from the big estates of landlords and its distribution among small farmers, who have not enough land to earn a living.

Since last April when there was a revival of the "Land War" which has occupied such a conspicuous place in Ireland's history, the Dail's so-called "land judges" have dealt with 229 cases involving about 50,000 Irish acres. An Irish acre is a third again as large as an American acre.

In 83 of these cases 29,875 acres were "alienated," that is, taken by decree from big estates and sold to small farmers who were able to prove that they did not possess sufficient land to provide a living for themselves and families. In 67 cases judgment was given against the "claimant," the farmer, in favor of the "resister," the landlord with a big estate.

More than 100 cases are pending, most of them in Roscommon which is in a highly disturbed state. If the land judges are not permitted to deal with these cases, Sinn Fein fears another upheaval in the spring. Landlords in the districts affected are said to view the situation with great anxiety.

The land question has been acute in Ireland for hundreds of years. It arose when the first Irishmen were driven to feudal times from their ancient clan lands. The great war in the last century cleared off the landlords and then the British government set up the Congested Districts board.

Kevin R. O'Shiel, a land judge, told the correspondent that the willful and incredible slowness of the board is the principal cause of the present agitation. "In Roscommon alone it is the landlord of 60,000 acres of excellent, untenanted land and it is the lord of many thousands of acres, all untenanted, in Galway, Mayo, Clare and other counties," he said.

"The estates are capable of supporting at least 250,000 people and there are many valuable ranches lying derelict in parts of the country, where there is serious congestion."

EGGING HIM ON

BY VIOLET MOORE HIGGINS.

The lady with the eyes—yes, of course, most ladies have 'em, but not just like these—is Gloria Swanson, the young man is Monte Blue, and the situation is one of the many interesting ones in Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount production of "Something to Think About."

To judge by Monte's expression, the something isn't the high price of eggs per doz.—indeed, he doesn't seem to be paying much attention to them—but rather it seems to be Gloria's eyes that are supplying him with material for thought.

And as for Gloria—Ruth Anderson in the story—she's got plenty to think about, for she's engaged to David Markley. (Elliott Dexter) and she loves Jim Dirk (Monte Blue). Whether she "egged him on" or whether the eggs did it—at any rate he persuaded her to elope, but their happiness was brief, since the young husband met a hero's death, leaving his girl wife destitute.

But there was still happiness ahead for Ruth and David, for Ruth's fatherless child, and for Luke Anderson (Theodore Roberts) Ruth's blinded father, through the triumph of "right thinking" and the picture is one that by force of its appeal will give everyone who sees it "something to think about."

Incidentally, it proves that Gloria Swanson is as pretty—perhaps prettier—in the simple muslin frocks and gingham aprons of the countess as in the amazing creations she has worn in earlier DeMille productions.

LEADER OF HOME RULE IN INDIA A 'SWEET GENT'

LONDON.—Motilal Karmachand Gandhi, who holds such a sway over a certain section of the Indian people and who has been heading the anti-government boycotts in an attempt to force home-rule in India, is 51 years of age with graying hair, unflinching, truthful eyes and slim eloquent hands, says a correspondent of the Daily Mail.

The writer continues: "His voice is low-pitched and monotonous, yet pleasing, whether in Gujarati or English.

"He is married and has four sons. Gandhi lives in Ahmedabad, the big mill center, where he has founded a settlement for the culture of truth in poverty and for handweaving, and primitive agriculture.

"Gandhi is not, as is commonly supposed, a Brahmin of the priestly caste. He belongs to a Bania, or trading caste family resident in Kathiawar. He descends from politicians. His political mind comes from his father, who was a Dewan, or chief minister, of the state of Porbandar for 25 years.

"Gandhi's genius lies in making lost causes live. To his disarming sweetness of a saint he adds all the arts of the advocate. In South Africa, he matched even General Smuts. They sparred for years over Indian claims without quarrelling.

"If Gandhi has a hobby, it is experimenting in diet. Eighteen months ago he had reduced his daily food to four ingredients, wheat, vegetables, a little oil, and fruit, and he became very ill. He now takes goat's milk and salt, but not cows' milk or butter.

"He never sues a debtor, never gives evidence against an enemy, always travels third-class, the acme of discomfort in India, and always goes barefoot. He can sleep when he likes and he dispenses with sleep for long periods at will.

"India's humble masses, saturated with ancient Hindu philosophy, have long imagined a saviour should unite earthly practice to divine precept. The key to Gandhi and Gandhi-ism is wrapped in his self-revealing sentence: 'Most religious men I have met are politicians in disguise; I, however, who wear the guise of a politician, am at heart a religious man.'
