Viscount Lascelles has the indignation. His bride was Princess Mary, and aspersions are being cast upon the royal biscuits.

Woodrow Wilson is regaining his old time health and vigor. For this the nation rejoices, but it is no excuse to make his blundering son-in-law, W. G. McAdoo, president, by a rising vote instead of an election.

"THAT DAMN BONUS BILL" (Portland Telegram)

NEW YORK, Mar. 16.—Otto H. Kahn, the banker, in a speech before the Advertising club, recommended that the United States cancel the allied debt of $11,000,000,000 provided the various European nations agreed to cancel debts between themselves.

ANNOUNCEMENT The time is fast approaching for the voters of the state to speak at the polls, and being a chronic addict to running for office under the primary system, I hereby announce myself as a candidate for ex-officio savior of the commonwealth, on the following platform:

Operation of the machinery of government on wind.

Centralizing of the community gossiping.

$10 per bu. for the farmer's wheat, and a maximum wage of a dime per diem for hired men.

Reduction of the high cost of spring hats for women.

Eradication of horse sense in public office, when a fool notion will sound better.

Thorough purification of thy next door neighbor, and banishment of sin from the human heart by a law to be passed by the legislature, if I am elected.

Introduction of the coyote hide as a medium of exchange instead of the present cumbersome iron dollar.

Swift prosecution of all trains, phone poles, curbs, and hydrants that run into autoists. I also favor a second chance, when humans are not killed the first time.

Free tires for motor vehicles.

Rain when it is needed, not when it feels like it, as under gang rule.

Passage of laws setting forth what church a man shall belong to.

I will name a commission of worship to regulate the soul. Bigots who think they can defy this law will not be tolerated.

I also promise that all my appointees will be more incompetent than myself.

Organization of agitating clubs in all cities, towns and the country.

Warmer water in all rivers and creeks for fishermen with rheumatic tendencies.

Derive revenue from all public buildings by renting them as pantoriums.

24 hour per day pestering of railroads and other corporations.

Conservation of the virgin forests, and more protection to bob-tailed bluejays.

Battling valiantly for the right, I am, J. Helluva Fellow.

COLUMBUS, N. M.—Johnny Stopper, Denver given referee's decision over Billy Wolfe in ten rounds.

GOING TO EXTREMES.

AMERICANS always go to extremes. It is inevitable in a nation or individual of high vitality.

Just as we went to extremes in inflating taxes so we promise to go to extremes in deflating them. The plan to reduce salaries of all public officials is a case in point.

Everyone wants efficiency in public office. The cry for the same efficiency in public business that is common in private business, has been sounded for many years, and will continue to be sounded.

And yet further reduction in salaries for public service, will render the problem of increasing efficiency, in public office that much more difficult.

How can we expect to get competent men in public life, when we pay nothing for their services, and give them nothing but abuse and criticism for their efforts. Unless there is a change in the public attitude, the time is not far distant, when no self-respecting man will consider entering public life, on any consideration.

Moreover, putting cheap men in public office is the poorest sort of economy. A capable man, at a good salary, will save ten times his salary the first month. The increase in taxes is not due so much to the amount of money spent, as the amount of money wasted.

The sensible thing to do toward retrenchment is not to cut salaries of public officials, but eliminate about half of the needless departments and eliminate about 25 per cent of the needless officials, then concentrate upon a few capable officials, pay them what they are worth and back them up regardless of politics, partisan or personal.

Quill Points

Some men like closed ears, and some chew tobacco.

Majority: The greater number. Antonym: Borah.

A French chef has come to the defense of pretzels. The war is over.

The reason men brag about the bee's industry is because men get the honey.

Those whom patriotism sent flying to the ship yards have not yet demanded a bonus.

At that, taxation without representation wasn't much worse than taxation without limitation.

Those who urge a tax on beer to get the bonus would be content to let the bonus go to get the beer.

And if we knew the private lives of those who knock the movies, perhaps we wouldn't approve of them, either.

In the old days, "polite" people were comparatively few. But there were no dress suits for rent at that time.

A Kansas man bitten by a dog took one of its pups as compensation. Well, the heir of the dog will cure the bite.

In the spring the average man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of loafing.

Economy: Government expenditure described by those in power. Extravagance: The same described by those not in power.

You can judge good breeding by the length of the fingers, perhaps; but the length of the tongue is even more conclusive.

Long engagements at least give a fellow a chance to finish paying for the ring before making first payment on the furniture.

"The immigrant soon catches the American spirit and clean up." And the celebrity soon catches the American spirit and cleans up.

There's one thing about wireless typewriters. If they don't make good, a man won't be tempted to keep 'em on account of their looks.

FINANCIAL WIZARD.

FINANCIAL wizards rise at times, and cry in accents sweet, "Oh, easy marks, bring us your dimes, and land in Velvet street! We'll pay you ninety nine per cent on all the coin you bring; with such returns, it's evident, you soon must dance and sing." The easy marks, in eager ranks, to Wizard calls respond, and draw their money from the banks, and cash the U. S. bond; oh, every kopeck they can scrape, they promptly, gladly ship; no hoarded coins of theirs escape the Wizard's master grip. "Ods death," the prudent bankers say, "why ship the good long green? Why send the shining seeds away to guys you've never seen? We'll show you how you may invest in safety all your own; why strip, we ask, your treasure chest, to back some fake unknown?" "You only pay some five per cent," the easy marks reply; "on sudden riches we are bent, and that's the reason why." And then some day we read once more of how some Wizard failed, his millions blown, while round his door the maddened victims wailed. "At last," we sigh, "the easy marks have learned their lesson dire; hereafter they will shun the sharks, as burned kids shun the fire." But when tomorrow's wizard tells of fortunes swiftly made, the easy marks, all wearing bells, will to his door parade.

Sky is Laughter Limit The Page theatre wishes to issue the warning to its patrons that the sky is the absolute and positive limit of the laughter that will be permitted when "Never Weaken" will be presented today, tomorrow and Monday. The star is Harold Lloyd, the comedian who has introduced to photoplayers the new laugh that comes clean and full from a happy heart and carries no blush with it. Lloyd performs some amazing stunts on the iron skeleton of a skyscraper in the process of construction. Pretty Mildred Davis leads leading feminine support. Rudyard Kipling and his famous story, "Without Benefit of Clergy," have come to the screen with all beauty and atmosphere of the original, and is booked as feature number on today's bill. Everybody will want to see themselves and friends in the local movies which were taken by Louise Lovely on the Page stage recently. "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which closes a very successful four days engagement at the Rialto theatre tonight is undoubtedly one of the most appealing stories ever screened. It is rich in color and human interest, and Mary Pickford, who plays the character of Little Lord Fauntleroy, is all boy, despite the curls, his spotless collar and handsome velvet suits. Do you live in the east and think the west—west of Buffalo or at most west of the Mississippi—is the "jumping-off place of creation?" Or do you live in the west and wonder how any one manages to exist east of the Rockies, let alone to enjoy health, prosperity and pursuit of happiness? You'll find the most delightful, comical, quaint and humorous arguments ever heard or read on the relative merits of east and west in "The Suspenders," which comes to the Rialto theatre tomorrow. "Uncle Peter Binea," the old western pioneer of the story, and his grandson, "P. Percival Binea," who is intent on spending the Binea millions, wage a dispute that is one of the finest comedy angles of a comedy-drama classic. "Uncle Peter Binea" is played by Joseph J. Dowling. Niles Welch plays "Percival," others in the cast are Robert McKim, Claire Adams, Betty Price, Adele Farrington, Virginia Harris, Harry Holland, Otto Lederer and Tom Ricketts. Get More Work Out of Your Tractor by Using a Tractor Disc Harrow Keep your tractor as busy as possible at work that pays. It suffers less depreciation when you use it than when you let it stand idle. And it keeps on returning profit on your investment. Besides using it when you plow, use it in disking before and after you plow. That makes a well-prepared seed bed—the kind that pays most. Its third lever makes thorough pulverizing possible. With it you can raise or lower the inner ends of the gangs of the front section to make all the discs penetrate at equal depth the entire width of the harrow. There are other features on this harrow which we would like to show you, such as double bar gang frames, twice as strong as any single bar gang frame, all steel stub pole and adjustable spring steel scrapers. Be sure to ask us about these features. Come to our store and let us show the John Deere Pony Tractor Disc Harrow—a sure profit maker behind any standard tractor. This is an exceptionally strong, light draft, flexible harrow. It has a separate lever for angling each gang. Hubbard Bros. Cor. Main and Riverside Phone 231
