Plans are rapidly formulating for one of the biggest and most interesting Fourth of July celebrations this year ever undertaken in Ashland. An enthusiastic meeting of merchants was held at the chamber of commerce rooms this morning and it was definitely determined that Monday, July 3, should be included as a part of the annual event and be called "Ford Day". The big feature of this day will be the Ford parade, giving away a Ford car and other events which, it is believed, will bring hundreds of Ford owners, as well as others, to spend a three day period in Lithia park—Ashland Tidings.

The general health of university students is better at this time than it has been in months, according to Miss Grace K. Robertson, university health nurse. Only five students are in the infirmary, compared with an average of 14 for the winter term. Fewer cases of poison oak are being reported, according to the nurse, who also said 50 per cent of the underweight girls, according to the September figures, are now normal.
