

ANDY SMITH LETS NEWSPAPER MEN LOOK OVER BEARS

PARADENA, Cal., Dec. 28.—A variation of his rule of secrecy for the practice of the University of California football team in preparation for its game here next Monday with the Washington and Jefferson eleven was put into effect by Coach Andy Smith today when he permitted local and visiting newspapermen and photographers to attend and take notes and pictures. Smith still keeps secret the some of practice however, making no announcements as to whether he escorts the Bears to new fields every day but merely stating what is known to everybody who would like a preliminary view of the Blue and Gold warriors in action—that they are not working out at Tournament park, where they will meet the invading easterners. Hard and fast work, both in signals and scrimmages, is understood to be the general program Smith has mapped out for his men.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. O. Kowliatt

In my last letter to the Medford Mail Tribune, I simply mentioned the fact that there was a school entertainment given by the teachers of our school and discovered that if I understood to give an account of it as it deserved that it would make my letter entirely too long, so I decided to put it off until a future letter. Well, our teacher, Mrs. Josephine Holmes, and Miss Alice Lovin commenced to prepare the little folk some little while before and when they found that they could not secure the use of the hall for the entertainment, they decided to use the church building and Tuesday afternoon there was a collection of between thirty and forty children and adults enough to fill the building collected and promptly at two o'clock p. m. the exercises began with singing by the whole school and after singing several songs the little folk gave us some short recitations and songs and from the way they were applauded, suppose they were fully up to date. As I was so far back from the platform I could not hear, and some of the ladies who sat just in front of me, although the two who sat directly in front of me, conformed to the rules on such occasions, removed their hats, while others wore their hats and seemed to try to see how much space they could cover, by moving first to one side and then the other, and the two ladies just ahead of me were kept busy erasing their necks first one way and then another, to try to get a glimpse of the children while they were performing their parts, trying to see through or around a very large hat on a woman's head on the front seat that obstructed the view completely, while if she had known that by removing that head ornament, she would have rendered a great service to a number of people who were sitting behind her. But this is a digression and I sincerely hope that I will not have to be thus angered again, or have the ladies reminded that in an audience like the one referred to they are supposed to remove their hats. After the introductory exercises the curtains were drawn and preparations were being made for the main part of the program, but as I had been on the sick list for almost a month, and began to feel quite chilled, for the house was not well heated prior to the commencement and the door was left open quite often so had to return home before the play began, but a friend of mine, Rev. H. C. Adams, who was there, reported that the whole play was fine and well rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rynnings, chief engineer on the Crater Lake Highway who have had rooms over the T. E. store, have gone to Portland to spend Christmas.

Mr. E. C. Semman, he also was a member of the engineering corps on the same road, has moved his family to Talent and Mr. Grover, who has been living in the old Coy home, now owned by Mrs. James Owens, have moved into the house they vacated, the P. H. Doolley house.

Fred Pettigrew, who has been having some work done on his auto has been spending a day or two at the Sunnyside.

Mrs. Susan Hart was transacting business with our merchants during mid-week.

George W. Stowell, our chicken king, was a business caller Wednesday. W. H. Crandall and family passed through here Wednesday on their way to Medford and Mr. T. F. McCabe was also in town the same day.

Miss Francis Greb, who is teaching in the Pernist District, came out and teachers' examination before the board for state papers and Miss Alice Train, our primary teacher, also went in for the same purpose.

Mrs. M. S. Wood went to Central Point to visit her daughter.

Mrs. John Miller of Lake Creek, who had been out to Medford visiting her two married daughters, came out on the stage Wednesday.

Fred Strang of Medford, Clayton Long, Corvallis, E. E. Oatman, Medford, H. E. Warner, C. A. Pickett, the meter reader for the C. & O. P. Co., C. C. Cate, J. E. Baker, Medford, were all here for dinner. They were demonstrating pruning in the orchards, they had been working in the Ala Vista orchard and came here for dinner and in the afternoon went to the Vilas orchard.

The Ladies' Civic club of Eagle Point will meet the next time at Mrs.

Wm. von der Hellen's and Mrs. Reid and Mrs. von der Hellen will entertain.

Thursday noon Frank Manning and son, Charles E. Brown, N. Smith and Miss Allene Johnson, who is teaching in the Brophy district, Bert Higinbotham and wife of Ashland, Mrs. John Allen of Derby, W. F. Wolgamot of Medford called for dinner Thursday and Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Hill of Derby called and waited until time for Lewis Hiney to go to Medford, and went on their way to Napa, Calif. Mrs. Allen went on to Medford and returned that night to the Sunnyside for the night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dodge of Newport, Oregon, who have been here at the Sunnyside since the 2nd of December, started for their home Thursday. Mr. Dodge is an agate worker, and has a shop in Newport, and has been here spending the most of his time gathering agates. He has shipped several hundred pounds, beside taking quite a lot with him.

Mr. E. V. Peterson, the mail contractor for carrying the mail from here to Pernist and back, reports that as he was coming in from Trail Thursday, he overtook Mrs. Jasper Hannah and her daughter, Mrs. Odessa Haskins with a flat tire. He stopped and fixed it up for them and went on his way rejoicing, but had not gone far before he had trouble with his tire, so they passed him and after repairing his puncture, started on and soon overtook them again with a blowout, but a man had come to the rescue, so he drove on and some time after he reached the postoffice they came in all O. K., but that shows some of the tribulations of those who have to travel over our country roads, and still our legislators will vote to levy a tax of $3,000,000 to pay the expense of a fair in Portland.

Clarence Middlebush of Klamath Agency, came in Thursday night, spent the night and Friday morning went in to Trail to visit his mother and family.

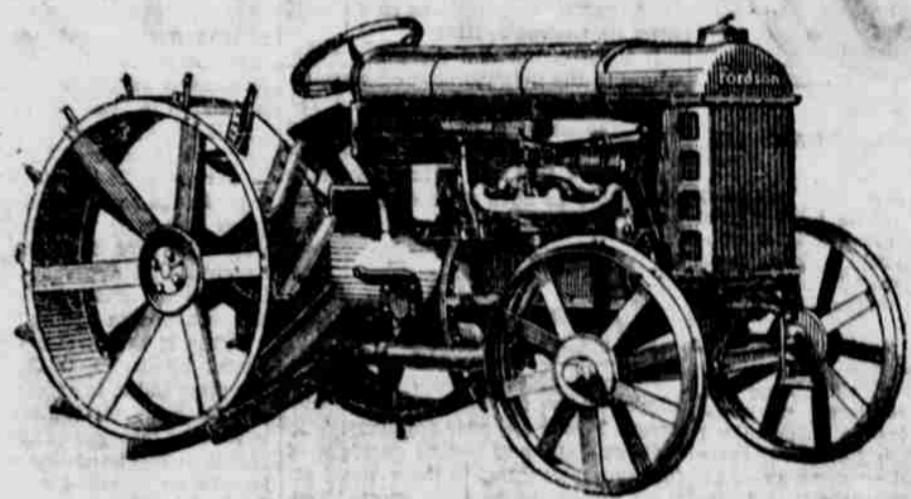

It becomes my painful duty to chronicle the death of one of our promising young ladies, Miss Cleo Emma Robertson, daughter of Mr. John Robertson of this place, aged 16 years, 7 months and 3 days. The loss of Miss Robertson seems more especially sad on account of the position she was filling at the time of her death, December 22, 1921. She had been betrothed to her mother in July 1920 and left to care for an infant brother and younger sister, about nine years of age, and to keep house for her father, and notwithstanding her age she assumed the responsibility and cared for the children and attended to the affairs of the household with neatness and cheerfulness. She was a promising member of our Sunday school and a consistent member of the Baptist church and she and her mother were admitted to the church and baptized the same day. She leaves not only her brother and sister and brothers mentioned above, but her grandparents and several uncles and aunts and a host of warm friends and schoolmates behind to battle with the cases of life. The remains were interred in the Central Point cemetery, Saturday afternoon. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Stills, assisted by Rev. T. G. Adams. There was a very large number of neighbors friends and schoolmates attended the funeral.
