HAWAII COLLEGE
JUBILANT OVER
GETTING O. KLUM

By Mike Jay.
HONOLULU, T. H.—What chance has the University of Oregon got now to beat the University of Hawaii here on Christmas and New Year's days, in the cock attitude of the island fans since the local varsity announced the signing up of Otto Klum, former coach of the Oregon Angles as coach. Klum is a high school coach and this will be his first big league opportunity. The material is here, if he has the stuff in him to develop it, and he would beat the University of Oregon.

The experts have figured it out that a mainland team coming here plays at approximately 60 per cent normal efficiency. The change in the climate from mid-winter in the temperate zone to that of a semi-tropic, is the cause of this. The Eugene men will leave cold weather and when they arrive here ten days later will put on flannels and heavy coats and drink hot cream sodas to keep cool, for they will find the thermometer about 75 or 80 while it was about 20 or 30 back home.

The Oregonians should be in better shape for the second game on New Year's day, for with two weeks of local climate, they will be in good shape again. Despite the queer fact that the climate does affect the newcomer, it is a queer fact that the acclimatization takes place quickly.

The student body of the University of Hawaii and the island fans are delighted with the fact that Klum has been signed. It was mainly due to the efforts of Bob Spencer, a former Astland, Ore., man, now captain of the University of Hawaii football team. The outlook for the local school is a line weighing between 175 and 180 pounds and a light, but fast backfield. This, combined with a punter who averages 55 yards, should make a winning combination. Hawaiian students likely to make the team are receiving footballs to take home with them for practice during the holidays and all who are to turn out for the team have agreed on certain hours of exercise daily. —Portland Oregonian.

ANOTHER FREE
MATINEE PAGE
ON SATURDAY

The free matinee for children, given by the Geo. A. Hunt company and the Medford Mail Tribune, at the Page theatre Saturday at 10:30, will have a delightful picture for the children, "The Daughter of a Wolf."

Delight Ainsworth, the motherless daughter of "Wolf" Ainsworth, a fur smuggler, is taken by her father on his spring expedition to the city. Heretofore she has never been out of the snow-bound regions of the Canadian forests.

In the city she meets Robert Draly, whose sweetheart has just left him for a man of more wealth, and who, in this despondent mood, finds in the company of Delight, a balm for his sorrow. He gradually comes to love her. One night, when they are to dine together, Robert is compelled to leave town suddenly, because of his father's sudden death. He sends Delight a telegram telling her why he left. But she never gets the wire, for at this time, "Wolf" has apprehended the presence of a revenue officer who is on his trail and bundles up his daughter and leaves hurriedly for his refuge in the wilderness.

At the end of a year, Draly goes to the north country and searches for Delight. Roe, "Wolf's" partner in their smuggling traffic, is jealous of Draly and he suspects Draly of being associated with the revenue officers. The two men meet at Brasco's Camp and both start for "Wolf's" camp. As they proceed on their way a storm comes up and Roe leads Draly off the road, and forces him into a fight. Draly knocks Roe out, but himself sustains a sprained ankle. He is unable to find his way out of the forest. Next morning, Delight finds Draly, injured and unconscious, and helps him to the shack. "Wolf" suspects him of being a "revenoer" and when an Indian arrives bringing Roe with him, Roe accuses Draly. The men are about to kill Draly when the revenue officers arrive. In the fight that follows, "Wolf" is killed and the other smugglers taken prisoner. Draly takes Delight away and they find happiness in the land of the Cherry Blossom.

All that is necessary for admission is a coupon clipped from this paper. Watch for it tomorrow.

LINCOLN'S BODY GUARD IS MEDFORD VISITOR

Comrade Frank A. Johnson, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. F. J. Pipgrass for a month and who leaves today for his home in Spokane, accompanied by his daughter and son, Charley, was a soldier of distinction in the Civil war and had the honor of being a member of Abraham Lincoln's body guard during the first year of the war and served the last two years in the Army of the Gulf and is very proud of a gold badge presented by the government for his services as Lincoln's bodyguard. He was a member of Co. M, N. Y. Cavalry.

Comrade Johnson read an original poem at the Decoration Day exercises in the Page entitled "The Last Grand Army Man." He based his poem on the fact that of the 2,841,996 who took part in the civil war 1,159,789 were under 21, that 104,587 were under 15 years of age, and 278 were under 12, which showed that many of them were just boys. There were only 222,958 survivors of the Civil war on April 30, 1921. During April 21,324 of them answered the last roll call and at this rate all will have passed to the great beyond.

GERMAN REMITTANCE IS SHOWN GOTHAM BANKS

NEW YORK, June 1.—A small portion, $35,733,000, of Germany's first reparations installment to the allies was paid by four New York banks with their checks against German government funds on deposit with them. The money was in the New York federal reserve bank today to the credit of the Bank of England and the Bank of France.

The banks representing Germany were Hallgarten and company; Equitable Trust company; Speyer and company and the Guaranty Trust company.

Noted Seafarer Dead.
OAKLAND, Cal., June 1.—Captain R. Rosich, widely known among shipping men, was found dead aboard his vessel, the H. D. Bendixsen, in Oakland estuary last night.

The two men and the woman are fast friends, and their thrilling adventures in the frozen wastes "north of sixty" compose one of the most masterful chronicles of adventure and love ever presented the public.

House Peters has never had a role in which he appeared to better advantage. Jane Novak, in the sympathetic role of the wife who is loved by two men, and who loves both, has the most successful role of her career.

Story of Northland, Rialto
Few screen productions have offered photoplay lovers the remarkable Northland scenes which are the settings for the story related in James Oliver Curwood's "Isobel; or, The Trail's End," which is to be presented at the Rialto theater for four days starting today.

This production, adapted from Curwood's greatest novel, "Isobel," and starring House Peters and Jane Novak has been heralded in all sections of the country as one of the most compelling love stories ever related on the screen. It has to do with the love of one Sergeant William McVeigh for the beautiful and faithful wife of the man McVeigh has been assigned to take dead or alive—McVeigh being of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. In spite of this apparent fatal triangle,
