RUSHING WORK ON COUNTY R'DS TO BEAT RAINS
 The county court is putting the county roads in shape for winter travel and expects to have all jobs now under way completed by the time the fall rains commence.
 The Trail road, the condition of which was protested by Tom Gaines and other residents of that section last spring, has been put in shape with an expenditure of $250. This is not all the improvement the county court would have liked to have made on this road, but they believe it will better the conditions that prevailed last winter, and enable ordinary travel to get in and out.
 The work of macadamizing the road on the North Fork of Butte Creek is under way, gravel being placed on a strip a mile and a half long. This is in the Mike Hanley and Tommy Farlow country, and these two headed a delegation that recently went to the county court with a protest. The macadamizing will be finished by the first of the month.
 The road in the Meadows district is being widened and graveled, and a new covered bridge built across Evans Creek. The Butte Falls road around Rocky Hill has been put in shape for winter traffic, and next year it is planned to macadamize the stretch between Rocky Hill and Eagle Point.
 The new Applegate road, which eliminates the Jacksonville Hill, has been macadamized three and one-half miles from Ruth towards Jacksonville, and the first rain will see the county roller out smoothing down the rough spots. This road has a maximum grade of five per cent.
 The county has a small crew of men at work on the Little Applegate, putting the roads to schoolhouses in shape. In a mile and one-half along this stream there are 16 ferds, and last week's work resulted in the elimination of four of them.
 Work on the Green Springs mountain road has been lessened, and next week the caterpillar and scarifier will be put at work by the county building a racetrack at the county fairgrounds south of this city.

LOCAL CHOIR LEADER GETS EASTERN OFFER
 One of the first churches of Philadelphia has tendered the position of choir director to Mr. A. Andrew Walker of this city. The rector and organist of this church and Mr. Walker have been associated together before.
 The above offer bespeaks the value placed upon Mr. Walker as a director and teacher, coming from the atmosphere of real professionalism once more. Mr. Walker is holding the proposition under consideration and is not forgetting that the winter in eastern cities is very conducive to rheumatism of which he is and has been a victim for three years. Mr. Walker has also received a letter

Dark, cool mornings are fine for sleep, but sleeping late never helped one up in the world. That's why the hustler needs a good alarm clock these days. We have the best make on the market.
 We have another good buy in Phonograph. $130.00 cash buys a perfect $150.00 machine.

The Screen
 At the Page
 One of the most thrilling chapters from the romantic history of the Northwest Mounted Police is the basis for the story of "Man Trackers", the photodrama which is to be shown at the Page theatre beginning today for three days.
 Those who are familiar with the traditions of the scarlet-coated riders of the north will perhaps recall the incident which has been written into the plot of "Man Trackers."
 A young sergeant of the Mounted loved the daughter of the inspector. His rival for her hand was the son of an influential citizen of the community. The rival plotted against him with a gang of criminals and made it look as though the young officer had shot him without provocation. He was sent to prison, cashiered out of the service and utterly disgraced. His return to right his wrongs was one of the most dramatic events of the north country not long ago, and has been perpetuated in this picture with a smashing climax of amazing unexpectedness.
 The cast includes Al Smith, Barney Furey, Ruth Royce, Harold Holland, Ralph McCullough, and others equally popular.
 At the Rialto
 A rare treat is promised patrons of the Rialto theatre by Manager Antle who announces that beginning today "The Journey's End" begins a four days' engagement at his house.
 It represents one of the distinct cinema novelties of the current season, inasmuch as it is the first serious drama ever made without a single subtitle from beginning to end. And yet critics who have been given an opportunity of reviewing this splendid production declare it to be a marvel of clearness, and the story is said to unfold with the utmost lucidity despite the absence of explanatory titles.
 The featured players in the cast are Mabel Ballin, Wyndham Standing and George Bancroft.
 Trotsky Changes Name
 PASAIC, N. J., Oct. 12.—The name Trotsky is a handicap no American should be compelled to labor under, County Judge Watson said today. He permitted Trotsky to change his name to Benjamin Travers.
