GOBLINS AND GOOD CITIZENS.

THE GRAND GOBLIN of the Imperial Pacific District arises from the barber chair, to announce that hundreds of the best citizens on the Pacific coast owe him allegiance.

We wonder if the Grand Goblin includes himself in that category. If so it would be interesting to know what he considers the obligations of good citizenship.

We supposed one of them was truth telling. But on Monday, April 24th, the Grand Goblin solemnly announced that the Ku Klux Klan had nothing to do with the outrage at Inglewood, which resulted in the death of one man and the wounding of two others.

On Tuesday, April 25th, two members of the Klan declared on oath that the raid was planned at an official meeting of the K. K. K.

On Monday, May 1st, after making various conflicting statements, the same Grand Goblin announced that 150 members of the K. K. K. "who took part in the Inglewood raid," would on the following Wednesday march to the District Attorney's office and surrender. On Wednesday the same official announced there would be no such parade, but that he, himself, would put on the ceremony by proxy.

According to Los Angeles papers a public official in Venice denied he was a member of the Klan, but when evidence to the contrary was presented, he admitted he was what is called an alien member, that is to say not a full fledged member, but on the way to becoming one, and justified his original statement accordingly.

How confusing. To the average American citizen, it would appear that if the Grand Goblin told the truth on Monday, two of his "best citizens" committed perjury on Tuesday, and if he told the truth on the Monday following admitting 150 members of his organization did participate in the raid, then he lied a week before, when he proclaimed the organization had nothing to do with it. But perhaps Mr. Average Citizen is all wrong. We don't know. It's all so complicated.

It may be possible, for example, that behind these robes and masks, there are standards of good citizenship which the uninitiated world knows nothing about. Perhaps in the Invisible Empire such things as truth telling, fidelity to one's oath as a public officer, and obeying the law of the land and the Constitution of the United States are invisible also.

We don't know. No one on the outside, incapable of either physical or moral invisibility, you know. But the Grand Goblin knows. He must know, for he knows everything, sees everything,—"Beware! Beware!"

A deluded and ignorant world, awaits patiently for elucidation.

THE VOLSTEAD LAW.

THE WELL-KNOWN line I do not draw at Mr. Volstead's famous law. There may be moments when I yearn for drinks that sizzle, smoke and burn, that jolt a man clear to his toes, perfume his breath and tint his nose; but when such longings come to me, I quaff a bowl of boneset tea. I can't pour biters in my crav without upsetting Volstead's law, and making Mr. Volstead feel a dark blue fantod in his heel. When serpents come and bite my legs, for something strong my being begs. My soul is sick and faint within; my nerves demand a dish of gin. For I've been taught that gins and ryes that venom dire will neutralize. But still I cry, "Far better croak than make the Volstead law a joke! Though cobras ebb and adders add, and bite me 'neath my liver pad, though copperheads and rattlesnakes shall fill me up with deadly aches, no vital statute shall I bust—obeying law's sacred trust!" I sit beneath my vine and tree and drink nine quarts of boneset tea, and wash it down with wiener-wurst, and lo, the venom is dispersed! And while I sit here, blithe and spry, the humbled snakes go off and die. I doubt if alcohol will heal a single ill that mortals feel. And if you'd drink it you must saw a stove length from the Volstead law.

Catholic Church Never Taught False Doctrine

If anyone can show us one single false doctrine taught by the Catholic Church during the past 1900 years, we will readily admit that the Catholic Church is not the Church of Christ. In all her official pronouncements, text books, and documents, she has been unwaveringly, and at all hazards, on the side of truth, justice, faith and morality. (See "God and Myself," by Scott; P. J. Speaker is runner up with .424. The average include games of Wednesday.

Sisler also is leading the base stealers, having tucked away an even dozen, and also is the best scorer to date. He has crossed the plate 23 times. sent from the no-hit, no-run hall of fame today, but only because luck returned to answer his knock at the portal.

For eight innings Bayne held Ty Cobb's Detroit Tigers both hitless and runless. In the final inning, with the laurels almost in his grasp, however, fate—in the shape of bats wielded by Vegh, Woodall and Heilmann—dealt him an unkind blow. Two singles, plus a sacrifice fly not fully broke the hitless stretch, but failed a run. Cobb benched himself in this inning for a pinch hitter, Fothergill, who flied out.

St. Louis won easily 6 to 1 and remained knotted at the top with the Yankees, who squeezed out a 6 to 4 victory over the Athletics.

Charley Robertson, who twirled a perfect game last Sunday, proved that he isn't always immune from base hits, Cleveland knocking him out of the box in six innings, and making a clean sweep of the series with Chicago, 6 to 3, behind Allan Sotheron's good pitching.

The St. Louis Cardinals took their third straight game from Cincinnati by the one run margin.

Tight pitching by Southpaw Cooper, who fanned seven Cubs, helped give Pittsburgh a 3 to 1 decision over Chicago.

MAKE OREGON SAFE FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

RE-ELECT RALPH E. WILLIAMS REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN

KEEP THE WEST IN POWER

The Republican National Committee consists of one member from each state in the Union and is the political organization of the party.

In June, 1921, at the Committee's first meeting after the inauguration of President Warren G. Harding, every state cast its vote for Ralph E. Williams of Oregon for vice-chairman of the Committee, recognizing by their unanimous vote his fitness and ability as a leader to fill this responsible position.

A vote for Ralph E. Williams for Republican National Committeeman will confirm the action of the forty-eight states in electing his vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, a position never before held by a Western man.

Ralph E. Williams of Oregon, as vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, is directly in line to become National chairman, the highest position attainable in the Republican organization.

A National Committeeman on the National Committee does not make or execute the laws, but carries out the policies and platform of the party adopted by the delegates at each previous National Convention.

Mr. Williams is senior member of the National Committee. Seniority in this committee gives one the same power as seniority in the U. S. Senate.

Vote to Keep Him There
