Revival of the old fashioned kissing games like "postoffice" is advocated, as a way to save the young. "Postoffice" when your corr. played it, was as rough as football, and some of the young gentlemen who went after mail came back looking like they had engaged in a wrestling match with an able-bodied wildcat.

In these days when Bryan is satisfied evolution is not true because it is not mentioned in the Bible, the following letter from the school board of Lancaster, Ohio, under date of 1828, is both interesting and amusing—and is a good antidote to the Bryan theory: "You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in; but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that his intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour by steam, he would clearly have foretold it through His holy prophets. GENERAL GRANT'S BIRTHDAY.

LET US LABOR for the security of free thought, free speech, free press, pure morals, unfettered religious sentiments and equal rights and privileges for all men, irrespective of nationality, color or religion.

Reckless and lawless men have associated themselves together in some localities to deprive other citizens of those rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the United States, and to that end have committed deeds of violence and bloodshed. A great majority of the people in all parts of the country, favor the full enjoyment by all classes of persons of those rights to which they are entitled under the Constitution and the laws.

There has been imposed upon the executive branch of the government the execution of an act of congress commonly known as the Ku Klux law. Under the provisions of this act, it is the purpose of the government to exercise such powers for the purpose of securing to all citizens of the United States the peaceful enjoyment of the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution.

Thousands of inoffensive and well disposed citizens have been the sufferers of this lawless violence. Therefore, a proclamation has been issued, in terms of the law, calling upon the members of these combinations to disperse within five days and to deliver to the United States all arms, ammunition, uniforms, disguises and other means and implements used by them for carrying out their unlawful purposes.

Perhaps that doesn't sound like an editorial. Well, it isn't. With the exception of the change of one pronoun, from I to We, it is precisely what President U. S. Grant wrote to the American people in 1871.

Today, the people of America, from the President down to the school children are honoring General Grant and celebrating the hundredth anniversary of his birth. If President Grant were here today, we wonder what he would say when informed that according to the leaders of that same organization, he stands convicted of being something less than 100 per cent American.

UNEDUCATED.

THERE'S nothing more swelled up with pride than yonder old gray hen; she has her chickens by her side, they number nine or ten. But she has never learned to add, subtract or multiply; she cannot tell what chick's she's had, how many should be nigh. Now one is drowned in yonder pool, and is not missed, by jing; the old hen never went to school, and cannot count her strong. And silently the cat takes one; the old hen doesn't know; she's having forty kinds of fun, out there where green things grow. And when the stars like glowing lamps light up the solitude, night after night the old hen camps upon her dwindling brood. She started out with ten or more bright chicks in brave array; and now she's only three or four, and think's it's all O. K. At last some even when shadows fall, the old hen comes along; behind her are no chicks at all—she feels there's something wrong. She clucks and cusses in despair, she takes her troubles hard; alas there are no chickens there, no downy things to guard. Oh, she can tell when there is none, and feel a mother's woe; the difference 'twixt ten and one she never learned to know. So, children, learn your lessons well, and study more and more, and when you're grown up you can tell a goose egg from a score.

Catholics Everywhere

The Catholic Church teaches the true Church of Christ must be universal and spread all over the known world, not confined to any one race, nationality or language. It must preach the gospel everywhere, at all times. Mark 16-15. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation." "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all the nations." Matt. 28, 19.

The Call of Home

"The Call of Home," now playing at the Page theatre, depicts on the screen one of the most extraordinary flood scenes ever filmed, presents in the prominent roles two players of the very highest skill in Irons Rich and Ramsey Wallace. Miss Rich as the wife and Mr. Wallace as the husband are parted by an adverse fate early in the picture, but destiny reunites them later and there is a happy ending—not a conventional happy ending but a finale that sends home an audience with a thrill of keen delight. L. J. Gasnier, who directed "The Call of Home," founded upon George Agnew Chamberlain's popular novel, "Home," has accomplished one of the biggest feats of his screen career, the flood scenes reaching the peak of dramatic interest in the big climax.

Wonderful Frontier Picture

One of the most entertaining pictures which has been seen in a very long time, opened yesterday at the Riado theatre, where it will play a four days engagement. "Cameron of the Royal Mounted," it is called. There isn't a single dull moment from the start of the picture to its smashing climax—which, by the way, is as powerful a thing as the screen has ever known. When Perkins met the fate that he had intended for Cameron, the audience were sorely tempted to cheer.

Gaston Glass, who scored so triumphantly in "Humoresque," is seen again as a young mounted policeman while Vivienne Osborne and William Colvin are seen in roles to which their talents ideally suit them.

IRISH GENERAL IS SHOT DOWN

DUBLIN, April 26.—(By the Associated Press)—Brigadier General Adamson, commanding the Athlon brigade of the regular Irish republican army, was shot dead yesterday near the headquarters of the independent republican forces in Athlone.

An official communique issued from the headquarters of the regular army in Beggars Bush barracks, this city, said:

"Brigadier Adamson of the Athlone brigade was shot dead in the streets of Athlone. The general was returning to the barracks near the hotel where the mutinous troops have their headquarters. He was suddenly confronted by a group of armed men who ordered him to throw up his hands."

"The general, being alone, complied, and while his arms were raised the assassins deliberately fired into him. Several of the mutineers' officers were arrested."

NORBLAD FOR CONGRESS

A. W. NORBLAD

The Astorian is gratified that Hon. A. W. Norblad has accepted the appeal of his home community so intimately acquainted with his strength and the call from so many influential sources in the state, and will become a candidate for congress from the first congressional district of Oregon, opposing for the nomination in the primaries on the republican ticket in May, Congressman Willis P. Hawley. Mr. Norblad's career in the community where he has so long been prominent, and his larger activities in the public life of the state, through his services as a member of the state senate, leave no question as to his eminent equipment for the responsibilities that a seat in the national house demand. Mr. Norblad is recognized as one of the ablest men of Oregon and that standing has been achieved through service of a character where outstanding talents alone could succeed. His election would reflect credit upon Oregon and would give that further prestige to the west's voice in the national councils that the situation so demands. Mr. Norblad will enter the race with the closest interest of his legion of personal friends and the assured support of thousands who have been in touch with his public services.

It is so generally understood that Congressman Hawley has no appreciation of the broader demands of his service from a state standpoint that further discussion along that line at this time is unnecessary. A service of fifteen years in congress has found him at the close of that period without prestige, power or initiative, whereas the call of the times—the pressing demand of ever-changing forward looking conditions—is for men of vision and action. Mr. Hawley affords, in fact, the conspicuous exhibit that congress needs new blood. To elect a man of Mr. Norblad's stamp to succeed him will provide a national service, aside from enhancing the immediate prestige of Oregon as a state, and the Astorian feels confident in its prediction that the people of the district are to take that step.—Morning Astorian.

A. W. Norblad is in the race for the congressional nomination, and he will win. He has certain characteristics that peculiarly fit him for the office he will represent—not of 'Clatsop alone, not even of the coast counties, but of every one and all of the counties. It will be his duty to serve, and of the state at large. He is a self-made man—one who has fought his way up to honorable service of the people and to recognition among the big men of the bar and in the state senate. He is in the prime of life and ambitious to achieve greater honors, and he knows that the secret of success for him is in the one word "service." No one doubts he will give his state, his county, and his district everything that is in him—and that is the kind of a man we want. Every citizen who wishes to see the district receive its full share of the attention of the federal government, should get busy at once. Get Busy.—Warrenton News. Paid Adv.

TONGUE REBUKES FALSE REPORTS

Rumors of Opposition Are Called Malicious

Reflection of Present National Committeeman Is Declared Favored by Senator.

"With circulation, both in the press and by passing the word along" has been given a malicious report originated by the opponents of Ralph E. Williams, to the effect that Senator McNary questions the loyalty of Mr. Williams and is opposed to his reelection as republican national committeeman," said Thomas H. Tongue, Jr., republican state chairman.

While in Portland on business Wednesday, State Chairman Tongue took occasion to give the rumor "one on the chin."

"I know this report to be absolutely false and untrue," continued Mr. Tongue. "The story is unauthorized, unfathered and underhanded. It is election propaganda pure and simple, created for a purpose, and should not mislead the friends of Senator McNary nor anyone else."

Part in Contest Denied. In a telegram to me, bearing date of April 22, 1922, Senator McNary said:

"I am taking no part in contest for national committeeman nor in any other political contest. Indeed, no one has ever requested an expression from me concerning any of the candidates and I have authorized no one to speak for me."

"I positively know from recent correspondence with the senator that he not only does not question the loyalty of Mr. Williams, but feels exceedingly friendly to him."

"Since his election as republican national committeeman for Oregon, Mr. Williams has done everything in his power to build up the republican party, to do away with factional differences, to secure harmony and to elect the entire republican ticket at every election."

Mr. Williams Is Praised. Recognition by the republican national committee of the high order of ability and untiring service of Mr. Williams to the party resulted in his election to the vice-chairmanship of the republican national committee, an honor never before conferred upon a western man. This reflects credit not only upon himself, but upon the state of Oregon.

It is one of influence secured only by painstaking labor and years of service. It means much to the state, and it would be a serious mistake at this time for the republican voters of Oregon to defeat Mr. Williams and elect a new man who would be at the foot of the committee instead of its vice-chairman.—Portland Oregonian.
