

Local and Personal

Much to the relief of everyone the light to heavy frost predicted for this morning did not materialize, and it was known before midnight that it would not. The lowest temperature of the morning was 38. The escape from the colder predicted weather was due to local low pressure and a cloudy condition which remained all night. At 7 p. m. Frost Expert Young and County Agent Cate informed the orchardists that conditions at that hour indicated a possible temperature of 31 before morning, but at 11 p. m. they gave out word to the orchard men to go to bed and have a good sleep, as all danger of a frost was past.

Of interest to all mining men of southern Oregon is the following item in the Grants Pass Courier: "The Boswell Mining company is now installing its cyanide plant on the property at Sucker creek, and will soon have it in operation. The mill at the Boswell is turning out an average of $1900 in bullion every day, working on only the high grade, while the tailings and lower grade ores will be treated with the cyanide process. The mine is showing up even better than the most optimistic had hoped, the ore body having been traced for considerable distance, and continuing almost fabulously rich. The vein is no doubt the lode from which has come many of the millions yielded by the Illinois valley placer mines, and it is bringing to this country the attention of mining men from all the west."

The following story which created much merriment in this section for a long time past, and is sometimes told with Fred Champlin of Foots creek as the hero, was published in the Oregonian this week, as follows: "Every one who knows George M. Easterley of Waldo, Ore., knows his hospitality. A few years ago he was invaded by a group of army officers and a civilian and he undertook to extend the customary courtesies. Mr. Easterley noticed that every officer would snappily salute the civilian and address him as 'Mr. Secretary.' The host supposed that the civilian was a Y. M. C. A. secretary until he watched for a while, and as he couldn't solve the mystery of the distinguished visitor, he finally blurted out. Why do all these officers salute you and say 'Mr. Secretary?' 'My name is Houston,' was the reply, but the name carried no meaning to Mr. Easterley. 'Well,' insisted the host, 'whose secretary are you?' 'Unfortunately,' explained the civilian, with a grin, 'I am at present secretary of agriculture.' Mr. Easterley has been visiting at the Hotel Portland."

The only place to spend an evening of real pleasure. Nat. tonight.

A great many cars have trouble with their electric equipment, either because of cheap construction, unreliable installation or cheap drives. Buick used Delco for 8 years, always gear driven, always reliable—the best the world knows. In 1913 Buick produced a special Delco installation which proved to be the best. In 1921 improvements have given still greater leadership.

The public market was only a fair one today, but good considering the scarcity of fresh edibles at this time of year. However, there was plenty of meat and eggs, the latter selling at from 20 to 23 1/2 cents a dozen. A much patronized permanent feature of the market is the sale every market day of home cooked liverwurst and blood-wurst sausages.

HOW TO USE YOUR DENTIST

There would be little dread of the dental chair if patients would make regular visits and have their teeth examined at least twice a year. If this plan is followed, the cavities will be small and can be filled with a minimum of pain.

Tartar deposits should also be carefully removed and the teeth thoroughly cleaned at the same time. If this plan were adopted by everyone a great many of the ills, which are the result of tooth neglect, would be overcome.

The Screen

First is Last "The Ball," coming to the Rialto theatre tomorrow for three days, represents a unique experiment in movie-making. The ending of the picture is shown on the screen first, followed by the thrilling story that leads up to this climax. This is a method of story-telling carried out on the stage frequently, but this is the first time, to our knowledge, that it has been attempted on the screen.

Hope Hampton is the featured player.

At the Page Tomorrow's "Who's Who in Medford" showing prominent business men in familiar poses and other local films are added features to the new Sunday bill with Pauline Frederick "In the Loves of Letty," adapted from Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's well known stage success "Letty."

PHOENIX SCHOOL NOTES

Much activity is witnessed throughout the school today, Friday, getting ready for the local institute, which is slated for tomorrow, Saturday. The weather is fine and a goodly crowd is expected. Dinner will be served by the domestic department at fifty cents per plate.

The Parent-Teacher's association met yesterday, Thursday, at the regular hour. Mrs. Angell, the president, gave to the association some ideas gathered from the state president, who spoke lately in Medford.

Mrs. Joe Rader rendered a vocal solo in her pleasing and delightful way. Mr. Fuller of Ashland explained the plans for the summer normal, which will be in session at Ashland this summer.

Mr. T. J. Malmgren gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the schools of Holland.

Friday at 3 p. m., the Phoenix baseball girls will play the Central Point team on the Medford field, following which, Applegate will play Rogue River.

Attention is again called to the wonderful play "What Happened to Jones," which will be given by the high school students in the Auditorium Friday evening, April 22. This is a popular play. Several high schools are giving it this year.

FACTS

Do you know that it takes fewer people to support a doctor in the rural districts than in the cities?

Do you know that there are more doctors per 1,000 of population in the rural districts than in the cities?

Do you know that in the rural districts 500 people will support a doctor comfortably, while it takes about 800 city dwellers to do that?

Why?

The city is surely much more unhealthful with its crowds, dust, smoke, dirt, shops and factories. And yet they are healthier than the farmer folks. The reasons are many, but the chief one is this: The farmer OVERWORKS, OVERSTRAINS, OVERLIFTS, OVERDOES generally, consequently straining his spine. The spine supports the whole body, taking all the shocks and when you overdo you throw it OUT OF PLUMB. The spine is the BACKBONE and you can't be healthy with a bad spine. It just can't be done. Just DOING things will never harm you, but OVERDOING will always harm you. You don't always have backache when your spine is not right. More often you don't. The trouble is some other place in the body. It is the Chiropractor's business to straighten your spine, thereby allowing normal flow of health, and energy to every part of the body.
