

Local and Personal

The local fishing season will open tomorrow and will last until Nov. 1st, when all members of the flinty tribe six inches or over by legal prey and all fish caught under that size must be thrown back in the water. Because of the high and muddy water in the river and other streams the fishing will not be good although all the streams are full of all kinds of fish of all sizes. Nevertheless many local fishermen will be trying their luck within the next few days. The fishing will be mostly by bait, as present conditions are against fly fishing. Bear creek is said to be full of steelhead as well as of the smaller fellows of the trout family.
