FIGHTING THE LOBBIES.

THE People's Legislative Service is the name given to the recently organized movement for fighting the lobby evil in Washington. Its purpose is to restore to the American people their lost control of their own government. Even persons who believe that the people's will is not wholly powerless to influence government know how powerful and dangerous the lobby interests have become. They recognize also the opportunity for useful service to the public which tion required by congressmen for handling such legislation strictly in the public interest.

Third, there is a publicity division which will kee pthe people nformed regarding pending legislation.

The third division is the most interesting. If it can really keep the people actively interested in pending legislation as well as intelligently informed regarding it, the most severe blow possible will atomatically be dealt to lobbying. Selfish private interests get away with their lobbies only because the public is uninformed or indif- mittee of the Chamber of Commerce ferent. All the vast financial resources at the disposal of the big lobbies would be of little avail against an alert and responsible publie. Such a public would not only keep track of legislation and arguments for their elimination. Every legislators, but would exercise greater sense and judgment in the first place in the choice of its representatives at the Capitol,

A BLIND MAN'S AIRPLANE.

O NE of the most interesting incidents in aviation development is the invention by a blind man of an aircraft which he predicts will revolutionize aerial warfare. It is said the plane will irse almost perpendicularly, land in a spot lottle larger than its own base and, conducted at the Holland hotel. what is perhaps most important, hover in the air like an eagle. The advantage of this feature in bombing is obvious.

An early model was tested out by an army flyer during the war and while not wholly successful, it proved the practicability of the idea. The inventor is now buy with improvements.

Inventors have been trying for years to fashion a plant which shall do the things claimed for this model. If a blind man succeeds where others have failed it will be both marvelous and touching. Perhaps in permitting the glory of the accomplishment to a sightless man, God finds his way of giving consolation to all the myriads of the blind who may never know what it is to see men actually mount, will spend this half hour with us in ing up with wings as eagles.

And what of the fortunate mortals who have unlimited use of sight and hearing and other senses? How far short of their possibili- from this hour of prayer that we are ties most of them fall when a blind man fashions a thing like this!

IT'S pleasant to be living when springtime has the floor, and nature's kindly giving the best she has in store. The blue birds and the red ones their lays triumphant sing; I'm sorry for the dead ones who can't enjoy the spring. It's pleasant to be tramping along the dewey wold, at early morning, lamping the beauties manifold. Oh, there are times and seasons when my woes my soul exhaust, and I have divers reasons for thinking life a frost; when winter winds are shaking the chimney and the door, and rheumatism's making each passing hour a bore; when autumn rainstorms drizzle as though they'd never quit, I feel that life's a fizzle that ne'er will make a hit. But springtime makes me grateful that I am here to see, and any gent is hateful who doesn't prance with me. The people leave their conches to greet the smiling morn, the kickers and the grouches, the sickly and forlorn; the hungry and the fed ones, they form a merry ring; I'm sorry for the dead ones who can't enjoy the spring. But maybe they are knowing a spring that never dies; and maybe they are giving some thought to us, and say, "We're sorry for the living-
