

"That Tired Feeling" Often Forecasts Sickness

When you are tired without good cause, lack ambition and feel out of sorts generally, you may be heading straight for a sick spell. These symptoms often show the whole system, especially the blood, is disordered.

Don't wait 'till you are sick in bed. Almost every ailment can be ward-off if attended to in time. Any doctor will tell you that. Start at once to drive impurities from your system and help enrich your circulation with famous S.S.S., the vegetable blood tonic of fifty years' standing.

A CLEAN CITY IS ADMIRRED BY ALL VISITORS

After this splendid rain people should begin at once to "Clean-Up" and "Paint-Up" to put the city in first class condition.

Tourists and others who visit a clean city always say a lot of nice things about it, but a dirty city invites unfavorable comments and keeps strangers away. Many communities have shown a more rapid growth in population after a clean up than they ever hoped to enjoy.

The best way to boost your community is to clean up, paint up, dress up, furnish up and keep it up.

It starts repairs and building activity; giving employment to all classes of craftsmen—carpenters, masons, painters, plumbers, tanners, roofers, glaziers, electricians, plasterers, gardeners and laborers. It creates a lively demand upon local dealers for everything needed in making homes clean and attractive and safe from fire, disease, and the weather. It stimulates the desire and pride of home ownership, and helps the real estate man. It stabilizes, restores and increases the value of real estate, and helps the bankers and the borrowers.

INSIDE OF THE CUP EXPOSES HYPOCRITES

The Cosmopolitan film production of Winston Churchill's novel, "The Inside of the Cup," will open tomorrow at the Page theatre. On the occasion of its premiere recently at the Criterion theater in New York, Ada Patterson wrote the following notice of the impression it made upon the folk in the audience:

On my right at the premiere of "The Inside of the Cup" sat a trig, blue-eyed commuter. On my left was a man from Paris, dark, thin-faced, wearing a perfectly tailored suit covered by a milk-lined overcoat. Opposite types though they were, this suburban housewife and across seas boulevardier equally enjoyed Winston Churchill's masterly story done into a photoplay.

Diverse though these amusement neighbors of mine were, the cinema offering which we saw was of equal appeal to them because it goes to the depths of human nature.

The tale, told in exceptionally well made pictures, is an exposure of greed and graft in the guise of religion. It reveals three wolves in sheep's clothing, going from the vestry table into the world to oppress and crush, then back again to discuss the amount of their contributions to a parish house in the street that is the scene of the most iniquitous of their traffic.

A group of vestrymen is seated about a long table discussing and administering the affairs of the church. One passes a plan for a new stained glass window to his fellows of the vestry, saying: "Let me call your attention to the resemblance of the face of St. John to our beloved brother, Parr."

Yet in the picture we see Parr's daughter leaving his home because her heart and soul were sickened by his hypocrisy. She goes to a settlement in which she is interested and becomes a resident worker.

The settlement is the story center of the development of the stirring drama of conscience and the class of mighty wills. Thither drifts a girl of the streets, whom Elwood Parr's son has honestly loved, and whom the elder Parr drove from the city and into demoralizing companionship. There, too, drifts the younger Parr, who, enraptured by his father's cruelty, and duplicity, has kept his threat to smirch the name his father would not allow the pretty little shopgirl to bear.

There is a poignant scene in which Allison Parr goes to the heartbroken desperate girl and asks, "Will you be my sister?" This great scene in a great picture teaches a lesson in the democracy of souls.

"The Kentuckians" is Filled With Landmarks

Kentucky landmarks abound in the production of "The Kentuckians," featuring Monte Blue, which will be the feature film at the Rialto theatre the last four days of this week, starting today.

Many of the scenes were made in and around Big Stone Gap, Va., which has gone down in history as the home of John Fox, Jr. Several hundred mountaineers with a motley collection of old-time guns and clothes took part in the feud scenes.

From Big Stone Gap the company went to Frankfort, Ky., and through the courtesy of Governor Edwin P. Morrow obtained the cooperation of the chamber of commerce and state officials. The new Kentucky state capital was the center of many interesting scenes.

Monte Blue, in the role of Boone Stallard, a mountaineer who goes to the legislature to emancipate his people, does some of the best work of his career. Others in the cast include Diana Allen, as leading woman, Frank Joyner, Wilfred Lytell and John Miller.

APPELEGATE FAILS TO GET DECISION ON CUP REVERSED

APPELEGATE, May 16.—On Saturday evening the delegation that had been to Medford to prove our right to the cup, earned at the Talent field meet, came home shouting "Hurrah for Applegate." The neighborhood jumped to the conclusion that they had been awarded the cup. But it was a mistake. It was simply the effervescence of the indomitable Applegate spirit. The Athletic association had voted not to consider any evidence further in regard to awarding the cup, and to accept the report of the committee as final. That report leaves us one point behind the winning team.

The judges awarded us enough points to win the meet, but an error of the scorekeeper caused us to lose the cup.

However we have some things to our credit. Our girls basketball team were never defeated in a game with another high school. Their baseball team has never been defeated and claims the championship for the county. The boys' basketball team was defeated only once, by two points when one of its best players was sick in the hospital.

Our relationship with the other schools has been most pleasant, and we are happy in looking back over a year of clean sport.

For a program next Saturday the boys are preparing a minstrel show and the girls a short play. The proceeds will be applied to athletic expenses. Come out and enjoy a good program and encourage the boys and girls.

Lester Smith and Richard Head are our graduating class this year. The exercises will be held on the evening of June 17th. State Superintendent Churchill will address the class at that time. It is hoped that we will have a large attendance from all parts of Applegate valley. If the people of the valley will unite their efforts they can maintain a high school that will be a credit to the community and an inspiration to the coming generation.

The prevailing topic with the Applegate women is the pest of caterpillars which descended upon the valley a few days ago. A line of offensive and defensive warfare has been declared against them. The following are a few of the weapons used:

- Mrs. Benedict, fly swatter.
- Mrs. Knight, broom.
- Mrs. Thrasher, salt.
- Mrs. Schell, concentrated lye.
- Mrs. Pernoll, insect powder.
- Mrs. Brown, kerosene spray.

Mrs. Warren Mee is home again, after a few days visit in Central Point.

Very effective work is being done on the roads in this section, and excellent results are shown.

Heard, By the Way

"O Mr. K., what are you going to do to that tree?"
"Just prune away the dead branches, Mrs. S."
"I thought you were going to cut it down."
"Indeed, no. Trees are not wood now-a-days, they are scenery."

The farm bureau gave a moving picture show at the community hall on Saturday evening. It was a high grade entertainment and the very beautiful pictures shown were appreciated by a large audience, as was a brief speech by Mr. Cate.

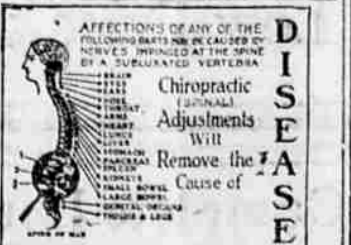

Mrs. Fred Benedict and Mrs. John Pernoll are spending a few days in Grants Pass.

The first party of the season to climb Tallow Box made the ascent last Sunday with T. H. Mansfield as guide. They give an enthusiastic account of the wonderful view from the lookout station at the top. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield, Velma Mansfield, Mrs. Schell, the Misses Cooper, Kennedy, Hathaway, and Mr. Wortman.

Mr. and Mrs. Pernoll and Mr. and Mrs. Schell motored to Medford Friday evening to attend service at the tabernacle.

Mrs. Darling of Ashland, is a house guest of Mrs. Henry Knutzen.

Several members of the Knights of Pythias from this neighborhood became D. O. K. K.'s at the recent ceremonial at Etna Mills, Calif. E. J. Brown, Orr Brown, Hugh Brown, Fred Offenbacher, Leon Offenbacher, and C. D. Schell and A. B. Turner attended from here. The reports are that they had lots of fun.
