OVER 7 MILLION GIVEN TEACHERS CARNEGIE FUND

NEW YORK, April 9.—Distribution of $7,364,399 for retiring allowances and pensions to 200 persons have been made through the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching during the last fifteen years, according to the annual report of the foundation, made public today.

Resources of the foundation were $24,628,000 of which $15,192,000 belongs to the permanent general endowment. A retirement reserve fund of $7,571,000 is set aside to be expended during the next sixty years for relief of teachers in associated colleges. A fund of $1,250,000 is held for the division of educational inquiry and $290,000 to aid universities and colleges to adopt a new plan of contractual annuities. This plan provides for contractual forms of insurance and old age annuities through the policies of the Teacher's Insurance and Annuity association.

This association was established by the foundation through a gift of $1,000,000. Its purpose is to provide insurance and annuity protection to college teachers without overhead charges. It has written the report said, 653 insurance policies covering $3,256,747 of insurance and 554 annuity contracts providing for $521,388 annual income at retirement.

The distribution of money during the last fifteen years has been divided among former Harvard university teachers, who receive $625,000; former Yale teachers, $548,000, and retired Columbia educators $464,000. Sixteen other institutions received sums between $100,000 and $200,000 and the remainder has gone to eighty different colleges. There are 354 retiring allowances and 199 widows' pensions now in force.

COMMUNICATIONS

A Correspondent Quakes To the editor: I read with great interest your daily column of questions and answers. One of the questions answered in the column is: How big a staff of earthquake correspondents does the U. S. have? The answer, 4500 earthquake correspondents. That in view of the mention on the same page of the arrival of Prof. Einstein and a very plain and comprehensive explanation of his theory of Relativity, in other words your acknowledgment and acceptance of greater truths ought to lead you to be more plain and concise in statements printed in your esteemed and enlightening publication. Now that the foregoing is plain we come to earthquake correspondents. An earthquake is defined as a tremor in the earth's surface, sometimes preceded or followed by volcanic eruptions.

Then we are to understand that an earthquake correspondent is one affected by tremors or is he of volcanic origin or does his correspondence deal with one so affected. The ordinary people know of a correspondent as one who corresponds, but an earthquake correspondent, does it imply the correspondent's disposition—or what? I have heard of eruptive dispositions and thunderous applause and various smiles, but never of one who corresponded earthquake although I have known common newspaper reporters, sometimes dignified by the title correspondents, who have had delirium
