

Brownstone Ends Gray, Streaky Hair

Ladies, in society, no more tolerate gray, streaky hair than they do unbecoming gowns. Neither can the business girl or person in any walk of life who would keep up-to-date.

The First Lesson!

What is woman's chief aim in life? To charm men!

In reply to loud hisses, we hasten to say this is only the creed of a darling male who found a girl's school on his hands and tried to put it on its feet.

By teaching charm! To fifty charmers!—Nuff sed! Come!

HAND SCORES A GREAT VICTORY OVER TED THYE

Gold Hill believes today it has the coming middleweight wrestling champion of the United States. For last night Ed Hand, the husky pride of the cement metropolis, all but turned Ted Thye of Portland, champion of the middleweight crown, on his head, and thereby won the big end of the purse in runaway fashion.

Thye was scheduled to throw Hand twice in one hour. The wrestling match was undoubtedly the best contest of the kind ever seen in southern Oregon and according to some of the fans, who have seen the big boys in the east, a better, more skillful and more exciting match has never been staged anywhere.

Thye is a man to be all that he was touted, strong, quick and clever, sagaciously put up, and a master of tactics, but at every turn Hand was his equal, and when the local boy finally took the offensive himself toward the close of the time limit, he put on his famous toe hold, and with the immense crowd around the ring-side yelling their heads off, subjected the champion to a punishment that might have proved decisive, if the ring had not sounded.

Some of the wisecracks still believe Thye had something he didn't show and led Hand along on the hope of a return match, with a prospective clean up in the betting. But if so, Thye is a consummate actor. For if ever a man went after a decision, he seemed to go after one, and if there is any hold he didn't try, few people hereabouts know of them.

The friends of Hand were naturally jubilant at the result, and are so confident they have a coming champion, that already there is talk of a return match to a decision with Thye or getting some wrestler of Thye's class to go on with the ex-S. P. switchman.

The preliminary were good. Parker threw Thor in twenty minutes and Ed Thibier of Salt Lake showed class in a boxing exhibition with Monk Clark, neither Edson of Klamath, nor the terrible Hindu showing up.

ATTY GEN'L CAN'T AID PHONE USERS TO FORM JACKSON CO. HISTORICAL SOCIETY

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 24.—The attorney general will be unable to aid Portland in action toward re-issuance of the telephone rate cases, according to a reply sent by Governor Ben W. Meitz to the city council's request.

Governor Meitz explained that the attorney general was a law enforcement officer and as such subject to call at any time by departments of the state.

He also explained that in the event that legal steps were instituted to have the order of the public service commission revoked, it would be necessary for the attorney general's office to represent the public service commission, therefore, the governor said, he couldn't consistently request the attorney general to join in the petition for a rehearing.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—Some of the important bills that will come up in the house during the extra session, beginning April 11, include: Emergency tariff; anti-dumping; American valuation as a basis of customs duties on imported products; permanent tariff; tax revision; army appropriation bill; naval appropriation bill; budget; immigration restriction.

There will be few investigations, according to house leaders, who believe the record was coached in the last session, when the searchlight was turned in every direction.

H. S. GIRLS START CRUSADE AGAINST MODERN STYLES

A back to normalcy movement has been started in the high school through spite work on the part of the girls towards the boys and the youths on their part retaliating in kind, and there is no telling just where the feud will end, but so far it has convinced all Medford with laughter. The superintendent and faculty try to put on serious faces and frown on the extravagant action of both sides, but ever and anon slide into some out of the way nook to give vent to their real feelings.

Recently Miss Margaret Cottrell, member of the faculty who has charge of the Y. W. C. A. activities, asked the boys to write their opinions of the modern garb, style and facial make-up of the girls. The masculine element of the school went at this very distasteful task with avidity and use of strong and superlative language. What they didn't say about the girls wearing short skirts, low necks, hair over ears, fancy stockings, and powder would not be worth reading.

These written answers were read to the girls by Miss Cottrell yesterday with the consequence that the fair ones waxed more indignant the longer they talked and thought over the horrid criticisms. Hence it was that a rebuke to this masculine criticism and to show the boys that they were not so smart as they thought themselves, about fifty of the young ladies came to school this forenoon garbed in the plainest and most old fashioned clothing they were able to find, hair done up plain and carefully brushed back from the ears, and with an absence of powder, paint and rouge from their faces.

Did this phase the boys? Far from it. They had a card up their sleeves, owing to the fact that some one had tipped them off last night to the girls' plans. Hence they, too, appeared at school today in very plain garb, wearing ranch or hunting boots, old fashioned turn down collars, and the like. Some of them were so grotesquely costumed that they were ordered home by the faculty.

The next move is up to the chagrined girls. "I fear it won't last," said Miss Cottrell today, "but the spirit looks very sweet and the absence of make up is particularly refreshing."

Sentiment toward the collection of facts concerning the early days in our valley is likely to lead to the forming of a society for this purpose. While the Pioneer Society and the I. O. O. F., both deal with history, there are yet many other people in our county who are greatly interested in the early times and would like to share in the interests and the work, which an organized historical association can do toward preserving accurate records of Jackson county's part in Oregon history.

A meeting of all who are interested is called for Saturday, March 26, at 2:30 at the Medford Public Library.

WINS IN CIVIL ACTION.

The methods of the witness in arriving at her conclusions on the errors she found in the bank's statements were attacked, but Miss Wickman refused to alter her testimony.

J. E. Bartlett, the defendant, took the stand and corroborated the testimony of Miss Wickman, and explained in detail the "476 item" for which he never received credit for a bill of lading handled through the bank. In regard to a $300 deposit received from a Mr. Wagner, and that it was his opinion that it "was mixed with the Dewey notes," and that "the trusted Mr. Johnson like everybody else did."

Roberts Makes Strong Appeal. The opening and closing arguments in the civil suit of the state bank examiners by F. C. Bramwell, superintendent vs. J. E. Bartlett of Medford were begun in the circuit court this morning.

Attorney Roberts, counsel for the plaintiff, made a vigorous appeal for his client and Jacksonville depositors, branding the defendant as one "who had sought to despoil the bank," and "that if ever there was a just case, it was the present one."

The castigation of the defendant was bitter. Attorney Newbury for the defendant declared "that competent counsel for the plaintiff is throwing dust in the eyes of this jury, for the purpose of securing a verdict for just what he asked for. He wants to rely only on the records of W. H. Johnson, cashier of the Bank of Jacksonville, who testified that at the time he was being ridden by the bank examiners and the railroads for money and statements, and that he was juggling accounts. The plaintiff has admitted errors, and why can't there be others?"

The defense asked that admitted errors and those offered by the defense to the amount of $252.96 be deducted from the original claim of $350.75 leaving a total of $107.79. In closing Attorney Newbury requested upon the reliability of the records kept by Johnson and warned the jury to beware of the oratorical wiles of opposing counsel.
