

PREDICTS HUGE GROWTH FUTURE, PACIFIC COAST

DEL MONTE, Cal., June 10.—That California will have a population of ten millions by 1950 and that the known oil supply of the United States will be exhausted within the next 12 years at the present rate of consumption was the prediction of Robert Sibley, editor of the Journal of Electricity and Western Industry, made at the Industrial Conference which was the feature of the open session held here today by the Pacific Coast Geographic Division of the National Electric Light Association. The suggested solution made to both these propositions was a greater development of the water powers of the state. Sibley's conclusions are based upon the results of an exhaustive survey made through the co-operative effort of the fifty eight power companies of the west, assisted by nearly 4,000 industrial plants scattered throughout this region.

Plans of the public service industry were made public at this time which involve the building of power plants with a capacity of nearly two million horsepower within the next ten years in this state alone, calling for an expenditure of more than $200,000,000.

Other facts brought out at this time show that the 11 states west of the Rocky Mountains have shown a much more rapid growth in the past in almost every line of activity than the United States as a whole. The assessed value of property in the west has multiplied nearly five times since 1900, while the United States shows a present total only two and one-half times as great as that of 29 years ago. Western bank clearings have increased at more than double the rate achieved by the country as a whole. Farm crops from these states are now more than four times greater than they were at the beginning of the century, while figures for the whole country show not more than a triple increase. Manufactured products show a similar balance in favor of the west which has grown in manufacturing activities at almost double the rate of the rest of the country.

The advantage of the west in abundant water power was one of the reasons given for this supremacy and emphasis was laid on the importance of electric development to serve the future growth of this state. "Over one-third of the total acreage now irrigated in California is served with water by pumping," said Sibley—"and future agricultural development is almost entirely dependent upon electric service." He also emphasized the importance of electricity to manufacturing and demonstrated that for every two persons added to the population, one horsepower generating machinery must be installed in local power plants to meet their needs.

The federal government has purchased the quarantine station at New York from the state of New York.

BIG BARGAINS IN MEDFORD FOR TOMORROW

Medford will have a larger crowd of shoppers tomorrow than on Saturday for many months. The merchants of this city have large stocks of goods at prices that in many instances are below pre-war prices and there are a number of special sales on for tomorrow. It will pay the readers of this paper to study carefully the prices quoted in this paper tonight and every issue if they desire to keep posted on prices and sales.

City people should shop early and avoid the rush.

MARLBOROUGH-DEACON WEDDING JUNE 25TH

PARIS, June 10.—The Duke of Marlborough and Gladys Deacon, whose engagement was announced June 1, will be married late this month, probably June 25, in this city, says the continental edition of the Daily Mail. Miss Deacon, who is a daughter of the late Edward Parker Deacon, of Boston, Mass., has just taken a house at 16 Rue Auguste Vacquerie, from which she will be married.
