The tea to be given next Saturday afternoon by the Washington Parent-Teachers circle for the benefit of the play shed fund and the Junior Red Cross, will be held at the Hotel Holland instead of at Mrs. Peril's home as first announced. An unusually fine program has been prepared and the committee in charge is planning for the entertainment of a large crowd since much interest has always been manifested in the building of the play shed, and all who fully understand the character and aim of the Junior Red Cross work are also anxious to make that a success. Aside from the fine program, this tea will afford an opportunity for meeting all one's friends, and after all this is the real province of teas.

When two brothers, who are carpenters build a house for one of them, they lose no time on the job, as is amply illustrated by the way in which the fine colonial bungalow of Ed Miller on the Pacific highway between Medford and Central Point, which was only begun a few days ago, is going up. Ed and William Miller are doing the job, and the natives thereabouts and passersby who witnessed the recent start are almost awed at the rapidity with which the structure is rising, and the daily progress made. The bungalow's cost will be about $4000.

LONDON PRESS SEES HOPE IN U. S. NOTE

LIVERPOOL, Mar. 23.—The Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, commenting upon Secretary Hughes' note to the allies asking that the United States be paid the costs of her army of occupation in Germany upon an equal footing with the allies, says: "The real importance of America's request lies in the fact that it is the first step in a policy that eventually may force her to take a vigilant and practical interest in the financial plight of Europe. * * * Another Washington conference on European debts seems now something more than a hopeful speculation."

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—The condition of winter wheat and other fall sown grains generally continued to improve during the week ending Tuesday, the weather bureau says in its weekly crop review. The exceptions noted by the bureau in its reports are that it continued too dry in a few localities in the southwest and sheet and gale storms did some damage in the western lake region.

Rains during the week, however, the review continues, served to set back farm work and seeding of oats was retarded in the central states because of wet soil. Planting of sugar beets has been nearly completed in California and the early seeded ones are up and looking well.

SELF-DENIAL WEEK FOR PRESBYTERIANS

This is "Self Denial Week" among Presbyterians the world over. It is proposed in order to raise funds to meet some of the large deficit which the Benevolent agencies of the church at home and abroad are facing on account of the financial situation of the country over. Members of the churches are urged to make some denials of comfort or luxuries or conveniences and turn in the savings next Sabbath at their church services. In some places members are urged to give one day's wages. One denomination is asking its people to turn in a title of their income for the month. The local Presbyterian church is in line with the request and its people are asked to bring in their self denial offerings next Sabbath, in order that they may reach the treasuries of the boards by April 1st.
