There was a frost this morning with such a dangerous outlook that a number of orchards smoked, especially those in the 401 district where the lowest temperature of the valley was reached with 26 degrees in the Hall & Young orchard. The minimum temperature in Medford was 29.8, coming close to the prediction of 29 for here made by Floyd Young, the frost expert, at 7 p. m. last night. Although the official prediction from San Francisco makes no frost mention it is probable that there will be another frost Friday morning, although lighter than that of today.
