TONIGHT'S SMOKER PROMISES TO BE A STEM-WINDER

Tonight's smoker card at the Nativarium will have to be a corker to live up to expectations of local fight fans. However there is every indication that the three main events heading the bill, will be real, high class bouts and a large crowd is expected to attend. After a curtain-raising four-round preliminary, Jess Ingram will tangle with Kid Pickles for four rounds. Pickles is in the best condition he has been for months and is expected to give Jess a stiff go. Welly, the Idaho wildcat and Bonoo Hagen will then climb into the ring for six rounds of pugilistic argument which has advanced earmarks of a hot scrap.

The main event of the evening will be the Baby Blue-Jack Burns fight. The former is a Portland boy who has appeared many times at Milwaukee fights. Burns is from Oakland and is rated high throughout the coast. This battle promises to be a real treat for southern Oregon fight fans.

Tonight's fights will be conducted under the auspices of the Medford boxing commission and the judges will be instructed to withhold the purses if any of the matches are unsatisfactory. The fight management has issued a cordial invitation to ladies to attend this evening's entertainment.
