The Medford postoffice patrons, besides being urged to mail out their Christmas packages to distant points early can gain a distinct advantage in having such parcels promptly routed direct to their destinations by mailing them at the postoffice early in the forenoon. Most persons wait until afternoon, and especially late afternoon, before mailing Christmas parcels, thereby causing somewhat of a congestion and exceedingly rapid work on the part of the clerks to get them into the mail bags in time to go out on the early evening trains.

The return games of the valley ball series between Medford and Ashland will be played here tonight. The teams are made up from the best of men's gym classes conducted by the Y. M. C. A. Considerable interest has been generated in these games, continued from last year. In the first games of the season, played at Ashland two weeks ago, the Medford men won two out of three games in each of the two sets and will of course attempt to repeat the performance on this occasion. Ashland will, however, as usual dispute every inch of the way. They were somewhat handicapped in the last game by the absence of one of their star players, Carl Davling, who proved himself a strong factor in the Ashland combination last year. A small gallery of ladies frequently attend these match games.
