

Local and Personal

Quite a number of citizens who have been observing this week as clean-up week and have piled up rubbish in the street in front of their homes under the apprehension that the city would cart it away free, are doomed to disappointment. Every home is expected to dispose of its own rubbish as at last year's clean-up, as the city council feels that that expense should not be borne by the city. Therefore the piles of rubbish and tin cans stacked up in front of homes must be moved at the cost of the families who put them there, and these families are requested to call the garbage wagon department to this duty.
