EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Kowlett

The other day as I was passing by the city hall my attention was called to the change in the appearance of the inside of the building since it became the home of the Eagle Point library and has come under the supervision of the Ladies Aid Improvement club and I could not help but notice the contrast between the arrangement of the old mayor and city dads. If there was any management of the old city mayor and council, for when they had charge of affairs, it looked like a burrah nest gone to seed. A rickety old table and a few chairs, loose boards arranged along one side of the room and the floor, well, I better say no more on that part of the subject, but the change that has taken place since we have a city recorder, city treasurer and only one councilman with a new mayor. Since they were elected and went into office the city hall has been fitted up with neat shelves, and a fine assortment of books, magazines and papers adorn the shelves and three neat tables, covered with white table cloths take the place of the one that was there under the old regime, the old voting booth that was used when we were fighting to get rid of the old saloons have been removed and where they occupied space it is now occupied by a neat table, where any one can sit and write or read, or if so desired, copy extracts from the books in the library. In fact there has been such a change that one would hardly believe that it was the same place, but if the ladies of the C. I. C. but excuse my suggestion, it would be that while they are making such radical changes as have been made, they would appropriate a portion of the funds they receive from a generous public and have the interior of the building improved in appearance, at least, as well as in comfort by having the standing and bare walls, covered with a neat lining and that covered with attractive paper. It would improve the appearance, as well as the comfort, very much.
