ASHLAND FIRST CO. PREPARING FOR FT. STEVENS

ASHLAND, June 3.—"First Company First" is the slogan and as an incentive to enlistments the local military organization is propounding the following "did you ever" interrogatories, as applying to the forthcoming annual encampment, to be held at Fort Stevens from June 15 to 29, inclusive:

Did you ever see a 10-inch gun shoot?

Did you ever see a 60-inch searchlight operate?

Did you ever see the defenses of the Columbia River?

Did you ever visit Astoria and Portland?

Did you ever take the enjoyable ride down the Columbia from Portland?

Did you ever go on a trip with a lot of good natured, healthy boys?

Did you ever get an 800-mile trip with expenses and pay at the same time?

Did you ever see an anti-aircraft gun?

Do you like boat rides?

Do you want to see what army life is for a little while and at the same time get some fresh, invigorating ocean air?

Do you want to die clams?

Do you want to go surf bathing?

The foregoing queries apply to opportunities specific, also many other in general, provided you enlist at once, for the biggest, best and most enjoyable camp will be held this year. Both mental, physical and military training are available in connection with this outing, in fact, a regular vacation is yours, with companionable associations, supplemented by good, substantial food, comfortable beds, while the site of the fort is an ideal one from both marine and landscape standpoints.

If any contemplate this splendid free trip, with not only expenses provided for, but also pay in addition, then enlist at the Ashland armory on any day up to the limitation from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, between now and the date of leaving for the north.

Rev. Joseph Sasse, Methodist pastor at Medford will start the revival movement rolling here on Sunday evening, June 5, at the Chautauque auditorium. The hour will be eight o'clock. The Medford church choir will accompany the pastor. Dr. Bulgin will not take an active part until Monday evening, June 6. Cottage prayer meeting schedules are perfected, the town being systematically districted. White flags are displayed as a means of announcing these gatherings from day to day, and the appearance of the signal signifies that a prayer meeting will be held on the premises as indicated the evening following the date of the official forecast.

Beginning this week, Thursday, the Free Methodist church is holding its first quarterly meeting of the covenant year, closing on Saturday evening. Sessions will be held at 77 East Main street, Elder G. E. Glazier being the presiding officer.

Hillah Temple will hold a stated session at Masonic hall Friday evening, June 3, when reports connected with the recent Shrine ceremonial session at Eugene will be in order.
