WOLGAMOTT CASE
 DISMISSED ON RULING BY COURT

The trial of Ernest S. (Dad) Wolgamott, charged with selling liquor came to an abrupt ending in the circuit court Thursday afternoon, when upon motion of District Attorney Rawles Moore, the jury was discharged, and the case dismissed. This action was taken upon a ruling of the court that "possession of liquor could not be used as evidence of a sale of liquor." Another indictment of the same general nature was also dismissed.

The chief witness for the state was Sam McCheslon who was unable to identify the bottle, or tell the date of the alleged sale, and who proved an unsatisfactory witness for both sides, owing to the vagueness of his testimony. In an effort to corroborate the sale, the state attempted to introduce as evidence, bottles containing whiskey alleged to have been found in the possession of the defendant. The defense objected to this, and was sustained by the court. The remaining indictments against Wolgamott will be tried at this time.

The trial of Florence Hall, charged with a violation of the prohibition law will be started next Monday morning, owing to the fact that Magnus Hall, one of the principal witnesses, now on parole, and working in Klamath county, cannot arrive before that time. The case was originally scheduled for this morning.

The trial of N. B. Dunlap was begun this morning with Attorney G. M. Roberts representing the defense, and the state being represented by District Attorney Rawles Moore and Special District Attorney George Sawyer of Roseburg. The entire morning session was devoted to the selecting of a jury.

HINES' FRIENDS MAKE EFFORT TO SECURE PAROLE

Friends of Roland D. Hines, found guilty by a jury in the circuit court Tuesday night after long deliberation of a charge arising out of the failure of the Bank of Jacksonville are circulating a petition for his parole. The court announced that Hines would be called for sentence next Tuesday, and maybe at a still later date.

Hines was found guilty on an indictment alleging the making of a false report to the state bank examiner, when he was in charge of the institution when W. H. Johnson, its convicted cashier was in the east in May 1920. He was also vice president of the institution. Like all the bank cases, the evidence was highly involved, and the chief evidence against Hines, was the interest sheet of the bank, figured correctly, and not in accordance with the jumbled accounts left by Johnson. Hines testified that he was suspicious of the condition of the bank, and that he secured the correct figures from the books of the county treasurer. He also testified that he wrote the state banking board of his suspicions, but was not able to produce this letter, and the state maintained it had no knowledge of it.

The state announces that it has dismissed the indictments against Mrs. Myrtle Blakeley, former county treasurer, who was tried twice, a disagreement resulting both times.

HALF HOLIDAY FOR CIRCUS ON WEDNESDAY

Next week we will all have recollections of our younger days—at least us grown ups will—for Wednesday A. G. Barnes' four ring wild animal circus comes to Medford again. But whatever our elderly feelings may be the event is surely one for great and general rejoicing among the children of the community—boys and girls. And it is going to be a great day for you all, children, for you will be able to see Al G. Barnes' wonderful array of wild beasts in their open dens in the street parade (excepting Tusko, the world's largest elephant who does not parade—he is apparently above all animal and human ken in this connection)—and later in the circus menagerie when they are being fed after the afternoon performance.

But to add to the good news, A. Smith, superintendent of the schools here—he was a boy once himself ye know—has decided that the children of the schools here will be paraded along the route to see the parade and then they will finish their morning's lessons and be given a half holiday for the afternoon to attend the circus. This applies to all children, this half holiday.

Gee! kids! it's great to be young and living in these good times? We envy you your youth, vitality and happy outlook on life and your anticipation of pleasures to come.

The fire alarm this noon was the result of a large bonfire on one of the lots on South Holly street belonging to Charles Palm. Workmen have been tearing down the old buildings which partially burned several weeks ago in the rear of the Liberty building and the charred lumber was taken to this lot, piled in a large pile and burned. The fire caused a great deal of excitement, inconvenienced the fire department, and spoiled a baseball diamond used by the boys attending St. Mary's academy and other children in the neighborhood. The men who built it had as little consideration as to build it right on second base.

FIGHTING BOB ATTACKS FALL

partment was attacked by Senator La Follette, as the "ablest opponent of the policy of conservation established under Roosevelt."

In all his public career, Senator La Follette said, Secretary Fall was "not conspicuous as a guardian of the naval oil reserves."

The value of the Teapot Dome reserve was estimated at $500,000,000 by the Wisconsin senator, who declared that the only reason advanced by the interior department for the leases was the alleged danger of depletion by drainage from adjacent private oil wells. This he challenged, presenting statements from Governor Carey of Wyoming, Dr. G. B. Morgan, Wyoming state geologist, and others, denying that danger of drainage existed.

The connection of the Sinclair oil interests with Teapot Dome leases Senator La Follette said, lies in the fact that the vice president of the Mammoth Oil company of Delaware, which was given the leases, is a Sinclair director. Harry Sinclair, the senator asserted, was "prominent in oil and administration circles."

During the period of "mystery" about the leases, Senator La Follette said, speculation in Sinclair oil on the New York stock exchange jumped in three days' trading to over $30,000,000.

"For several years this fight to protect the naval oil reserves against these hungry exploiters has been waged in and out of congress," Mr. La Follette said. "From the beginning it has been much more than a question of oil reserves, it had a question of national safety."

"Today the naval reserves are on the highroad to destruction or exhaustion."
