TOO MANY ARE PLAYING AT JOBS OF CHRISTIANS

Last night at the revival meeting scores moved on first call pledging their cooperation in every way toward the success of the campaign now on in Medford against the Devil, in and out of the church. Also many came confessing their indifference of the past and recommitting themselves for service in the Kingdom.

Many members of other churches in the city were present, and came forward expressing their interest in the success of the meeting.

Dr. Coale preached a very plain message to the church, and told the congregation that the great majority of professed Christians are playing at the job of religion.

Rev. Albert Cunningham repeated, by special request "Nothing Between." The solos of Brother Cunningham are very much appreciated by all and the choir is developing in numbers and interest.

Dr. Coale will speak at 7:30 tonight on "Sowing and Reaping."

BUCHTER HOME IS MENACED, 3 MUSK EATERS TO RESCUE

John J. Buchter was blissfully snoozing through one of the boxing bouts at the Elks lodge session last night when he was summoned to the phone by his wife about 10 o'clock, who in an agitated frame of mind imparted the startling information that a burglar was trying to break into their home at the corner of Park avenue and Dakota streets, where she was alone.

With unusual presence of mind and calmness under stress, Mr. Buchter, armed himself with several hot wiener sandwiches and a hunk of cheese, jumped into his flivver and was quickly enroute to the rescue.

In the meantime, Jack Hemstreet and Alex Sparrow, fellow Spanish American war veterans, to whom he had whispered the alarming situation at home, got busy—Hemstreet at the phone urging the police to hurry to the Buchter home, and Sparrow starting for that location on foot wielding a soup ladle and muttering regular army cavalry language.

The several rescue parties arrived about the same time, too late to catch the intruder, who evidently had been frightened away. Then the three former Aguilardo chasers and right hand aides of Admiral Dewey, sat down and ate John J.'s weapons.

At the Page

Dumas died before the period of Douglas Fairbanks, but he might propheticly have written the story for him, so naturally does he fit into the character of D'Artagnan in the motion picture version brought to Medford by Geo. A. Hunt and Co., being shown at the Page theatre last times tonight. And he is indeed worthy of the strength of the story and worthy of its fame, and worthy of its character wealth.

Last Times Tomorrow

The final showings of Wallace Reid's excellent automobile race picture, "Too Much Speed," will be had at the Rio theatre tomorrow. This is an excellent photoplay and aside from its dramatic flavor, there is much reliable comedy. Agnes Ayres, a charming actress, plays opposite Mr. Reid.

JIM OWENS NOT TO BE CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

James Owens, county commissioner will not be a candidate for re-election at the spring primary. Mr. Owens decided to run, and it is likely that Thomas Simpson of Ashland will seek the job. Mr. Simpson served part of one term on an appointment to fill a vacancy. Political gossip says that Ashland will be satisfied if she is accorded a commissioner.

"I appreciate my friends asking me to run for a second term," said Mr. Owens Thursday, "but I have other interests to look after. There is a lot of grief attached to a commissionership, and you have it on your mind all the time. What the county needs is a commissioner who can say 'no' faster than he can say 'yes,' and I can't do that."

Local Brier's

The University of Oregon health service, with the approval of the social affairs committee, has decided to prohibit all dances and social activities on the campus and down town for another week. The order from the health service states that the epidemic of colds and grip has not yet become an epidemic of influenza, and it was to prevent danger of further infection that the ban on social doings has been extended for another week. It is understood that the epidemic at the university is now well under control.—Eugene Register.
