

ASHLAND BUDGET COMMITTEE GETS BUSY ON FINANCE

ASHLAND, Oct. 17.—Seven citizens good and true, will participate, with members of the city council in framing a municipal budget. Under the law, they must be freeholders. They may possibly be permitted to possess a little oil or mining stock on the side, but absolutely they shall not be connected with any municipal corporation according to the letter of the statute. The committee named includes F. D. Wagner, J. A. McGee, C. C. Weisenburger, B. M. Shoudy, W. M. Harber, W. A. Patrick, and W. P. Loomis. The basis for approximating the size of the budget for 1922 must be graduated on a plane not to exceed six per cent higher than the total expense account for the year preceding, the budget for 1921 having amounted to $52,887.26, bond interest requirements having taken nearly one-half this amount. However, the council has considerable latitude insofar as levying specific sums for meeting interest on its obligations. In the meantime the committee named will meet with the council from time to time, a report to be forthcoming on the first of November, the date for holding the next aldermanic session. On Nov. 2 local voters will pass judgment, at a special election, on the interminable bond question. This will be in regard to the issuing of $18,000 in municipal securities of the "potential" classification as distinguished from a lot of others which have already been marketed, the total issue being $63,387 for paying current indebtedness and refunding other obligations which have matured. To simplify matters, only two polling places will be established, the central one being at city hall, a circumstance which lessens both trouble and expense. Generally these special elections are merely perfunctory occasions anyway, merely serving to observe the letter of the law.

Promptly at 9 o'clock this morning, the Jackson County Teachers Institute convened at the high school building, the attendance being nominal. Supt. Briscoe, of the local schools, welcomed the educators in the opening address. A leading feature of the afternoon program was the address on "Marriage and Divorce in Relation to the Schools", delivered by S. Teuscher, Jr., a talk which the Parent-Teacher association urged all citizens to hear and profit thereby. Although the formal program for the three-day conference has already been published in these columns under the heading of "Notes", special attention is called to the following detailed particulars:

We are meeting upon common grounds for the discussion of common problems looking toward a common good. All sessions of the institute are open to the public. General sessions will be held in the high school auditorium. Evening sessions are omitted. The primary section will meet in the lecture room under leadership of Mrs. Marletta Browne, of Rogue River. The grammar section, meeting in the auditorium, will be in charge of Ray Henderson, of Central Point. The rural section will meet in the gymnasium downstairs. Miss Elizabeth Burr, who is but recently come among us as rural supervisor, will preside. The high school section, with Principal O. K. Campbell, of Medford high school as chairman, will meet in room 2 of the east wing. Teachers can secure rooms at various homes through inquiry at the secretary's desk. Be on time! An attendance of sixteen hours is required of every teacher in a county

Miss Muriel McCormick

Miss Muriel McCormick, heiress to two fortunes, granddaughter of the world's richest man, John D. Rockefeller. Her life's ambition is fame in the theatre. Whether it be opera or drama, she does not know, but Miss McCormick hopes it is opera. She attends the opera every night in its season and goes to every rehearsal. Her dress is black and white, for she believes one's colors should express one's personality. Miss McCormick said she planned to make her debut last year in the Burgh Theatre. That is as famous in Vienna as the Comedie Francaise is in Paris. "But the newspapers published about two lines on my work and my study and almost a whole page on who my parents were and who my grandfather was. I was disgusted. I determined that I should never appear on the stage if I could only be 'sent off' by my family."

BIG PINES LUMBER CASE IS STARTED IN FEDERAL COURT

The civil suit of the McComber-Savage Lumber company of San Francisco against the Big Pines Lumber company of this city for the collection of $29,227.66, alleged to have been advanced on a contract for lumber, alleged to have been unfulfilled, was begun in the federal court this morning before Judge C. E. Wolverton.

The lawsuit, which promises to be one of the hardest fought legal actions in the history of southern Oregon is represented on both sides by attorneys of high fame in Pacific Coast states. The defense is represented by Attorney George M. Roberts of this city, and Attorney A. A. Hampson of Portland. The plaintiff is represented by W. L. Crittenden of San Francisco, Joseph T. Webb of San Francisco, and A. E. Reames of this city. Webb is rated as one of the best-pleaders in the west.

The action is the outgrowth of a contract made June 9, 1920, when lumber was at the peak of war time prices, according to the opening statement to the jury for the defense by Attorney Roberts, who asserted that immediately afterwards lumber began to drop, and alleged that dilatory tactics were adopted thereafter by the plaintiff relative to orders for shipments of lumber under the contract, cut in this county. Attorney Roberts said that the evidence would show that the Big Pines Lumber company lived up to its agreement and that by reason of the falling through of the same, the local concern had lost in the neighborhood of $38,000.

The plaintiff, through Attorney Webb, contended that the Big Pines company had failed to fulfill their portion of the contract, and that it had been allowed to "stain and blue," contrary to good sawmill practices, and that it had not been cut according to specifications forwarded. Both sides denied the main allegations of the other in full. The first witness called was Frank McComber, president of the McComber-Savage Lumber company, whose testimony was limited just before noon, by the interposing of an objection by the defense, against the giving of testimony not set forth in the contract. The case is expected to last three or four days, and is the concluding one of the present term of the federal court in this city.

Y. M. C. A. DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE TO ATTEND F. BALL GAME

The Ashland Y. M. C. A. committee on arrangements met Friday night and completed the plans for the older boys conference to be held in that city this week-end. The Baptist church was chosen as the conference church and all sessions will be held there except the closing service, which is a union one. This will be held at the more commodious Methodist church and will be addressed by one of the strong conference speakers. The general public is invited to this closing service.

The banquet for all registered delegates will be given Saturday night. Arrangements for this are in the hands of Chairman V. O. N. Smith who has planned for some clever stunts to take place around the banquet table.

Grants Pass team will play Ashland on Saturday afternoon, the conference sessions being arranged to provide for a recess at that period. Through the kindness of Principal Forsythe all delegates will be admitted to the game free.

During the next few days every effort possible should be made by those interested in the welfare of our young folks to get a representative delegation from every community to attend the conference.

"Would you believe this blanket's been in the tub a dozen times?"

BLANKETS retain their original softness if washed always with California Citrus Washing Powder.

This finely powdered cleanser of unique composition melts—every tiny bit of it—into a soapy solution that whips into creamy, thorough-cleansing suds which rinse out easily and completely, leaving not a trace of soap or sediment to felt and stiffen or discolor woollens.

To wash blankets and other woollen things, dissolve a small package of Citrus in a pail of hot or boiling water (pour water on the powder). Stir this solution into a suds and pour into cooler water in the tub or washer. Immerse the blankets in this warm Citrus suds and squeeze—not rub—them clean. Rinse in lukewarm water. Dry in the shade (never in the sun) on a breezy day, if possible. The blankets are sure to come out soft, fluffy and unshrunken.
