THE RELATIVITY OF AMERICA

AN INSIGNIFICANT looking German Jew, with celluloid collar, arrived in New York the first of the week. Much to his embarrassment he was met by cheering thousands, transported in Mayor Hylan's boat and escorted to a palatial suite in the Hotel Commodore by an escort of honor.

The man's name was Einstein.—Professor Einstein.— and he came here to confer with American Jews on the best means of developing Palestine. But the reception accorded him was not in recognition of the importance of this pilgrimage, but in recognition of Einstein's theory of the relativity of matter.

For this is the man who demonstrated Sir Isaac Newton was only half right when hit in the ear by a falling apple, and that Euclid was little more than a bush leaguer. When his book was published he admitted there were only about ten human beings in the world who would understand it, but this pronouncement only increased his reputation for scientific accuracy, and boosted his volume into one of the fifty best sellers.

For each of these ten wisemen wrote a book about Einstein's book, the great discovery was promptly wired from one approximate atom in space to the other, and in no time at all, the retiring little German professor was forced to crawl out of his garret in Berlin, and receive the plaudits of a grateful and worshipful humanity.

All of which demonstrates one or two interesting facts. In the first place America does not, as some critics maintain, despise brains. According to press reports the reception given Einstein was almost as vociferous as that extended Carpentier. Moreover, on the day of his arrival Babe Ruth had a sprained thumb, and whereas Babe's thumb was only given a machine head on the sport page, the Berlin professor's head was given a front page lead, with a photographic layout in the run-over.

Another fact is that while no one in general understands what Einstein's theory means, they do understand, that it takes a life-sized whack at the established order. Even the theory of gravity, which everyone supposed was as immutable as the mother-in-law joke, is shaken. Instead of a straight line being the shortest distance between two points, this is only true outside of "curved space" for "falling bodies are subjects independent of physical causes and light in diffusion is bent"

Wherefore everyone rejoices, particularly everyone in America, except the school teachers.

Probably Professor Einstein will no more understand America than Americans will understand his theory, but there is significance in his arrival and its reaction, nevertheless. For it demonstrates again that this great country is simply crazy about anything it doesn't understand, and steadily progresses through prompt recognition of what ever is completely and sensationally new.

Rippling Rhymes by Walt Mason THE MILLENIUM. Illustration of a man and a woman.

SOME day the stand-off scheme will smash, a wise old seer has said it and all we'll buy will be for cash and none will ask for credit. Collectors then won't block our way and bluff and plead and beckon; and that will be a happy day for all of us, I reckon. We have to pay more for our eats, and find the poor-house closer, because we pay the bills of beats who sting the corner grocer. The grocer sighs, "This Jasper Jones has jumped our lovely city, and he was owing forty bones, which seems a ghastly pity. He'll never pay me for my rice, he never more will greet me; and so I'll have to raise the price from those who do not beat me." And when I go to purchase prunes to feed my children twenty, he's raised the price some pieaymes, and soaks me good and plenty. The tailor trusts a hundred men, and ten of them don't pay him, and I must dig up an extra yen to comfort him and stay him. And so it goes along the line in every kind of dealing; the deadbeat adds to bills of mine until my head is reeling. 'Twill be a blessed day, gadzooks, when "stand-off system" ceases, when merchant princes burn their books, and kick the slate to pieces.

O. A. C. SPEAKER AT FORUM TOMORROW

W. H. Dubach of the department of political science of the Oregon Agricultural college will be the speaker at the Medford Chamber of Commerce forum tomorrow. The subject which he will discuss was not made known when he was conferred with over the long distance telephone, but it will be one which can be relied upon as being educational. The forum tomorrow will be held at the Medford hotel and is the first one for the second fiscal year of the re-organized chamber of commerce. All forum meetings during the month of April will be held at the Medford hotel.

STREET CAR LINE TO JACKSONVILLE TO BE RESUMED

"J. T. Gagnon, the well known saw-mill man and head of the Rogue River Valley Railway, has a crew of men at work repairing the road-bed track, trolley line, etc., preparatory to putting a street car on the route between this city and Medford," says the Jacksonville Post.

"Mr. Gagnon is of the opinion that, given unlimited opportunity to travel to and from their places of business, Medford men who are aware of the many advantages of Jacksonville as a place of residence, will remove their families to this city. That this belief is well founded is proven by the number of newcomers who have made their homes here in recent months. Believing as he does that first class service will result in increased population for Jacksonville and consequently heavier traffic over his line, Mr. Gagnon it is said, is contemplating an hourly passenger service between the two towns as soon as necessary repairs can be made. "Passenger service on the local line was discontinued more than a year ago and rolling stock as well as roadway will require thorough overhauling before a schedule can be put in effect."

ELKS' SMOKER ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Elks lodge for the big smoker that will be held Thursday night in connection with the installation of the new officers of the lodge, who were elected some time ago. This will be one of the big nights of the year and a very large attendance is looked for. Besides the big feed, several rattling good boxing contests and possibly one very interesting wrestling bout there will be other entertainment features. The Grants Pass members of the lodge will have a large delegation present, and the members of the Ashland lodge will doubtless come over in large numbers in acknowledgement of the big attendance from the Medford lodge at their installation and athletic smoker last Saturday night.

DAIRY MEETING PUBLIC LIBRARY

There will be an all day dairy meeting for the dairymen of the Rogue River valley in Medford, Saturday, April 9th, at the Public Library commencing at 10:30 a. m. A very interesting program has been arranged and any one interested in the dairy industry should arrange to attend this meeting.

SUNDAY SCHOOL EXPERTS ADDRESS WEDNESDAY NOON

If any one doubts that a new day has come in the life and influence of the church, his doubts will disappear with a look at the program for training in bible knowledge and Christian truth that is projected by all branches of the church for the children and youth of today. The program includes provision for the more efficient training of teachers, better selection of materials for graded lessons, revival of the Christian home as the greatest school of religious education, instruction in other groups than the Sunday school class,—as for example, the Daily Vacation Bible school, the weekday Bible lesson, etc.

Rev. J. S. Arraentout, director of Daily Vacation Bible Schools and of Teacher Training, and Miss Florence Norton, director of children's work, both of the educational staff of the Presbyterian church, have been largely influential in the promotion of these activities, not only through the Presbyterian church, but in interdenominational circles as well.

The church and Sunday school workers of this community will have an opportunity to confer with these leaders in meetings to be held under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church Wednesday, April 5th. Pastors, church and Sunday school officers and teachers and all interested are invited to these meetings. Luncheon with informal discussion following, at Hotel Holland at 12:30. Mother's and primary teachers meeting addressed by Miss Norton at the home of Miss Bullis, 45 Rose avenue, at 2:30 p. m. Supper at the church at 6:30. After dinner program. Popular addresses and group conferences 7:45-8:30.
