GOVT. OPERATION SHIPS FAILURE DECLARES LASKER

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Joint congressional hearings on the administration of the merchant marine bill were begun today with republican leaders confident the measure would be able to get on the house before the close of the present session, but generally doubtful as to whether the senate would find time to dispose of it until after congress reconvened in December.

Sitting in joint sessions the senate commerce committee and the house merchant marine and fisheries committee plan first to hear the testimony of shipping board officials with chairman Lasker as the initial witness and then to present the views of both proponents and opponents of the legislation.

Members of both committees were generally of the opinion that the hearings would continue for a month or more.

Prepared by shipping board officials with the approval of President Harding, identical bills proposing government aid for the United States merchant marine are pending before both committees.

Mr. Lasker has announced that in his opening statement to the committee he would declare the shipping board believes that any free competition with the privately owned shipping of the world through successful government operation is an impossibility.

Government operation of ships, in the opinion of the shipping board head, is not only a costly failure, but is driving private owners off the seas without accomplishing anything itself.
