Oregon Man Is Sorry He Did Not Know About Tanlac Long Ago—Rheumatism and Other Troubles Are Overcome.

with gas that affected my heart, and I would get so short of breath I could hardly walk up a little hill from the mill to the road. My joints would pain me terribly and my hands get so stiff I could hardly close them, and many a time I didn't think I was going to be able to work the day out. "Nothing I took seemed to do me a bit of good until I got Tanlac. In a month my stomach was in the best of order and I can now eat just anything I want without its causing me the least bit of trouble. The bloating has disappeared, my heart no longer bothers me and my breathing is free and easy. The rheumatism is so completely gone that my joints don't ache any more and I'm simply feeling fine."

Tanlac is sold in Medford by West Side Pharmacy, in Jacksonville by J. W. Robinson, in Rogue River by W. W. Cary, and by leading druggists in every town.

ASHLAND STARTS A COMMUNITY DRIVE FOR CHINA FAMINE

ASHLAND, April 25.—Coin for China, which implies a generous measure of speedy relief, was forthcoming at a mass gathering which assumed the proportions of a rally, the armory being the scene of the demonstration, and the hour 7:45 o'clock, Sunday evening. A drive in behalf of Chinese and Near East relief being inevitable the current week, it was thought best to merge the effort at one big overflow meeting, a proposition which met with the approval of both the chamber of commerce and the Ministerial union. Consequently the churches were deserted at the evening hour, services being abandoned, also the chamber of commerce reading room and loafing annex were supposed to be closed temporarily.

Several speakers were present, representing both clergy and laity, among them Rev. Ward W. MacHenry, of Portland, and Hon. E. V. Carter of this city. Musical accompaniments were by the choir of the Presbyterian church and a men's quartet drafted from the Methodist and Baptist congregations. Mr. MacHenry's topic was "The Starving Millions of China and the Near East." Incident to the deplorable conditions existing in those countries, he cited cause and effect as predominant factors. In the Near East pestilence and famine are directly traceable to war which has ravaged those countries for several years, and is still prevailing to a greater or lesser extent. In the face of such a condition, the logical question arising is, why not quit fighting and go to producing. This sounds plausible as applying to actual combatants, but the fact remains that innocent women and children are involved, the consequent destitution being pitiful. On the other hand, China's plight is mainly due to famine over a large area, the havoc being something frightful. In fact, reports indicate that the plight of the Armenians, wretched as it is, savors of comfort as compared to the Chinese situation, which is absolutely horrible. As a result, all eyes are fixed upon America in appeals for relief. Many confess to a sense of burden over the surfeit of campaign quotas and drives, holding that the United States cannot take over the job of providing for the world at large. Nevertheless, help must and will be extended. Out of our abundance enough is wasted, in any given community every day to save many lives in certain countries where the misery and destitution are so appalling. The plan at this gathering was to secure the actual cash or pledges therefor on the spot, without waiting for the morrow or later, and responses are undoubtedly to prove generous when the returns are all in.

Rev. Mr. MacHenry, the speaker who brought the appeal for relief and presented it so vividly before the large audience, is now pastor of a Presbyterian church in Portland. He was formerly pastor of the Ashland church in the Southern Oregon Presbytery, and on Sunday morning filled his old pulp here, preaching one of his characteristic and energetic sermons, and meeting a large number of former parishioners, with whom the interchange of friendly greetings as a reminder of old-time associations was mutually felicitous.

The local program for observance of Oregon Products week, beginning today, is practically outlined. Nearly 100 attractive window cards have been received from headquarters of the Associated Industries of Oregon for display in local store windows. In connection with window displays prizes will be awarded in the sums of $25, $15 and $10 respectively. The test of merit, as applied to window displays, will be upon the basis of their educational and advertising value, plus artistic arrangement. It is taken for granted that the exhibits are to consist of Oregon raised or manufactured products. The prizes will be awarded at the banquet which is to occur on the evening of Thursday, April 28, a social event which will be the finale of the week's activities, and at which H. J. Frank, president, and D. C. Freeman, manager, of the Associated Industries association, will be present, Mr. Freeman succeeding A. G. Clark in the capacity of manager.

FAIR COMMITTEE MEETS TONIGHT

The board of directors of the Jackson County Fair association and the guarantors of the land purchased cooperatively with the county will meet this evening at eight o'clock. The meeting was to be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, but on account of that room being used for the exhibit of manufactured products of the county, the meeting will be held at the city hall.

In addition to the question of the sale of some of the property, which it is considered unnecessary for fair purposes, the directors will receive the reports of several committees. The building program and the plan of financing same will be discussed.

MEDFORD PEARS GIVEN A WIDE MARKET IN 1920

SALEM, Ore., April 25.—(Special.) Through the efforts of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association, a market was developed this past season for car lot shipments of fresh early and late pears.

It was through this sales department of the association, that instead of following the custom of former years in shipping mostly to central markets and thus overloading and weakening those markets, that shipping points were developed in interior cities throughout the middle west and east.

By this means, markets during the shipping season of Bartlett's were maintained on a stable basis, causing Oregon pears to bring the grower an average of from $15 to $20 a ton more than received by other northwestern pear districts.

Formerly, it often happened that with the Chicago and New York market overloaded with fresh fruits, it naturally became glutted and prices fell. It was through the efforts of the association in selling to interior markets that Medford pears brought such favorable prices on the market this past season and in open auction sales, the Medford pear topped the world's market.

Markets in car lot shipments were developed in the New England states at Auburn, Maine, Bangor, Maine, Bridgeport, Conn., New Haven, Conn., Providence, R. I., Springfield, Mass., Worcester, Mass., South Norwalk, Conn., and also in Montreal, Canada.

Under former marketing customs, almost all these shipments of pears would have gone direct to the auction markets which would have resulted in a general break in prices.

The sales department of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association also developed car lot markets at Norfolk, Va., Philadelphia, Sumburg, Ontario, St. Johns, N. B., Toronto, Canada, Utica, N. Y., and Washington, D. C. Baltimore, Md., was also developed for car lot shipments to the southern trade with markets worked up at Indianapolis, Kansas City, Cleveland, Memphis, New Orleans, Omaha, St. Louis for their immediate territories.

Alabama was supplied with Medford pears through car lot shipments to Birmingham, and central and eastern Tennessee through Nashville. Colorado points were supplied with Bartlett's through Denver, while the Duluth wholesale fruit houses supplied Minnesota. People down in Texas bought our pears through shipments made to San Antonio and Fort Worth.

Iowa especially appreciated Medford pears. There was a strong demand and instead of overloading one central market, the association developed markets at Marshalltown, Dubuque, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines. Car lot shipments were also made to Orion, Ill., Canton, Ohio, Grand Island, Neb., Freeport, Ill., and other cities in the middle west that are generally supplied from Chicago.

And while interior markets were being developed and the Medford pears given a general distribution, shipments were made to canneries at Corvallis, Eugene, Portland, Newberg, Sheridan, Salem and San Jose, Calif.

For the southern California trade, car lot shipments were made to San Diego, Santa Barbara and Los Angeles, Sacramento, Campbell, Calif., and Oakland bought in car load lots, in addition to heavy shipments to San Francisco. In the northwest, shipments were made to Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Klamath Falls.

In the marketing out of new markets, foreign countries were not overlooked as sales of late pears were made in London, Glasgow, Liverpool and Havana, Cuba.

It is thought that if a wide distribution can be maintained, overloading of central markets can be prevented and that the smaller markets which follow the larger markets, can thus be indirectly strengthened.

NEW KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS CLUB 6TH AND HOLLY

One of the best attended and most enthusiastic meetings of Tallman lodge Knights of Pythias was held last Monday night in the castle hall of this order. Members from every part of the valley were present. The occasion being the time set for deciding in what place in Medford the proposed new home of this order shall be. Ninety per cent or more of the members being partial to the west side for a structure of this kind, the trustees were instructed to close a deal for the Soliss property at the northeast corner of Sixth and Holly streets, which is directly east of the federal building. It is not known just when building operations will be started, perhaps not until the spring of next year. The structure will be used exclusively for lodge purposes with the latest club room accommodations, and with an auditorium sufficiently large to take care of D. O. K. K. ceremonies.

Tonight a class will be given the Knight rank work, after which refreshments will be served.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU AT PAGE THEATRE TOMORROW NIGHT

Marjorie Rambeau confesses to one great disappointment in life. Of course she has outlived it by this time—but it was exceedingly real and tragic at the unhappy moment it fell on her.

Miss Rambeau, who will be seen at the Page theatre tomorrow night, in Channing Pollock's play, "The Sign on the Door," followed the habit of all good actresses from the Pacific coast by entering the field of dramatic art at a very tender age. When only fourteen she was playing important roles in a Los Angeles stock company; it was when she was fourteen that she experienced her first great disappointment.

Through a trick of fate that sometimes attacks the affairs of small organizations, Miss Rambeau found herself cast for "Camille." It was when she was fourteen, but the role had no terrors for this ambitious child. "I shall never forget the opening night," she said recently, while discussing her early struggles in the far west. "I was positive that I was the most finished Camille the stage had produced up to that time. My limited experience did not lessen my faith in my own ability, and I put Camille through her scenes with interpretations that must have been entirely new to that lady."

"After the curtain went down, I was congratulating myself upon the beauty of my performance, when a man in the audience whom I knew slightly, came back of the stage to congratulate me. 'You played the part well,' he began, 'remarkably well, but I don't think you are quite as good as Olga Nethersole in the same role.'"

"That was my great disappointment. I knew I was better than Nethersole—but nobody would believe it."
