

WILLS KNOCKS KID NORFOLK OUT, MAY MEET DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, March 3.—Harry Wills, New York negro heavyweight, is to be pitted as a result of his victory over "Kid" Norfolk last night for a title match with Jack Dempsey.

Norfolk, a Baltimore product, went to the canvass after 26 seconds of boxing in the second round with Wills last night. Several persons claimed to have seen the blow which sent the "Kid" down, but it escaped the notice of a majority of those at the ring side.

After a tame first round Wills and Norfolk started and missed a few punches in the second round, then fell into a cluch. The referee made an effort to separate them when Norfolk toppled over backwards. He arose and walked to his corner, apparently unhurt, after taking the count.

Wills and the referee, "Kid" McPartland, said the knockout blow was a short inside right to the jaw.

Dempsey last night again expressed his willingness to defend his title against Wills and Governor Edwards of New Jersey said he would approve such a match in his state if the public demanded it.

Who Is Mohandis Gandhi?

Mohandis K. Gandhi, leader of the nationalist movement in India is the central figure of the remarkable "pacifist revolution" which has stirred the 313,000,000 people of the Indian empire as perhaps, never before since the days of the Sepoy mutiny.

He has been called a philosophic anarchist, a new Tolstol. He became more dominant than ever in the campaign against British rule in India when, in December last, the Indian national congress in its annual session at Ahmedabad invested him with sole executive powers of that congress with authority to appoint his successor in any emergency.

The congress voted to suspend all other activities in order to concentrate upon civil disobedience, a feature of which was not only the enlistment in the National Volunteer corps, but included also refusal to pay taxes and an attempt to boycott British goods.

Soon after the congress adjourned Gandhi sent a manifesto to Lord Reading, the viceroy, offering to abandon aggressive plans provided the government set free his followers, many hundreds of whom were in prison, and provided the press was released from administrative control and fines and forfeitures were restored.

The British India office promptly announced that it would not discuss such demands and that it intended to adopt stern measures to suppress the campaign of civil disobedience.

Non-violence and non-cooperation with the Indian government have been the fundamental principles of Gandhi's campaign. His ideas have dominated the Indian congress and his appointment as executive of that body virtually made him dictator of the revolution.

ary movement. He sought to attain swaraj, (self-determination or freedom for every one) by non-resistance, by conquering the enemy by love.

Gandhi has been described as a dark, little wisp of a man, who has fasted so long and often that he is physically a mere shadow of a man. He was born 52 years ago in the Bombay presidency, the son of a Hindu merchant. He studied law, and finished his legal training in London where he donned the European dress. He has said that he drew the inspiration for his movement from the New Testament, Christ's Sermon on the Mount and from Tolstol's "The Kingdom of God is Within You."

As a lawyer he defended the Indians who had been arrested in South Africa and was himself imprisoned there. During a long campaign in behalf of the Indians in South Africa, he was jailed three times and once ambushed and left for dead but eventually obtained legislation to protect the rights of the Indians. He organized an ambulance corps to serve in the Boer war and rendered similar service in London during the world war. He went back to India in 1915.

The idea of self-determination had taken deep root in that empire and it burst into flame when 500 Indians were killed and 2000 wounded in the Amritsar uprising and Indians of the Punjab were made to crawl through certain streets in humiliating punishment for rioting.

Gradually Gandhi assumed direction of the campaign of protest against what have been called "The Punjab atrocities" and his sway over the millions of Hindus has steadily gained force until he is called in India "Mammatma," or the wonder worker.

WAR BREAKS OUT IN FIUME AGAIN, CITY TERRORIZED

LONDON, Mar. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The Italian fascisti in Fiume succeeded at 5 o'clock this morning in occupying the postoffice and later in completely surrounding the government palace, attacking it with hand grenades and machine guns, says a Rome dispatch to the Exchange-Telegraph company. The fascisti returned the fire of the government palace and a state of virtual civil war has broken out between the Italian and Croat elements of the city. The fascisti also are reported to have captured an Italian torpedo boat.

FIUME, Mar. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The city of Fiume and its environs were in a state of terror today. The renewal of conflicts last night between the fascisti and the local police resulted in the death of one of the fascisti and the wounding of a score of participants of both factions.

Carabinieri today occupied the government palace in an effort to restore order, but the conflict between the fascisti and the police in efforts to disarm each other still continues.

The government palace was stormed late last night by militarized companies of fascisti who bombed the building, exploding at least 100 grenades in an effort to force President Zanella to vacate. A pitched battle lasting two hours occurred in the suburb of Drenova, and it was here that most of the combatants were wounded.

The renewed outbreaks were occasioned when a member of the fascisti named Fontana, was shot and killed in the street. His companions claimed he was a victim of an assault by the local police.

FRENCH SCHOOL BOYS SPECULATE IN FOREIGN COIN

PARIS.—Even the schoolboys of Paris now speculate in money of foreign countries. The fever which has prompted French people of all classes to invest their francs in German marks, recently led a 12-year-old boy to one of the large Paris banks where he asked for "a franc's worth of German money."

The clerk was amazed at the youthful request and stuck his head out of the cage so that he might better see the boy whose head scarcely reached the window ledge. The child continued, as though seeking advice: "Perhaps it would be better if I bought Hungarian money. I read in the paper this morning that marks had gone up but Hungarian money hadn't, but Hungary has lots of corn and I think her money will go up soon, don't you?"

The clerk told the child the bank did not transact business on such a limited scale, and advised him to invest his franc in candy.

HALF DEAD BOY HANGS

he muttered, "sister, sister," but then again became silent.

Mrs. Church collapsed, falling across her son's bed crying, "Harvey, my boy, speak to me, tell me about it so they won't hang you."

There was no response, and Mrs. Church was carried from the cell.

Late last night, Church moved slightly for the first time in many days. The movement, turning slowly from his right to the left side, followed a visit of his sister in which she pleaded with her brother to open his eyes, recognize her and make a farewell statement for his aged parents. Church's slow, even breathing and steady pulse beat were unchanged, however, and the doctors reiterated opinions that the transformation during his five weeks' hunger strike had resulted in complete loss of mental and physical control and that his mind probably has ceased to function. Church's crime was the murder of Bernard J. Daugherty and Carl Aumun, automobile salesman, from whom he had indicated he intended to purchase a high-priced motor car. The men were lured to the Church home, taken singly to the basement, handcuffed and beaten with a baseball bat and hand axe.

Daugherty's body was thrown into the Dea Plaines river and Aumun, while yet alive, was buried in the Church garage, his neck being broken according to Church's confession, when he stamped on the body to force it into a shallow hole hurriedly scooped out.
