Ye Smudge Pot

By Arthur Ferry

Events are rapidly shaping themselves in this neck of the woods, so some mothers with tear stained eyes can come down to the newspaper office, and request that the names of their young daughters be kept out of the story.

The Baptist church in a reform spirit Saturday, resolved that Congress be urged to adopt laws prohibiting Americans from procuring a drink, while in a foreign land. Here is an idea of exceptional brilliance, and the mandate for its enforcement should be given to the Armenians.

The Amalgamated Chinwhackers of Jackson county have decisively knocked out C. Carpenter in the first round, but this will not alter their plans to hold the big fight next Saturday.

"The Dinner Served Sunday at the Bon Ton Cafe, will Not Be Forgotten Soon By All Who Partake."—(Beard Times)—Fair, frank and candid.

It is about time the C. of C. produced some figures on the backward grip average, and how it compares with last year, also if the vineyardist will eat them raw, or in a liquid form.

The gent who told the Printer's they could play ball was guilty of gross misinformation. Eagle Point walloped 'em on the Sabbath 39 to 18. Old Al Haren stopped a line drive with his hip pocket in the seventh.

A COMBATIVE VEHICLE.

(Eugene Guard) Mrs. Emory, who was knocked down by a bicycle a few days ago, is reported as doing nicely.

"I have a rendezvous with death" on the Specific Deway July 4, and expect to be scattered over fertile fields, where alfalfa grows, as a result of the great annual neckbreaking contest. I solemnly swear that if I am driving a car I will endeavor to make a damn fool out of myself, that the angle may squeal, and the wreck victims groan.

"SALEM WOMAN THROWN ON WITS"—(Headline Albany Democrat)—My dear, you should have seen it.

A COLOR BLIND MA.

(Eugene Register) Dear Miss Page: I am just 21 and very young looking for my age. My mother objects to my keeping company with a perfectly lovely red-headed young man because she says I look too young. She also objects to him because his hair is red, and he is so much taller than I. Shall I heed my mother or what shall I do?—Tlly.

What the country really needs is a hangover that will fit on the running gear of a U. S. automobile, with wheels should also be established, so the next generation will know something besides geography, and a course in fortune telling installed. The exports from Rumania get all this business now.

Chan Egan lost the golf championship Saturday, but hope is held out that the valley will soon return to normalcy.

MYSTERY IS RIGHT.

(Corvallis Gazette-Times) Railroad accidents seem to be quite common in this vicinity. The S. P. track north of town was all spluttered up with scrambled eggs as a result of the accident at Humber's crossing Sunday night. How the accident happened is a mystery, as there are clear tracks on both sides of the crossing for a long ways. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sims were in the automobile. Only Mrs. Sims was hurt.

The proposed relief bill for farmers seems to be founded on the theory that wages should be 10 cents per diem, and wheat $10 per bu, with unrestricted use of a stovepipe to get the small potatoes in the middle of the sack.

MITCHELL, S. D. June 27.—With nothing to eat and no place to sleep a 14-year-old boy who gave his name as Harold Teemire of Burlington, Ia., yesterday begged a dollar and spent it on firecrackers. He started shooting them in the business district and was arrested. He told the police he left home last April.

A HOPEFUL SIGN.

RIGHT looms, at last. The announcement that De Valera will accept the invitation of Lloyd George for a conference, is the first promising sign in the Irish situation for many months.

Once allow the leaders on both sides to talk things over, and some workable settlement of an intolerable situation, becomes possible. For only through a conference, can moderate opinion, on either side, become articulate. The great trouble heretofore has been that public opinion on neither side, has been allowed a medium of expression.

As a result the black and tans have held the stage for England, and the Sinn Fein Murder gangs for Ireland. As long as this condition existed, the only outcome was ruin and distress for both countries.

Only when Sinn Fein abandons its uncompromising determination to wage civil war, only when England abandons its uncompromising determination to rule or ruin, can there be any solution of the Irish problem. A conference between the British premier and Ireland's president, offers a possibility at least, that some such compromise, involving mutual concessions, will be attained.

TWO DRAFTED MEN.

ROVER CLEVELAND BERGDOLL, called to the defense of his country, ran away. He is a fugitive from justice. No matter what he may do with the rest of his life the brand of coward and deserter is upon him forever. Honest men will despise him wherever he goes. Loyal women will hold him in aversion. Try to conceal it with what braggadocio he will, shame is his portion.

Russell Gross, called by the draft when Bergdoll failed to answer, "forced into service ahead of his turn by the slacker Bergdoll," answered his summons promptly, went overseas with his detachment, served honorably and died a hero's death in the Argonne. His citation for bravery records that "he displayed great heroism and self-sacrifice, and his example of unselfishness was an inspiration to the other men in his platoon." In his honor, Overbrook Post of the American Legion in Philadelphia has changed its name to that of the dead hero, and is planning a special memorial to him.

One died, with a hero's heart. Men unite to honor him. One lives, with a coward's soul. Men scoff at his name.

WAR IS OVER.

THE war is over and I feel that all the world should know it; for profiteers still harshly steal the savings from a poet. How easily the prices rose in times of war and terror, when we were swatting brutal foes, convincing them of error! As patriots we stood the gaff and took the deadly bitters, thought prices would be shorn in half when we had whipped those critics. The war is over, but the cost of many things is booming, and all our wages we exhaust in ultimate consuming. How easily the prices slid until they reached the ceiling, when Wilhelm waved his iron lid, and all the world was reeling; as easily they should come down, since now the war is ended, and Wilhelm's lost his valued crown, and had his hucksaw mended. I'm taxed too much for this and that, for which and those and t'other, for catnip and for my sacred cat, and stogies for my brother. The war is over, and from woe to normalcy we're beating, but progress is so beastly slow we think we are retreating. Progressive merchants wisely strive to sell things cheap and cheaper, but profiteers are still alive, and make the prices steeper.

Ring Sketches of Bygone Years

Thumbnail Sketch No. 20

Jack Dempsey defended his title for the first time last Labor day against Billy Miske. He was the same terrible mauler that put Willard aside. His punches seemed to have almost superhuman force behind them and Miske lasted less than three rounds.

The challenger had grit aplenty and he knew how to box. He landed direct wallops against the champion frequently and his quick footwork eluded several punches. Although forced to be inactive for a year under the care of surgeons, Miske showed himself a much better scrapper than when he appeared on the eve of the Dempsey-Willard match and fought Harting Levisky.

But he was no match for the Giant Killer. Dempsey disabled him in the second round with a vicious blow over the stomach and just below the heart. In the third round he knocked him down three times before Miske was forced to quit.

The first time he was felled he stayed down for the count of nine and he was smiling when he regained his feet. The attack that finished the fight consisted of a hammer blow to the stomach followed by a right to the chin.

Those who like their photoplay entertainment liberally sprinkled with thrills and excitement need go no further today or tomorrow than the Rialto theatre, where Tom Mix is appearing in "Hands Off," a drama of Texas life that contains more enjoyment to the reel than three ordinary western pictures.

Mix opened yesterday, and a typical Mix reception awaited him, for his followers in this city always look forward to a picture by the Fox star as one of the events of the season. Tom did not disappoint them, and rode, roped and shot to the satisfaction of everyone, as well as throwing in a few new special stunts.

One of the stunts was the rescue of a child from in front of a herd of stampeded horses.

"Beau Revel" Makes Hit The new Paramount-Loce picture, "Beau Revel," which is the feature at the Page theatre today and tomorrow, continues to attract attention as one of the most powerful melodramatic pictures yet contributed to the screen. Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor, Kathleen Kirkham, Lloyd Hughes, William Conklin, and Harlan Tucker assume the principal roles of the unusual production. Interior settings of elegance add to the charm of the drama. Chief among these scenes are the palatial quarters of a fashionable country club as Long Island's smart set is convened in a dazzling dance festival, and the ultra-elaborate apartments of Beau Revel. The picture is attracting large crowds.
