Something is wrong with the dogs of the United States forestry service in southern Oregon. Alex, the police dog of Supervisor Hugh Rankin at Medford has a bad case of sleeping sickness, and now comes the following item in the Grants Pass Courier: "E. H. MacDaniels, of the forest service department is greatly worried. He has good reasons. His collie dog returned home the other day, and proudly exhibited a wife, a black-and-tan. Mr. MacDaniels could stand this much, but when the proud father brought around 11 children, it was too much for the forest service man. He reports that the hard luck overtook the puppies, as the errand drowned seven of them."
