The Screen

Pola Negri in 'One Arabian Night'

Pola Negri Here Tomorrow

A dream of Arabian Nights magnificence and romance brought to life. That, in a phrase, describes "One Arabian Night," which will start an engagement of four days at the Rialto theatre tomorrow. Pola Negri is the star of this production.

"The Madame Du Barry of 'Passion' takes the part in this picture of a wild, whirling, dancing nymph of the desert, for love of whom men fight; in turn, herself loving with the ferocity of the sandstorms that are her playmates. Here she is more beautiful than Du Barry.

In her dance before the Sheikh, in whose harem she is later installed as the favorite wife, she performs gyrations which probably have never been equalled on the screen.

"One Arabian Night" presents some of the most gorgeously artistic sets ever presented in a photodrama.

Ernst Lubitsch, the master director who produced "One Arabian Night," likewise plays the principal male role, that of a hunchback clown, head of a traveling troupe of players of which the dancer is the chief asset.

"The Man of the Forest," which closes tonight at the Rialto theatre, is truly a picture for the whole family. Full of action and thrills, there runs through it all a sweet and tender love story that lends enchantment. Probably one of the most interesting features of this film, outside of the many examples of superb horsemanship and the beautiful scenic shots, is the acting of a huge grizzly bear, a tawny mountain lion, and a faithful dog, the pets and companions of "The Man of the Forest."

"The Hunch," at Page "The Hunch," starring Gareth Hughes, which is announced by the Page theatre for today, Sunday and Monday. The story deals with the adventure of a young Wall Street broker who wakes one morning after a convivial party to find "Buy JH" inscribed on his shirt front. "JH" means Jerusalem Steel and the broker has a hunch that it will make his fortune. He borrows money to buy. Then the stock slumps. His loan is called in. Unable to meet it and unwilling to give up his hunch he arranges to disappear for a time, leaving a hat and knife to indicate that he has been murdered. Starting for the country, he is arrested as a suspicious character and held for his own murder.

The series of hilarious incidents that follow in the story seem made for screen use and the role of the young broker should show Mr. Hughes at his best.

Ethel Grandin, who headed her own company before her retirement several years ago, returns to the screen as the heroine.

MAYOR OF CHICAGO COOKS UP SCHEME TO RUN RAILROADS

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—A national railroad service commission with power to take over operation of the railroads was advocated by Mayor Thompson in a letter made public today to Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. The mayor, in reply to Mr. Hoover's invitation for suggestions concerning the unemployment situation, said the ability of the laborer to live cheaply lies in solving the railroad problem.

"I favor the establishment in the United States of a railroad service commission to be elected by the people with two commissioners from each state, one to be elected at each congressional election in order to make a continuous body; such railroad service commission to have the power to condemn or purchase and to take over the railroads in the United States and to operate them in the interest of the people instead of for speculators and for private owners," the letter said.

"This would give an opportunity to the producer to be represented on the railroad service commission at the same time giving like opportunity to the manufacturer."
